City Tax Rate Is $67.98; Increase $5.33

State Budget Up $131 Million Over '63

Relies on Federal Tax Cut to Keep in Balance

Largest Increase Is $117 Million For Education; Welfare Hike $19 Million

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller submitted to the Legislature today a record $2,920,000,0000 spending budget. It is up $131 million from the current year and relies heavily on a proposed federal tax cut to keep it in balance without increasing state taxes.

$117 Million Total

The largest increase is $117 million for education, which would bring state spending for schools on all levels to $1.3 billion in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Other major increases listed by the governor were $19 million for public welfare, $13 million for the first step in a pay raise for state employes and $11 million to cover fringe benefits for new state employes.

Rockefeller, who has been preaching fiscal conservatism in his campaign for the Republican nomination for president, told the lawmakers that the budget "reflects our determination to conduct our affairs on a sound fiscal basis, without tax-supported borrowing and without tax increases."

But, at the same time, the governor noted that the existing tax structure will fall $240 million short of providing sufficient revenues to meet expenditures.

Rockefeller proposed to bridge that chasm by advancing collection dates of $175 million in business taxes and other stop-gap measures.

Relatively Tight

The new budget is relatively tight, in that the proposed increase is the smallest of five previous Rockefeller budgets. Earlier ones went up at an average of more than $200 million a year.

The budget optimistically anticipates a 7 per cent expansion in the economy. The governor had estimated no more than a 5 per cent increase in past years.

He said the pending federal tax cut would stimulate business and employment sufficiently to "asssure us that New York State will have resources to meet tomorrow's needs."'

May Not Reach Estimates

Without the tax cuts and a resultant improvement in the economy, revenues may not reach estimates, he said. In that case, the state would have to draw on a rainy-day reserve fund, a step Rockefelller has barred in the past as incompatible with what he describes as his pay-as-you-go program.

The governor is counting on revenues of $2,921,000,000 in the new fiscal year, providing for a thin surplus of $1 milllion.

While he proposed actual spending of $2,920,000,000, he recommended appropriations totaling $2,942,000,000, an increase of $227 million over current appropriations.

Appropriations are legislative authorizations for spending. In some areas, particularly construction, the authorization is not used in the year it is given and actual spending generally runs below the total of the appropriations.

Ignores Regents Pleas

The governor's 81-page budget message, which he did not deliver personally, ignored pleas from the Board of Regents and education groups for increased state aid to public schools.

Most of the increased spending for education is mandated by present laws.

Of the $117 milllion additional for schools, $61 million would go to local school districts in higher aid under a formula gearing state payments to enrollment. The governor set that aid at $1,034,000,000.

He requested $124.3 million for operation of the State University, up $29.5 million.

State aid to community colleges will go up $10 million, to $22.7 million.

Cuts in Some Areas

The various increases throughout the budget were offset by cuts in other areas. The biggest cut was a $32-million reduction in capital construction outlay for mental hygiene institutions.

That building program was taken out of the regular budget last year and placed in the hands of a public authority that

Looks Like Year Of Decision on Antimissile Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — This may be the year of decision for the Nike-X antimissile system.

If President Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decide to permit production, it could mean spending ultimately as much as $20 billion.

Defense officials, discussing the new military budget, said "we are not far enough along on Nike-X to make any decision" for procurement or deployment of the antimissile system.

But, they said, "it is possible that decision can be made, pro or con, during calendar 1964."

Meanwhile, work on the Nike-X will go forward on a priority basis.

For this, the budget provides

Not Certain Testimony To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators investigating Robert G. Baker's activities left up in the air today whether they will pursue testimony of a Baker business associate who said he sold a life insurance policy on Lyndon B. Johnson and later gave him a stereo set.

Issued first in 1957 in the amount of $10,000 while Johnson was the Senate Democratic leader and increased to $200,000 in 1961 after Johnson became vice president, the policy was written by Don B. Reynolds, a local insurance agent.

A Vice President

Reynolds said his firm lists Baker, former secretary to the Senate Democratic majority, as vice president. Reynolds told the Senate Rules Committee that in 1959 after obtaining the insurance he gave a stereo set costing over $500 to Johnson at the suggestion of Baker, a former Johnson protege.

He also testified he agreed to buy over $1,200 worth of advertising time on a radio-television station in Austin, Tex., owned by the LBJ Company, which is paying the insurance premiums. Mrs. Johnson recently placed her majority stock-holding in the LBJ Company in trust.

Used As Lead

Reynolds testified that he regarded Baker, a former South Carolinian like himself, as someone who could provide him with access to important clients and had paid the former Senate aide about $15,000 for his help.

He said he had given Baker $4,000 for assisting him in obtaining a commission of about $10,000 in 1960 as broker for a performance bond required of Philadelphia contractor Matt McCloskey who built the District of Columbia Stadium.

McCloskey, who recently resigned as ambassador to Ireland, was treasurer of the Democratic National Committee at the time. He plans to handle Democratic campaign fund raising activities.

Reynolds testified he also paid $1,500 to William McLeod, chief clerk of the House District Committee, in connection with the same transaction. Informed that McLeod maintained the payment was for legal services in South Carolina, Reynolds said this was not so.

Made Public Tuesday

Reynolds' testimony, given at closed hearings Jan. 9 and Jan. 17, was made public by the committee Tuesday.

The committee is investigating whether Baker, who resigned his $19,600 Senate job under fire Oct. 7, engaged in outside business dealings that conflicted with his official duties or involved other improprieties.

Reynolds told the committee that he bought the advertising time on the Austin station because he was led to believe by Walter Jenkins, a top aide to Johnson, that "it was expected of me."

DELIVER CENTRAL HUDSON TRANSFORMER—A 115,000 volt transformer for a new Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., substation at Hurley Avenue was moved to the site of installation Tuesday. Installation of the new transformer is part of a $10.5 million construction program for 1964 announced by Central Hudson earlier this month. The transformer will be connected to a new high voltage transmission line running 15 miles to Hurley Avenue from an expanded Ohioville sub-station near New Paltz. Another new line will be installed running five miles north of the Hurley Avenue substation. The new 90-ton transformer arrived at the site here on a flat-bed truck. (Freeman photo)

Sure Soviets Studying LBJ Arms Proposals

GENEVA (AP)—Western and neutral delegates at the 17-nation disarmament conference expressed confidence today that the Soviet Union is studying President Johnson's new arms control proposals with exceptional interest.

The President, in a message read at the conference's resumption Tuesday, proposed a verified freeze on the number and specifications of nuclear delivery systems — missiles, submarines, planes and the like—and a controlled cutoff in the production of nuclear materials for weapons.

Some delegates believed two less spectacular proposals by Johnson had better chances of a favorable Soviet reaction. These called for agreement to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to nations that don't have them and a system of observation posts to prevent accidental war or surprise attack.

These in general coincided with two points proposed by Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin as part of a seven-point program of negotiations, but agreement was not complete.

Johnson, for example, worded his proposal to ban the transfer of nuclear weapons so that it would not apply to the multilateral nuclear force proposed for the North Atlantic Alliance. Tsarapkin called for prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons to multilateral forces as well as to individual nations.

Johnson's proposals for the first time broke up the huge and complex package of general disarmament, long deadlocked in the two-year-old conference. A general disarmament treaty still is the ultimate goal, but the U.S. proposals are preliminary measures which might start the powers toward a comprehensive treaty.

The U.S proposals also included a treaty to outlaw the use or threat of force and subversion, and a new effort to ban underground nuclear weapon tests, excluded from the limited test ban treaty.

There was no immediate indication of the Soviet response.

The first indication may come in the next meeting of the conference, on Thursday.

Democrats Favor Resnick as Foe Of Rep. Wharton

Resnick, founder of Channel Master, is incumbent president of Questron-America Inc. He recently announced himself as an avowed candidate for Congress to oppose Congressman Wharton, and yesterday he attended the Catskill session and explained his views on district and national levels.

Ruby Defense Is To Ask for Trial Away From Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—Jack Ruby's defense team will return to court Feb. 10 to argue that his murder trial should be transferred out of Dallas because of "general animosity against him."

Meanwhile, Ruby will undergo an intensive mental examination conducted by a three-man panel of psychiatrists agreed upon by Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown.

Chief defense lawyer Melvin Belli said he was pleased over court developments Tuesday, which resulted in creation of the panel but failed to gain Ruby by his freedom on bond.

Another result was delay of Ruby's murder trial on a charge of killing Lee Harvey Oswald, the pro-Marxist accused of assassinating President John F. Kennedy.

Brown said if he rules against a change of venue Feb. 10, the trial of the 52-year-old strip joint operator will begin Feb. 17. Otherwise, he will choose a new site and date for the trial.

The trial had been scheduled

To Raise $2,762,690.61 By Levy in 1964 Period

City Appropriations Run $2,054,858; State, County Taxes Are $707,832.25

A 1964 city budget fixing a tax rate of $67.98, an increase of $5.33 over 1963, was adopted by party vote Tuesday night at a recessed Common Council meeting, with Democrats claiming the boost lacks provision for better services, and Republicans charging failure of the previous, Democratic-controlled council to aid Mayor John J. Schwenk in lessening the tax burden on real estate.

The budget lists net appropriations for all city purposes at $2,054,858.36, plus state and county taxes of $707,832.25, for a total of $2,762,690.61 to be raised by taxes.

Majority Leader John Machione (R) 12th Ward, hit at lack of cooperation from the previous council, and advocated continued study of non-property tax proposals.

Minority Leader James F. Howard (D) 10th Ward, felt the mayor apparently is not making necessary overtures to gain from the Republican state legislature adjustments in state aid, and Edward Norton, (D) Seventh Ward, held that taxpayers are asked to pay the largest increase in years without betterment of services.

Question First Vote

Democrats asked for reference to rule, after a first vote, calling for acceptance of budget estimates, was 6-5, with a Democrat and a Republican alderman absent. The Republican, Raymond Armater, 11th Ward, had arrived in time to vote for a measure calling for levying the tax, and it passed by a 7-5 vote.

Alderman William G. Davis (D-Lib) 13th Ward, has been ill and did not attend.

Alderman Robert Gallo (D) Ninth Ward, and Norton questioned the validity of the first vote because it pertained to a budget matter.

Alderman-at-Large Joseph F. Carroll Jr., called a recess and City Clerk Walter S. Foster explained that the charter provides that a majority of the council present constitutes a quorum for transaction of general business, but not on matters dealing with tax or assessment and similar legislation. The first vote did not pertain to authorizing the tax levy.

Alderman Gallo had asked if the rule pertaining to the second measure dealing with the tax levy phase of the budget, provides for adoption by a majority of the aldermen present, or by a vote of the majority of the council as a total, elected body. Corporation Counsel Harry Gold was consulted by telephone during the recess and cited the rule dealing with the council as a whole.

Study To Continue

A resolution by Gallo aimed at relieving the finance committee of further study of tax proposals aired at a recent public hearing, was defeated by a party vote. This, he felt, would give minority party members opportunity to "personally vote no, rather than leave a cloud".

Howard thought that since only two of some 200 persons at the hearing indicated they were in favor of new taxes, was indication enough that the public did not want them.

Machione countered that everybody appeared to agree "that we should get more money" without hitting the property taxpayers any more than they are hit, "but nobody wants to study the problem." He felt that all agreed it was "not something we want to put over on people."

Changed rules governing council procedure were adopted by a party vote, with Democrats objecting to certain sections.

Majority Leader Machione, commenting on the budget, said:

"In this session of the Common Council, the Republican party has the responsibility of the majority, and we do not intend to use the power of the majority to operate behind closed doors, or to cut off discussion of proposed legislation through the tactic of bottling it up in committee.

"I am talking now about the two proposed local laws dealing with the establishment of non-property taxes. The Finance, Ways and Means Committee does not intend to report out these two local laws tonight.

"However, as majority leader,

$600,849 Is No Change For Tippits

DALLAS (AP) — In a quiet corner of a south Dallas cemetery lies the body of patrolman J. D. Tippit, slain two months ago today as he sought to question President Kennedy's accused assassin. His grave is unmarked, save for a Christmas wreath and a bouquet of artificial roses.

His widow, whose home is a few blocks away, is intent on living as she did when her husband was alive, although she was wealthier by $600,849.

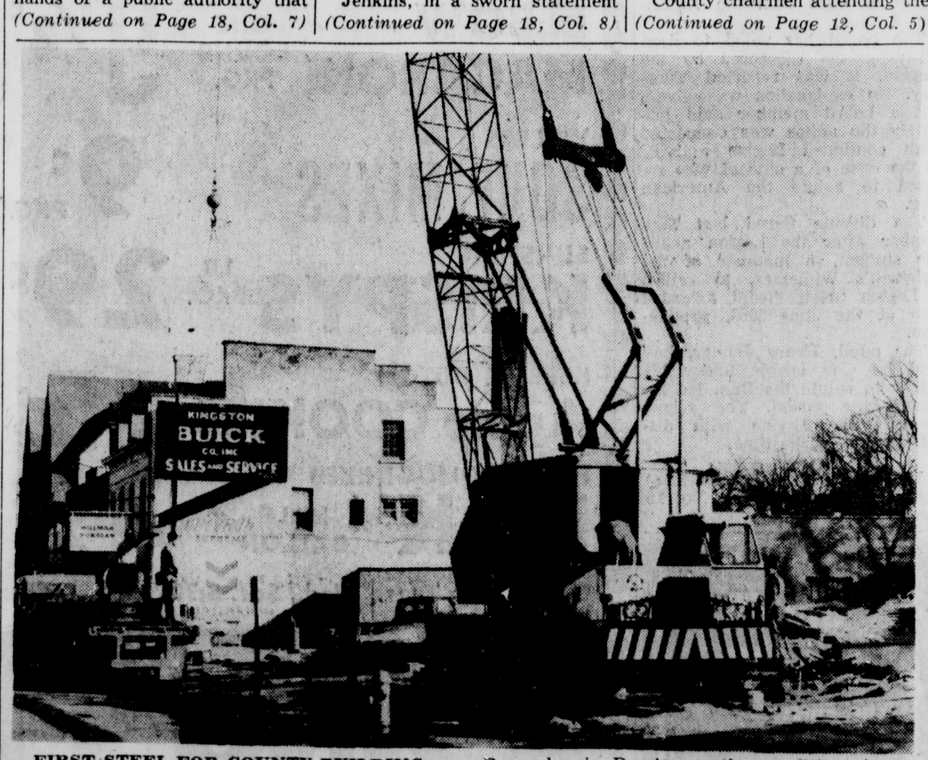
Mrs. Tippit thanked the nation for its contributions at a press conference Tuesday. "I haven't decided about the money yet," she said, "but I have advisers. We will try to use the money the way God would have us to."

Mrs. Tippit smiled as she assured reporters her mail did not include proposals of marriage. When asked whether she was 37 or 38, she replied, with another smile, "I'm 35."

But she appeared generally somber, and her voice broke once as she was asked about the reaction of her three children to their father's death. "Doing without their father has been pretty hard on them," she said, "and will be for quite some time."

The widow said she plans to live as she has and "rear the children as I would have if he were with us."

That means she and Allen, 14, Brenda, 10, and Curtis Glen, 5, will remain in a pink brick home in a south Dallas development.



FIRST STEEL FOR COUNTY BUILDING—The first steel beams for the new county office building under construction at the Main Street site were delivered Tuesday and set on the foundation by a big crane of Kingston Crane Service. The steel beams were hauled from Pennsylvania. Despite weather conditions Augustus Schrowang of Augustus Schrowang Associates, architects, said the work is progressing on schedule. Many of the steel beams were set in place today. The building is scheduled for completion by fall. (Freeman photo)

Go-Kart Hearing Slated Tonight By Esopus Board

A public hearing on a proposed ordinance to regulate vehicle racing of go-karts, stock cars and motorcycles in the Town of Esopus will be held by the Town Board 8 o'clock tonight at the Town Hall, Port Ewen.

Arguments for and against the proposed ordinance are expected to be heard by the Town Board.

At the present time there are no vehicle racing tracks within the township. However reports had been heard some time ago that the Town of Esopus was being considered for a possible track site.

Thinks Tightening Ethics Code May Bring Problems

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A senator who helped draft the original state code of ethics warned today that any effort to tighten it might create more problems than would be solved.

Sen. Warren M. Anderson, R-Binghamton, argued that "ethics is more a matter of individual conscience than it is of anything else."

The senator made the remarks in a statement prepared for delivery at the first public hearing of a special committee set up to look into the question of legislative ethics.

The committee was created by the Legislature after newspaper articles raised questions of possible conflicts of interest between the public and private interests of lawmakers.

Witnesses at the committee's first hearing were restricted to members of the Legislature, to permit them to state their case first.

Anderson's statement appeared to be a consensus of members of the Senate.

The senator was a member of the special committee appointed 10 years ago by former Governor Thomas E. Dewey to study the ethics problem. The committee's work resulted in the present code of ethics.

Anderson declared that it was of vital importance that there be public confidence in all phases of government.

But he cautioned that a prohibitive statute to curb the outside activities of legislators might create what he called a "shadow legislature." This, he said, would consist of influential experts who would advise lawmakers on specialized legislation but who "would neither be known nor responsible to the

Relies on Federal Tax Cut to Keep in Balance

Largest Increase Is $117 Million For Education; Welfare Hike $19 Million

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller submitted to the Legislature today a record $2,920,000,0000 spending budget. It is up $131 million from the current year and relies heavily on a proposed federal tax cut to keep it in balance without increasing state taxes.

Meanwhile, Ruby will undergo an intensive mental examination conducted by a three-man panel of psychiatrists agreed upon by Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown.

Chief defense lawyer Melvin Belli said he was pleased over court developments Tuesday, which resulted in creation of the panel but failed to gain Ruby his freedom on bond.

Another result was delay of Ruby's murder trial on a charge of killing Lee Harvey Oswald, the pro-Marxist accused of assassinating President John F. Kennedy.

Brown said if he rules against a change of venue Feb. 10, the trial of the 52-year-old strip joint operator will begin Feb. 17. Otherwise, he will choose a new site and date for the trial.

The trial had been scheduled

Thinks Tightening Ethics Code May Bring Problems

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A senator who helped draft the original state code of ethics warned today that any effort to tighten it might create more problems than would be solved.

Sen. Warren M. Anderson, R-Binghamton, argued that "ethics is more a matter of individual conscience than it is of anything else."

The senator made the remarks in a statement prepared for delivery at the first public hearing of a special committee set up to look into the question of legislative ethics.

The committee was created by the Legislature after newspaper articles raised questions of possible conflicts of interest between the public and private interests of lawmakers.

Witnesses at the committee's first hearing were restricted to members of the Legislature, to permit them to state their case first.

Anderson's statement appeared to be a consensus of members of the Senate.

The senator was a member of the special committee appointed 10 years ago by former Governor Thomas E. Dewey to study the ethics problem. The committee's work resulted in the present code of ethics.

Anderson declared that it was of vital importance that there be public confidence in all phases of government.

But he cautioned that a prohibitive statute to curb the outside activities of legislators might create what he called a "shadow legislature." This, he said, would consist of influential experts who would advise lawmakers on specialized legislation but who "would neither be known nor responsible to the

Go-Kart Hearing Slated Tonight By Esopus Board

A public hearing on a proposed ordinance to regulate vehicle racing of go-karts, stock cars and motorcycles in the Town of Esopus will be held by the Town Board 8 o'clock tonight at the Town Hall, Port Ewen.

Arguments for and against the proposed ordinance are expected to be heard by the Town Board.

At the present time there are no vehicle racing tracks within the township. However reports had been heard some time ago that the Town of Esopus was being considered for a possible track site.

FIRST STEEL FOR COUNTY BUILDING—The first steel beams for the new county office building under construction at the Main Street site were delivered Tuesday and set on the foundation by a big crane of Kingston Crane Service. The steel beams were hauled from Pennsylvania. Despite weather conditions Augustus Schrowang of Augustus Schrowang Associates, architects, said the work is progressing on schedule. Many of the steel beams were set in place today. The building is scheduled for completion by fall. (Freeman photo)

City Appropriations Run $2,054,858; State, County Taxes Are $707,832.25

A 1964 city budget fixing a tax rate of $67.98, an increase of $5.33 over 1963, was adopted by party vote Tuesday night at a recessed Common Council meeting, with Democrats claiming the boost lacks provision for better services, and Republicans charging failure of the previous, Democratic-controlled council to aid Mayor John J. Schwenk in lessening the tax burden on real estate.

The budget lists net appropriations for all city purposes at $2,054,858.36, plus state and county taxes of $707,832.25, for a total of $2,762,690.61 to be raised by taxes.

Majority Leader John Machione (R) 12th Ward, hit at lack of cooperation from the previous council, and advocated continued study of non-property tax proposals.

Minority Leader James F. Howard (D) 10th Ward, felt the mayor apparently is not making necessary overtures to gain from the Republican state legislature adjustments in state aid, and Edward Norton, (D) Seventh Ward, held that taxpayers are asked to pay the largest increase in years without betterment of services.

Question First Vote

Democrats asked for reference to rule, after a first vote, calling for acceptance of budget estimates, was 6-5, with a Democrat and a Republican alderman absent. The Republican, Raymond Armater, 11th Ward, had arrived in time to vote for a measure calling for levying the tax, and it passed by a 7-5 vote.

Alderman William G. Davis (D-Lib) 13th Ward, has been ill and did not attend.

Alderman Robert Gallo (D) Ninth Ward, and Norton questioned the validity of the first vote because it pertained to a budget matter.

Alderman-at-Large Joseph F. Carroll Jr., called a recess and City Clerk Walter S. Foster explained that the charter provides that a majority of the council present constitutes a quorum for transaction of general business, but not on matters dealing with tax or assessment and similar legislation. The first vote did not pertain to authorizing the tax levy.

Alderman Gallo had asked if the rule pertaining to the second measure dealing with the tax levy phase of the budget, provides for adoption by a majority of the aldermen present, or by a vote of the majority of the council as a total, elected body. Corporation Counsel Harry Gold was consulted by telephone during the recess and cited the rule dealing with the council as a whole.

Study To Continue

A resolution by Gallo aimed at relieving the finance committee of further study of tax proposals aired at a recent public hearing, was defeated by a party vote. This, he felt, would give minority party members opportunity to "personally vote no, rather than leave a cloud".

Howard thought that since only two of some 200 persons at the hearing indicated they were in favor of new taxes, was indication enough that the public did not want them.

Machione countered that everybody appeared to agree "that we should get more money" without hitting the property taxpayers any more than they are hit, "but nobody wants to study the problem." He felt that all agreed it was "not something we want to put over on people."

Changed rules governing council procedure were adopted by a party vote, with Democrats objecting to certain sections.

Majority Leader Machione, commenting on the budget, said: "In this session of the Common Council, the Republican party has the responsibility of the majority, and we do not intend to use the power of the majority to operate behind closed doors, or to cut off discussion of proposed legislation through the tactic of bottling it up in committee.

"I am talking now about the two proposed local laws dealing with the establishment of non-property taxes. The Finance, Ways and Means Committee does not intend to report out these two local laws tonight.

"However, as majority leader,

$600,849 Is No Change For Tippits

DALLAS (AP) — In a quiet corner of a south Dallas cemetery lies the body of patrolman J. D. Tippit, slain two months ago today as he sought to question President Kennedy's accused assassin. His grave is unmarked, save for a Christmas wreath and a bouquet of artificial roses.

His widow, whose home is a few blocks away, is intent on living as she did when her husband was alive, although she was wealthier by $600,849.

Mrs. Tippit thanked the nation for its contributions at a press conference Tuesday. "I haven't decided about the money yet," she said, "but I have advisers. We will try to use the money the way God would have us to."

Mrs. Tippit smiled as she assured reporters her mail did not include proposals of marriage. When asked whether she was 37 or 38, she replied, with another smile, "I'm 35."

But she appeared generally somber, and her voice broke once as she was asked about the reaction of her three children to their father's death. "Doing without their father has been pretty hard on them," she said, "and will be for quite some time."

The widow said she plans to live as she has and "rear the children as I would have if he were with us."

That means she and Allen, 14, Brenda, 10, and Curtis Glen, 5, will remain in a pink brick home in a south Dallas development.

Hints Important Word Coming on Malaysian Dispute

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy arrived in Jakarta today for a final round of talks on Malaysia with Indonesian President Sukarno, arch enemy of the new federation.

Kennedy flew from the Malaysian capital of Kuala Lumpur after telling newsmen "an important announcement can be expected within the next 24 hours." He said Malaysian leaders "are making every effort to find a peaceful solution" to their dispute with the Philippines and Indonesia.

Named Speaker For Ulster GOP Meeting Thursday

Town of Ulster Republican Club will have as its guest speaker, Orvil E. Norman of Lake Katrine, public relations chairman of Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross on Thursday 8 p. m. at Do-Drop-In, Eddyville.

His topic will be the Meaning of Red Cross and "for a better score in sixty-four." Norman came to this area 11 years ago from Ohio. He is a graduate of the U. S. Maritime Academy and spent 18 years traveling around the world as a ship's deck officer. He holds Master's Licenses for two countries.

The last year of his travels was spent teaching Finlanders how to operate merchant ships with American efficiency. Eighteen months ago he left the shipping industry to become an insurance broker and has his office at 73 Albany Avenue. He has been public relations chairman for Ulster County Chapter Red Cross for the past year. Norman belongs to the Ulster Kiwanis Club and is chairman of both public relations and special projects committees. For the past year he has been vice-president of Lake Katrine School Parent's Club, and of the Christian Business Men's Group. His main objective as speaker is to create a better public understanding of the work of the American Red Cross.

$120,000 Action Starts

An action for $120,000 has been commenced in the New York State Court of Claims before Judge Russell G. Hunt by a 16-year-old Bronx youth and his mother. Reuben Ortiz, an inmate of the New Hampton Training School in Orange County, seeks $100,000 and his mother seeks $20,000 for loss of services. It is alleged the boy's arm was mangled when it was caught in a washing machine in the correctional institution Sept. 2, 1960. He was washing clothes when his right arm got caught in the extractor. He was at the institution as a truant and has since been discharged.

Committee Takes Look At $19 Million Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Interior Committee takes its first formal look today at a bill to authorize more than $19 million in rehabilitation and damage payments to New York's Seneca Indians.

An interior subcommittee approved the measure last month to help the indians adjust to construction of the Allegheny River dam at Kinzua, Pa., and the reservoir it would back up to almost Salamanca, N.Y.

There was insufficient time then, however, for the full committee to consider the bill.

It includes $8 million to begin a Williamsburg-type restoration of Iroquois Indian culture on the Seneca reservation in western New York.

Monoxide Victim

MENDON, N.Y. (AP)—Robert H. Lebo, 50, of Rochester, died Tuesday of carbon monoxide poisoning. A Monroe County medical examiner listed the death as accidental.

State Police said Lebo's body was found in his automobile, which was parked alongside a road near his home. The motor of Lebo's car was running when he was discovered troopers said.

Thousands Still Visiting Grave Of J. F. Kennedy

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — They still come by the thousands to the peaceful slope overlooking the capital where John F. Kennedy lies buried.

Some pray. Some leave flowers. Some just stand silent with their thoughts. Some just come to be brushed by history, to say they've been there.

It was just two months ago today that he was assassinated, and three years and two days after he was inaugurated as the 35th and youngest president of the United States.

A spring-like rain and a warming sun had melted away most of the mantle of snow that had covered Arlington National Cemetery and the open hillside where the eternal flame burns over his grave.

Fresh evergreen boughs covered the base of the flame. There, on the boughs, were the military caps of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and special forces, tossed there the day they buried the commander-in-chief.

Among the boughs, too, were a rolled-up piece of paper tied with white ribbon, a bouquet of pink carnations, a nosegay of white chrysanthemums tied with red ribbon that faded pink on the snow.

Each evening, after cemetery gates are closed, the soldiers take from the boughs all the remembrances that people bring. They are put in a box to be given to the Kennedy family.

Mostly the visitors just stand there and look at the grave with sorrow in their eyes.

The trees were bare, and the long white rows of gravestones cast long shadows.

The jet planes droned overhead, and across another hill taps sounded for another man who had fought for his country and died.

Rocky Proposes $323 Million in Highway Projects

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A $323-million highway construction program was proposed today by Gov. Rockefeller, including $28.3 million for parkways and $22.6 million for grade-crossing elimination.

The governor's 1964-65 budget recommendation called for an increase of $5 million over the current fiscal year. It proposed the use of $196.1 million of federal funds.

The new budget, Rockefeller said, provides for letting $311.7 million in new contracts in the next year, $76.7 million more than last year.

An economy-minded Legislature last year forced reduction of recommended highway construction by $55 million.

Rockefeller added $200,000 to funds for removal of dead and diseased trees creating traffic hazards along state highways.

In his proposals for the Motor Vehicle Department, the governor recommended $151,000 for new plastic reflectorized stickers to replace the usual metal tabs to be affixed to 1965 registration plates. This would save $175,000, he estimated.

Referring to the centralization of Motor Vehicle Department operations and automated procedures, Rockefeller said this will permit tighter controls in issuing license renewals, increase highway safety and save considerable funds.

He estimated that 5.9 million registrations would be processed in 1964-65, a million more than this fiscal year.

Schoharie Board Drops Programs Of the Legion

SCHOHARIE, N.Y. (AP)—The Board of Education of the Schoharie Central School is once again at odds with the American Legion.

The board has voted to drop all programs sponsored by the Legion, it was reported Tuesday. No explanation was given, but a board member said privately the action was connected with continued Legion activity in the case of a student who refused to salute the American flag.

The dispute flared last September after the Legion asked the student, a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses, to return a Legion merit medal awarded him at the June 1963, graduation.

The pupil, Henry Jenner, had said he was unable under his father to salute the flag. He returned the medal. The school charged the Legion with discrimination at the time.

Grady went to school but was let out early because he'd finished his tests for the day.

On his way home, the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brumfield of suburban Metairie, was struck and killed by an automobile. Two schoolmates said he ran into the path of the vehicle.

Governor Asks $568,000 to Pay For State Probes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller asked the Legislature today to appropriate $568,000 for the State Investigation Commission for the next fiscal year, $32,000 lesss than the agency's appropriation for this year.

The request was contained in Rockefeller's annual budget proposal.

The four members of the controversial, bi-partisan commission were reappointed by the governor and Republican legislative leaders last week after prolonged uncertainty over the commission would be continued.

Members' terms will extend until April 30, 1965, when the life of the commission also is scheduled to end, under present law.

Income Tax Series No. 3 — Avoid Costly Errors

Taxpayers Can Save on 1963 Returns by Knowing Rules

EDITOR'S NOTE — You can commit costly errors in filing a return on 1963 income if you do not understand how to figure your tax. Here are the ground rules to follow in working out your tax. This is the third of five special articles.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

You may save on your 1963 income tax return by understanding the rules that apply to people figuring their own tax and the rules on husbands and wives, including their exemptions.

If your income was $5,000 or more you must figure your tax. You will find the tax rate which fits you in one of the schedules in the instruction sheet sent taxpayers by the Internal Revenue Service.

People with under $5,000 income, without figuring, can find their tax in a table also contained in the instruction sheet. They can also figure their own if for some reason, like big deductions, they save by it.

Rules on Tax Rates

The rules on the three tax rate schedules:

Single persons and married couples filing separately must use schedule No. 1, which has the highest tax rate.

Married people filing a joint return, and certain widows and widowers use Schedule No. 2, which has the lowest tax rate.

Unmarried or legallly separated people who qualify as "head of household" use schedule No. 3, which provides a lower tax than No. 1 but higher than No. 2.

Some rules on husbands and wives:

A husband and wife must both sign a return for it to be joint. A wife with $600 of income must, like anyone else with that much income, file a return, separately or jointly with her husband.

Most couples save by filing jointly because they can use schedule No. 2 with its lowest tax rate. In some special cases they save by separate returns, even though they have to use schedule No. 1, with its highest rate. If in doubt, figure your tax both ways.

Exemptions

Exemptions: $600 for yourself when you file a return and are under 65; $1,200 if you are over 65; an additional $600 if you're blind at any age. You get the same exemptions for your wife if she fits the rules.

If you're under 65 and had a taxable income of $600 or more you must file a return. If you're over 65 you don't have to file unless your income was $1,200 or more. The same goes for your wife.

When a husband and wife file jointly, each claims a $600 exemption on that joint return. If you and your wife file separately, you each claim your own $600 exemption on your separate returns.

When you file separately, both must accept the standard deduction without itemizing or, if one itemizes, then both must itemize and use Form 1040.

A single person or a couple filing jointly are allowed a standard deduction of 10 per cent of their income up to a limit of $1,000 for nonbusiness expenses.

This doesn't apply for married couples filing separately. In that case on their separate returns each can take the standard deduction of 10 per cent of income up to a limit of $500.

A wife without income doesn't have to file jointly with her husband or at all. The husband can file his own return and, in addition to his own $600 exemption, claim $600 for his wife. But he must use schedule No. 1.

If a no-income wife files jointly with her husband, each claims a $600 exemption on that joint return. And then both use schedule No. 2 with its lowest tax rate.

Some Special Rule

A wife with taxable income under $600 does not have to file a return. But now a special rule comes into force:

If a wife had any income at all, even though under $600, you can't claim a $600 exemption for her unless she files jointly with you. If she does, you use schedule No. 2. If she doesn't then you, filing separately, must use Schedule No. 1.

If she had under $600 income but files jointly with you, each of you must report your individual income but you can each claim a $600 exemption and use schedule No. 2.

Suppose a married couple file separate returns in 1962 and 1961 but now realize it cost them more than if they had filed jointly. They can correct the mistake by filing an amended joint return for those two years.

You were considered married for all of 1963 if you got married as late as Dec. 31, 1963. You were considered divorced for all of 1963 if you were divorced as late as Dec. 31, 1963.

Can't Claim Divorced Wife

You cannot claim an exemption for your divorced wife even though you paid more than half her support in 1963.

Rules on widows and widowers:

If your wife or husband died in 1963—and you did not remarry—in general you can claim a $600 exemption for her or him on your return—filed as a joint return—and use schedule No. 2. If she had income you must report it on your return.

You can also use schedule No. 2—even though your wife or husband died in 1962 or 1961—if you fit these requirements:

You must have been entitled to file a joint return with her for the year of her death; you have not married; you have a child or stepchild who qualifies as your dependent; and you furnish over half the cost of your home which is the principal residence of your child or stepchild.

If these conditions fit you, you can use schedule No. 2, listing your own income, exemptions and deductions. But you cannot claim an exemption for your deceased wife.

Head of Household

Rules on head of household: You can use schedule No. 3 if you fit these requirements:

You were unmarried or legally separated at the end of 1963 or were married by the end of 1963 to someone who for part of the year was a nonresident alien; you must have furnished over half the cost of your home which was the main residence for the year of yourself and your unmarried child, stepchild or grandchild, even though not a dependent of yours, or of any other relative you can claim as a dependent; or, if you paid more than half the cost of maintaining a home for your mother or father, if either can qualify as your dependent.

But you cannot claim you maintained a home for a parent if you were paying for him or her in a home for the aged.

Killed on Birthday

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Grady Brumfield was nine Tuesday. His family planned a birthday party Tuesday night to help him celebrate.

Grady went to school but was let out early because he'd finished his tests for the day.

On his way home, the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brumfield of suburban Metairie, was struck and killed by an automobile. Two schoolmates said he ran into the path of the vehicle.

Governor Asks $568,000 to Pay For State Probes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller asked the Legislature today to appropriate $568,000 for the State Investigation Commission for the next fiscal year, $32,000 lesss than the agency's appropriation for this year.

The request was contained in Rockefeller's annual budget proposal.

The four members of the controversial, bi-partisan commission were reappointed by the governor and Republican legislative leaders last week after prolonged uncertainty over the commission would be continued.

Members' terms will extend until April 30, 1965, when the life of the commission also is scheduled to end, under present law.

Taxpayers Can Save on 1963 Returns by Knowing Rules

EDITOR'S NOTE — You can commit costly errors in filing a return on 1963 income if you do not understand how to figure your tax. Here are the ground rules to follow in working out your tax. This is the third of five special articles.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

You may save on your 1963 income tax return by understanding the rules that apply to people figuring their own tax and the rules on husbands and wives, including their exemptions.

If your income was $5,000 or more you must figure your tax. You will find the tax rate which fits you in one of the schedules in the instruction sheet sent taxpayers by the Internal Revenue Service.

People with under $5,000 income, without figuring, can find their tax in a table also contained in the instruction sheet. They can also figure their own if for some reason, like big deductions, they save by it.

Rules on Tax Rates

The rules on the three tax rate schedules:

Single persons and married couples filing separately must use schedule No. 1, which has the highest tax rate.

Married people filing a joint return, and certain widows and widowers use Schedule No. 2, which has the lowest tax rate.

Unmarried or legallly separated people who qualify as "head of household" use schedule No. 3, which provides a lower tax than No. 1 but higher than No. 2.

Some rules on husbands and wives:

A husband and wife must both sign a return for it to be joint. A wife with $600 of income must, like anyone else with that much income, file a return, separately or jointly with her husband.

Most couples save by filing jointly because they can use schedule No. 2 with its lowest tax rate. In some special cases they save by separate returns, even though they have to use schedule No. 1, with its highest rate. If in doubt, figure your tax both ways.

Exemptions

Exemptions: $600 for yourself when you file a return and are under 65; $1,200 if you are over 65; an additional $600 if you're blind at any age. You get the same exemptions for your wife if she fits the rules.

If you're under 65 and had a taxable income of $600 or more you must file a return. If you're over 65 you don't have to file unless your income was $1,200 or more. The same goes for your wife.

When a husband and wife file jointly, each claims a $600 exemption on that joint return. If you and your wife file separately, you each claim your own $600 exemption on your separate returns.

When you file separately, both must accept the standard deduction without itemizing or, if one itemizes, then both must itemize and use Form 1040.

A single person or a couple filing jointly are allowed a standard deduction of 10 per cent of their income up to a limit of $1,000 for nonbusiness expenses.

This doesn't apply for married couples filing separately. In that case on their separate returns each can take the standard deduction of 10 per cent of income up to a limit of $500.

A wife without income doesn't have to file jointly with her husband or at all. The husband can file his own return and, in addition to his own $600 exemption, claim $600 for his wife. But he must use schedule No. 1.

If a no-income wife files jointly with her husband, each claims a $600 exemption on that joint return. And then both use schedule No. 2 with its lowest tax rate.

Some Special Rule

A wife with taxable income under $600 does not have to file a return. But now a special rule comes into force:

If a wife had any income at all, even though under $600, you can't claim a $600 exemption for her unless she files jointly with you. If she does, you use schedule No. 2. If she doesn't then you, filing separately, must use Schedule No. 1.

If she had under $600 income but files jointly with you, each of you must report your individual income but you can each claim a $600 exemption and use schedule No. 2.

Suppose a married couple file separate returns in 1962 and 1961 but now realize it cost them more than if they had filed jointly. They can correct the mistake by filing an amended joint return for those two years.

You were considered married for all of 1963 if you got married as late as Dec. 31, 1963. You were considered divorced for all of 1963 if you were divorced as late as Dec. 31, 1963.

Can't Claim Divorced Wife

You cannot claim an exemption for your divorced wife even though you paid more than half her support in 1963.

Rules on widows and widowers:

If your wife or husband died in 1963—and you did not remarry—in general you can claim a $600 exemption for her or him on your return—filed as a joint return—and use schedule No. 2. If she had income you must report it on your return.

You can also use schedule No. 2—even though your wife or husband died in 1962 or 1961—if you fit these requirements:

You must have been entitled to file a joint return with her for the year of her death; you have not married; you have a child or stepchild who qualifies as your dependent; and you furnish over half the cost of your home which is the principal residence of your child or stepchild.

If these conditions fit you, you can use schedule No. 2, listing your own income, exemptions and deductions. But you cannot claim an exemption for your deceased wife.

Head of Household

Rules on head of household: You can use schedule No. 3 if you fit these requirements:

You were unmarried or legally separated at the end of 1963 or were married by the end of 1963 to someone who for part of the year was a nonresident alien; you must have furnished over half the cost of your home which was the main residence for the year of yourself and your unmarried child, stepchild or grandchild, even though not a dependent of yours, or of any other relative you can claim as a dependent; or, if you paid more than half the cost of maintaining a home for your mother or father, if either can qualify as your dependent.

But you cannot claim you maintained a home for a parent if you were paying for him or her in a home for the aged.

VANISHING BREED?—Not here—America's tradition of hardy workhorses is still being kept strong in the northern woods of Maine. WHAT YOUR DIMES BUY

What is more pitiful than a child born with some crippling defect? What is more worth while than a cause whose purpose is to prevent and to find cures for the 600 kinds of environmental and hereditary defects of the central nervous system and skeletal structure which are known to exist?

These questions, and their obvious answers, are most pertinent now. For, during January, The National Foundation—March of Dimes is conducting its annual drive for funds. The organization is still concerned with the polio problem which was the reason for its creation. But now, due to the wonders of the vaccines, that problem has been largely solved. So the emphasis has been shifted to birth defects and its overall philosophy is found in the telling phrase "Human Rescue."

What do your dimes buy? The list is impressive. For one thing, they help to pay for research and special treatment centers, 70 in number, which are located in more than 60 of the nation's 85 medical schools. For another, the Salk Institute for Biological Studies was recently opened in San Diego and is in the process of completion. For a third, there is a very real hope that research and experiment will, perhaps fairly soon, produce an omnibus vaccine that will protect against all the viruses.

To give one more statistic, there are 11 million cases of arthritis and rheumatism, crippling and agonizing, among the people of this country. And your dimes go to help fight this scourge.

So give your dimes and give them, if vou can, by the handful.

HOME SAFETY RULES

Home Sweet Home, that supposed pillar of sanctuary, is the site of more injuries each year than our nation's highways, according to the American Medical Association.

On the average, about 26,000 Americans are accidentally killed in their homes each year and four million are injured. Most of these injuries and deaths occur through falls — the great majority among older people.

For the most part, these falls among older people occur at floor level, and in general, they are easily preventable. When you can answer Yes to the following questions, then you have set the pattern for safety proofing your home against accidents of the aging.

Do you have scatter rugs—those bright and cheerful magic carpets of death—fastened securely or provided with nonskid backing?

Do you have handrails of a proper height and strength on all stairways and steps and by the bath tub and commode?

Do you have for yourself or for visiting old people a comfortable, safe, stable chair with sturdy arms?

Do you have a light switch by the bed and flashlights at all needed areas?

Do you know that older people should sit a moment on the edge of the bed before rising; that they should stand still an instant after coming to their feet to prevent accidents from possible dizziness?

Do you know that a clean, orderly house, as free as possible of things to trip over, makes for the safest home for people of all ages?

50 YEARS OF AIR SERVICE

This month the air world celebrates the 50th anniversary of scheduled airline service.

In January, 1914, just 10 years and a few weeks after the Wrights flew at Kitty Hawk, pilot Tony Jannus took off in a Benoist Airboat with one passenger from St. Petersburg, Fla., and flew across the bay to Tampa. The St. Petersburg-Tampa Airboat Line carried 1,200 passengers during the three months it was in operation.

In 1963, reports the Air Transport Association of America, the nation's scheduled airlines carried almost 70 million passengers.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

ROCKY SHOULD HAVE CONSULTED NIXON

When he raised the shadow of the Alger Hiss case in one of his recent stump speeches in New Hampshire, Governor Nelson Rockefeller exhibited great courage—or possibly it was naivete. For the Hiss case has been an albatross to those who have touched it. Ask Richard Nixon, for instance.

What the New York Governor did, at least inferentially, was to accuse the U.S. government on its internal security job from 1945 to 1948. During that period Nelson Rockefeller served the Truman Administration in the State Department; it was as an Assistant Secretary of State that he went to San Francisco in 1945 to attend the conference which gave birth to the United Nations.

Pulling back the veil from his San Francisco experience, Governor Rockefeller told a New Hampshire audience that it was part of his job to meet each morning with the FBI to discuss security matters. "They came in one morning," so Rockefeller recalled, "and said, 'We have the goods on Alger Hiss.' He was then secretary general of the conference. This was in 1945, mind you. Long before anything else broke."

Nothing was done about Hiss at the time. As a matter of fact, the case had been smouldering ever since the beginning of World War II. It was during the period of the Nazi-Soviet Pact that Isaac Don Levine, a superior journalist, had taken Whittaker Chambers, an ex-Communist on the staff of Time magazine, to see Adolf Berle at the State Department in Washington. Chambers had warned Berle about Alger Hiss and other members of "Marxist study groups" who were employed by the U.S. government in sensitive spots. Berle passed the information on upwards, but nothing came of it. So, when the FBI informed Nelson Rockefeller that the secretary general of the United Nations' natal conference was a suspected menace, it was passing along some pretty old stuff. But it was not less potent for that.

Rockefeller's exhumation of the Hiss case might be considered as something that is neither here nor there, now that Alger Hiss has paid his penalty for perjury about his past. But Richard Nixon might have warned Rocky that to take the anti-Hiss side is apt to bring some subtle but nonetheless strong forces into play against a politician. Nixon has always felt that he both lived and died politically by his connection with Whittaker Chambers and Alger Hiss. He made his reputation when he pushed the investigation that forced the Hiss trials. But an impalpable malevolence has dogged Richard Nixon from that day to the present. As he made plain in his farewell speech to the press in California, he attributes it to Hiss case "fall-out."

With Nixon's career in mind, Rocky should know that there's no political pay dirt in virtually accusing the U. S. government of "sitting" on the Hiss case for some three years after 1945, to say nothing of the years between 1939 and the end of the war. But if it is courage that led Rocky to bring the matter up, then he deserves great credit for it.

This columnist has not been particularly in Rockefeller's corner. But when it comes to resisting euphoria whenever Khrushchev smiles, it should in all fairness be said that Rockefeller is by no means the least worthy of the Republican candidates for office. Said Rocky, to his New Hampshire partisans: "Don't let's kid ourselves. They (meaning the Communists)) have not abandoned their concepts or goals." And Rocky went on to describe the Communists and fellow-travelers he encountered in South America and Washington as thoroughly dedicated men who "believe they are going to dominate the entire world."

Rocky is currently wooing the labor unions. No doubt he would very much like to have Walter Reuther on his side. But Walter Reuther, in a memo to Attorney General Robert Kennedy, has said the time has passed for indulging in Communist-hunting and Communist-baiting in the U. S., and that those who do it are nothing more than reactionaries. Other people have earned Reuther's enmity for doing no less and no more than Rockefeller has done in New Hampshire.

Better watch out, Rocky. They'll be smearing you as a 'McCarthyite" yet.

Tuberculin Test Shows Degree of Immunity

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Does the tuberculin test show whether the tubercle bacillus is present anywhere in the body?

A—The tuberculin test shows whether or not a person has had enough contact with the tubercle bacillus to build up an immunity to it. If a person's test is positive, it may mean that he has some active tuberculosis, but is in the process of overcoming it. Far more often, it means that the battle has been won and all the soldiers have gone back to their families. In medical school we used to say, "Give us this day our daily tubercle bacillus." Mild exposure, if repeated often, is the best way to keep up the body's resistance to the disease. But even the resistant person can get the disease as a result of an overwhelming exposure. Fortunately we now have effective antituberculosis drugs that greatly facilitate the treatment of this disease.

Q—What would cause me to continue to have a sour stomach even after surgical removal of part of my stomach?

A—Unless you have a peptic ulcer, in which case the acid-forming glands in the stomach would put out too much acid, an overabundance of acid in itself would not cause any symptoms. On the other hand, if you regurgitate sour stomach contents after meals, this would taste sour even if the concentration of the acid were normal.

The cause of such regurgitation may be eating too fast, worry or nervous tension, failure to chew your food thoroughly or an allergy to one of the foods eaten. There are many antacids that you can take for temporary relief. If you have a great deal of trouble, you should have your doctor determine steps to eliminate it.

Q—You recently said that a tumor of the thymus is sometimes the cause of myasthenia gravis. What kind of test is given to determine whether you have a tumor of the thymus?

A—The thymus is a gland of uncertain function. It is now believed to be an important factor in helping the child develop immunity to various infections. It attains its largest size at puberty, after which it dwindles and almost disappears. It is located between the thyroid and the heart. Unless a thymus tumor is very large, it is likely to go unrecognized. When the thymus is enlarged, an X-ray of the chest may reveal displacement of other structures in that region. Even then it is hard to tell whether the gland is larger than normal because the dimensions of this gland are so variable.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Johnson uses the "dramatic unexpected" almost everywhere in government. National Aeronautics and Space Administration's administrator, James Webb, is one of the latest to feel the effects.

Normally all parts of the President's new budget are held officially secret until the whole document is handed to Congress. But NASA jumped the gun and announced its $5.3 billion request for fiscal 1965, along with a bid for $141 million in extra funds this year.

IT WAS NO ACCIDENT. A few days before NASA's announcement, Webb had a call from the White House. The upshot: The agency was authorized to break precedent and dispatch to Congress, ahead of everybody else, both its supplemental 1964 request and its 1965 figure.

The bustling around NASA was considerable. Officials decided that if Johnson wanted to do this, he probably wished to be well supplied with backup reasons. So they put together a five-page paper laying out the agency's achievements in the last few years.

When NASA cut its budget figures loose, the explanation it gave for department from standard procedure was simply that the President feels urgent action is required. Admittedly, the $141 million in extra money for 1964 is badly needed to maintain minimum momentum in the manned space flight programs — including the heralded moon shot.

But there seems to be a little more to it than this. President Johnson evidently wanted to demonstrate, by the device of attention-getting priority, his strong commitment to the late President Kennedy's moon shot timetable (target date 1970).

Last year Congress slashed nearly $600 million from the $5.7 billion Kennedy requested for NASA. The manned flight programs were slowed, and there are elements of slowdown and stretch-out in NASA's new budget.

SO, WHILE THE urgency of NASA's immediate needs appears real enough, Johnson has seized the occasion to dramatize his own concern for the space effort.

Though this a tight space budget as compared with last year, he is lined up against the program's critics who picture it as broadly wasteful of economic resources, scientific brains, technical manpower, and national energies.

He has put himself in the company of those defenders who argue not only that the space race with Russia is a competition we must win, but that this entire effort yields enlarging general benefits to the nation's economy.

As the President well understands, the word "space" has a magic ring to it in many parts of the country. Leaders in the South's rising economy either utter thanks that they have a slice of the program or voice hope that they soon will.

Many governors and their economic development men look upon space research and industry as a key to their states' growth. They try to gear their scientific and general educational effort to attract space dollars.

TODAY ALL BUT ONE or two states get some of those dollars, but the evidence of broad distribution is misleading.

As of last July 1, California, with $2.435 billion in contracts, had more than 40 per cent of space business, including research. Far down the line, Missouri was second with some $380 million. Following were New York, Louisiana, Florida, Alabama and Texas, the last with a little more than $100 million.

Debate may range over whether any measurable part of these outlays is misdirected and hence wasteful. But in the field, where 90 per cent of NASSA's money goes, the space push looks to many like the formula for the future.

Flood of Figures Last Few Days Are Found Meaningless

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — For the last three days, the American people, and particularly the news correspondents in Washington, have been deluged with an avalanche of figures. This has been designed to prove that the United States from 1961 to 1963 has gone through a period of unexampled prosperity and that even better times are ahead for 1964. But the figures given are not complete and in many respects are meaningless, if not misleading.

Thus, the "Gross National Product" — the phase supposed to describe the output of the whole economic system — is given in the President's economic report as reaching $623 billion in the year 1964. This is $259.9 billion above what it was in 1954, just a decade earlier.

But more than 40 per cent of this rise is due to higher prices. If compared with the prices of goods and services in 1954 and the value of the dollar at that time, the Gross National Product this year would not be $623 billion. It would be $517.4 billion, which is $154.3 billion above what it was ten years ago.

The President also points to corporate profits as having made a 44 per cent rise in the last three years. This, however, is from a low point in 1961 and is not based on any annual figures. He says that a further rise will come with the tax cut. But a study of the fine print in the same big volume of statistics handed to the press this week discloses that corporate profits are projected at 4.9 per cent of the gross national product for 1964. This l ess than what it has been in . of the 17 years since World War 2. Corporate profits went up as high as 8 per cent in those years. They were 6.2 per cent in the 1949 recession year and stood at 4.6 per cent in the economic setback of 1954, which is as high as they were in 1963 after two full years of "expansion."

The sad truth is that corporate profits as a total figure are meaningless. The entire private-enterprise system, even by the President's figures, will retain in 1964 only $30.5 billion after taxes. Profit margins are rarely examined in government reports, and the fact remains that the narrowness of many of these margins prevents the investment of capital and discourages the expansion projects through which jobs can be created for the people who need them.

Much of the difficulty in creating jobs is due to psychological barriers. There can, for example, be little confidence in the economic future as long as the dollar itself is unsound. Budgets have remained unbalanced almost continuously for many years now, and the cost of living has risen as the purchasing power of the dollar has gone down.

The assertion is made by the President that a tax cut now is necessary to stimulate the economy. But the economic report in some sections gives the impression that the economy is really riding high and doesn't need a tax cut as a stimulus. These viewpoints are contradictory.

The President, incidentally, threw a scare into business in his latest economic report to Congress when he emphasized his intention to take action against business men if they raise prices, but he did not offer any hint of governmental action with respect to wage demands that could substantially increase the cost of operating businesses in America.

The President stated that he would not hesitate to draw public attention "to major actions by either business or labor that flout the public interest in non-inflationary price and wage standards." But immediately thereafter, when he spoke of "action," he made only the following comment:

"And I shall translate into action the view:

"A. That antitrust policy must remain keenly alert to illegal price-fixing and other practices that impair competition.

"B. That we must resist new steps to legalize price-fixing where competition should prevail."

Not a word is said about "action" to curb higher wage demands or concerted steps by unions that virtually fix prices by setting industry-wide wage rates.

Another statement which the President made and which is causing many worries in the business world was the announcement of his decision to ask Congress to pass a law delegating a group of private citizens the right to impose penalties for overtime. This would be accomplished by authorizing "higher overtime penalty rates on an industry-by-industry basis where tripartite industry committees determine that such rates could create more jobs without unduly raising costs." This is like the NRA scheme of New Deal days which was declared unconstitutional in 1935.

Such controls, moreover, could mean an increase in expenses not only in wages paid but for all the indirect benefits that are based upon the wage scales. It constitutes an interference with the free-enterprise system which is reminiscent of the wage-and-hour controls which have been imposed in war time.

But the most disconcerting factor in the whole economic picture is the continuing deficits in the Federal budget and the intention of the United States Treasury to keep on borrowing money to make up for the loss in revenue that will arise when taxes are reduced.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

He is now ready. But the world isn't. He sits behind a front window, looking out, seeing nothing, and trying not to think. There are times when a blank mind is a virtue. Emil Herman, 59, a vigorous, intelligent man, wonders whether this is the end—or perhaps the beginning. He is unable to answer the question. Time will do it, but Mr. Herman has always been impatient with time.

From the sidewalk in front of 148 Williams Avenue, in Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. he cannot be seen. The house is a two-story frame, with neat shrubs and a straight driveway back to the garage. A pedestrian cannot see the man behind the window, nor read the torture of his mind. Like a dolorous litany, he says over and over: "I don't want pity. I don't want charity. I want a job."

The year 1963 started off pretty good for Emil Herman. He was, and is, one of the few all-around photographers in the business: a man who covered color layouts for magazines; spot news for The Daily Mirror; flew to Jerusalem to photograph the Easter shrines; once had a hole cut in the back of a bomber to take closeup shots of Arthur Godfrey in a jet; was invited by the President of the United States to photograph all the public rooms of the White House in color; snapped the kings, the princes, the movie stars, and the bums of the Bowery.

Now he is at dead stop. What happened to a proud man and a good career in one year? Ask me. I can tell you, because Emil Herman has been a good friend—an intimate friend—for many years. When I was an editor at Collier's Magazine, at Liberty, at Catholic Digest, I hired him for photographic work, not because he was a friend—no editor can afford that luxury—but because Herman is a perfectionist in his work.

On New Year's Eve 1963, we drank a toast to all the tomorrows. The good tomorrows. Emil Herman was working for The Daily Mirror. Overnight The Mirror went on strike. He had no salary; no job. I assured him that the strike would be over quickly. He assured me the contrary. "They're all nuts," he said. "The paper is losing money, so they pull a strike. You watch. It will drag on and on until both sides are bankrupt."

It cost Emil Herman $1,800. He has a son in college. He has a car to support. He has a wife, Kay, who has a silvery infectious laugh in the face of adversity; a woman who believes in him, as he does in her. Herman took a job in the Hasbrouck Heights post office to earn a little money. Kay was not too proud to go out and get a part-time job as a stenographer.

The strike finally ended. "The way I figure it," he said, "with the new raise, it is going to take years of work to make up what I lost."

He was hardly back in the job when Kay fell ill. Dr. Luke Mulligan broke the news to Emil Herman: Cancer of the breast. It might have broken the spirit of a smaller man — or even a smaller woman — but the Hermans fought it through. The operation was a success.

It would require more years of work to pay for it, but it was worth it. He got a healthy wife back, and Kay made jokes about her false figure. In October, the Daily Mirror died one night. Now he had no job, lots of talent and lots of debts.

The city was full of good photographers out of work. Top flight men who were running everywhere, willing to do anything, to keep their families together. Emil Herman went home. He packed his cameras, his light meters, his special lenses, and wrote notes to newspaper editors, to industrial companies, to press agents. He heard no echoes.

At Christmas, he paid a secret visit to Dr. Luke Mulligan. The doctor asked what the trouble was. Herman said he had a recurring pain the abdomen. "It's probably psychosomatic," he said, "just from having nothing to do." The doctor made a thorough examination, followed by tests. Then he broke the news bluntly, because Emil Herman is a man who must know the truth. He had cancer of the lower intestine. So, in one year, there were two cancers, a strike, and loss of job.

The operation constituted one more big debt on top of old ones. It was a success. Dr. Mulligan said: "He's safe. It was confined to the lower bowel. We did a cholostomy. Emil has a good future if anyone can keep him from cracking up under the strain."

Now he is home again. His strength has returned. Kay sets a good table. When their son comes in from college, they put on good smiles and they kid him about his marks and his girl-friends. There is no sign of despair, or even discouragement.

He was sitting behind the window when I walked in. He roused himself from his thinking. I asked how he felt. "Great," he said, lying. "How else would I feel? We had all our hard luck last year. Now let's take a look at this new one." . . .

WHAT YOUR DIMES BUY

What is more pitiful than a child born with some crippling defect? What is more worth while than a cause whose purpose is to prevent and to find cures for the 600 kinds of environmental and hereditary defects of the central nervous system and skeletal structure which are known to exist?

These questions, and their obvious answers, are most pertinent now. For, during January, The National Foundation—March of Dimes is conducting its annual drive for funds. The organization is still concerned with the polio problem which was the reason for its creation. But now, due to the wonders of the vaccines, that problem has been largely solved. So the emphasis has been shifted to birth defects and its overall philosophy is found in the telling phrase "Human Rescue."

What do your dimes buy? The list is impressive. For one thing, they help to pay for research and special treatment centers, 70 in number, which are located in more than 60 of the nation's 85 medical schools. For another, the Salk Institute for Biological Studies was recently opened in San Diego and is in the process of completion. For a third, there is a very real hope that research and experiment will, perhaps fairly soon, produce an omnibus vaccine that will protect against all the viruses.

To give one more statistic, there are 11 million cases of arthritis and rheumatism, crippling and agonizing, among the people of this country. And your dimes go to help fight this scourge.

So give your dimes and give them, if vou can, by the handful.

HOME SAFETY RULES

Home Sweet Home, that supposed pillar of sanctuary, is the site of more injuries each year than our nation's highways, according to the American Medical Association.

On the average, about 26,000 Americans are accidentally killed in their homes each year and four million are injured. Most of these injuries and deaths occur through falls — the great majority among older people.

For the most part, these falls among older people occur at floor level, and in general, they are easily preventable. When you can answer Yes to the following questions, then you have set the pattern for safety proofing your home against accidents of the aging.

Do you have scatter rugs—those bright and cheerful magic carpets of death—fastened securely or provided with nonskid backing?

Do you have handrails of a proper height and strength on all stairways and steps and by the bath tub and commode?

Do you have for yourself or for visiting old people a comfortable, safe, stable chair with sturdy arms?

Do you have a light switch by the bed and flashlights at all needed areas?

Do you know that older people should sit a moment on the edge of the bed before rising; that they should stand still an instant after coming to their feet to prevent accidents from possible dizziness?

Do you know that a clean, orderly house, as free as possible of things to trip over, makes for the safest home for people of all ages?

50 YEARS OF AIR SERVICE

This month the air world celebrates the 50th anniversary of scheduled airline service.

In January, 1914, just 10 years and a few weeks after the Wrights flew at Kitty Hawk, pilot Tony Jannus took off in a Benoist Airboat with one passenger from St. Petersburg, Fla., and flew across the bay to Tampa. The St. Petersburg-Tampa Airboat Line carried 1,200 passengers during the three months it was in operation.

In 1963, reports the Air Transport Association of America, the nation's scheduled airlines carried almost 70 million passengers.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

ROCKY SHOULD HAVE CONSULTED NIXON

When he raised the shadow of the Alger Hiss case in one of his recent stump speeches in New Hampshire, Governor Nelson Rockefeller exhibited great courage—or possibly it was naivete. For the Hiss case has been an albatross to those who have touched it. Ask Richard Nixon, for instance.

What the New York Governor did, at least inferentially, was to accuse the U.S. government on its internal security job from 1945 to 1948. During that period Nelson Rockefeller served the Truman Administration in the State Department; it was as an Assistant Secretary of State that he went to San Francisco in 1945 to attend the conference which gave birth to the United Nations.

Pulling back the veil from his San Francisco experience, Governor Rockefeller told a New Hampshire audience that it was part of his job to meet each morning with the FBI to discuss security matters. "They came in one morning," so Rockefeller recalled, "and said, 'We have the goods on Alger Hiss.' He was then secretary general of the conference. This was in 1945, mind you. Long before anything else broke."

Nothing was done about Hiss at the time. As a matter of fact, the case had been smouldering ever since the beginning of World War II. It was during the period of the Nazi-Soviet Pact that Isaac Don Levine, a superior journalist, had taken Whittaker Chambers, an ex-Communist on the staff of Time magazine, to see Adolf Berle at the State Department in Washington. Chambers had warned Berle about Alger Hiss and other members of "Marxist study groups" who were employed by the U.S. government in sensitive spots. Berle passed the information on upwards, but nothing came of it. So, when the FBI informed Nelson Rockefeller that the secretary general of the United Nations' natal conference was a suspected menace, it was passing along some pretty old stuff. But it was not less potent for that.

Rockefeller's exhumation of the Hiss case might be considered as something that is neither here nor there, now that Alger Hiss has paid his penalty for perjury about his past. But Richard Nixon might have warned Rocky that to take the anti-Hiss side is apt to bring some subtle but nonetheless strong forces into play against a politician. Nixon has always felt that he both lived and died politically by his connection with Whittaker Chambers and Alger Hiss. He made his reputation when he pushed the investigation that forced the Hiss trials. But an impalpable malevolence has dogged Richard Nixon from that day to the present. As he made plain in his farewell speech to the press in California, he attributes it to Hiss case "fall-out."

With Nixon's career in mind, Rocky should know that there's no political pay dirt in virtually accusing the U. S. government of "sitting" on the Hiss case for some three years after 1945, to say nothing of the years between 1939 and the end of the war. But if it is courage that led Rocky to bring the matter up, then he deserves great credit for it.

He says that a further rise will come with the tax cut. But a study of the fine print in the same big volume of statistics handed to the press this week discloses that corporate profits are projected at 4.9 per cent of the gross national product for 1964. This is less than what it has been in any of the 17 years since World War 2. Corporate profits went up as high as 8 per cent in those years. They were 6.2 per cent in the 1949 recession year and stood at 4.6 per cent in the economic setback of 1954, which is as high as they were in 1963 after two full years of "expansion."

The sad truth is that corporate profits as a total figure are meaningless. The entire private-enterprise system, even by the President's figures, will retain in 1964 only $30.5 billion after taxes. Profit margins are rarely examined in government reports, and the fact remains that the narrowness of many of these margins prevents the investment of capital and discourages the expansion projects through which jobs can be created for the people who need them.

Much of the difficulty in creating jobs is due to psychological barriers. There can, for example, be little confidence in the economic future as long as the dollar itself is unsound. Budgets have remained unbalanced almost continuously for many years now, and the cost of living has risen as the purchasing power of the dollar has gone down.

The assertion is made by the President that a tax cut now is necessary to stimulate the economy. But the economic report in some sections gives the impression that the economy is really riding high and doesn't need a tax cut as a stimulus. These viewpoints are contradictory.

The President, incidentally, threw a scare into business in his latest economic report to Congress when he emphasized his intention to take action against business men if they raise prices, but he did not offer any hint of governmental action with respect to wage demands that could substantially increase the cost of operating businesses in America.

The President stated that he would not hesitate to draw public attention "to major actions by either business or labor that flout the public interest in non-inflationary price and wage standards." But immediately thereafter, when he spoke of "action," he made only the following comment:

"And I shall translate into action the view:

"A. That antitrust policy must remain keenly alert to illegal price-fixing and other practices that impair competition.

"B. That we must resist new steps to legalize price-fixing where competition should prevail."

Not a word is said about "action" to curb higher wage demands or concerted steps by unions that virtually fix prices by setting industry-wide wage rates.

Another statement which the President made and which is causing many worries in the business world was the announcement of his decision to ask Congress to pass a law delegating a group of private citizens the right to impose penalties for overtime. This would be accomplished by authorizing "higher overtime penalty rates on an industry-by-industry basis where tripartite industry committees determine that such rates could create more jobs without unduly raising costs." This is like the NRA scheme of New Deal days which was declared unconstitutional in 1935.

Such controls, moreover, could mean an increase in expenses not only in wages paid but for all the indirect benefits that are based upon the wage scales. It constitutes an interference with the free-enterprise system which is reminiscent of the wage-and-hour controls which have been imposed in war time.

But the most disconcerting factor in the whole economic picture is the continuing deficits in the Federal budget and the intention of the United States Treasury to keep on borrowing money to make up for the loss in revenue that will arise when taxes are reduced.

Tuberculin Test Shows Degree of Immunity

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Does the tuberculin test show whether the tubercle bacillus is present anywhere in the body?

A—The tuberculin test shows whether or not a person has had enough contact with the tubercle bacillus to build up an immunity to it. If a person's test is positive, it may mean that he has some active tuberculosis, but is in the process of overcoming it. Far more often, it means that the battle has been won and all the soldiers have gone back to their families. In medical school we used to say, "Give us this day our daily tubercle bacillus." Mild exposure, if repeated often, is the best way to keep up the body's resistance to the disease. But even the resistant person can get the disease as a result of an overwhelming exposure. Fortunately we now have effective antituberculosis drugs that greatly facilitate the treatment of this disease.

Q—What would cause me to continue to have a sour stomach even after surgical removal of part of my stomach?

A—Unless you have a peptic ulcer, in which case the acid-forming glands in the stomach would put out too much acid, an overabundance of acid in itself would not cause any symptoms. On the other hand, if you regurgitate sour stomach contents after meals, this would taste sour even if the concentration of the acid were normal.

The cause of such regurgitation may be eating too fast, worry or nervous tension, failure to chew your food thoroughly or an allergy to one of the foods eaten. There are many antacids that you can take for temporary relief. If you have a great deal of trouble, you should have your doctor determine steps to eliminate it.

Q—You recently said that a tumor of the thymus is sometimes the cause of myasthenia gravis. What kind of test is given to determine whether you have a tumor of the thymus?

A—The thymus is a gland of uncertain function. It is now believed to be an important factor in helping the child develop immunity to various infections. It attains its largest size at puberty, after which it dwindles and almost disappears. It is located between the thyroid and the heart. Unless a thymus tumor is very large, it is likely to go unrecognized. When the thymus is enlarged, an X-ray of the chest may reveal displacement of other structures in that region. Even then it is hard to tell whether the gland is larger than normal because the dimensions of this gland are so variable.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

He is now ready. But the world isn't. He sits behind a front window, looking out, seeing nothing, and trying not to think. There are times when a blank mind is a virtue. Emil Herman, 59, a vigorous, intelligent man, wonders whether this is the end—or perhaps the beginning. He is unable to answer the question. Time will do it, but Mr. Herman has always been impatient with time.

From the sidewalk in front of 148 Williams Avenue, in Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. he cannot be seen. The house is a two-story frame, with neat shrubs and a straight driveway back to the garage. A pedestrian cannot see the man behind the window, nor read the torture of his mind. Like a dolorous litany, he says over and over: "I don't want pity. I don't want charity. I want a job."

The year 1963 started off pretty good for Emil Herman. He was, and is, one of the few all-around photographers in the business: a man who covered color layouts for magazines; spot news for The Daily Mirror; flew to Jerusalem to photograph the Easter shrines; once had a hole cut in the back of a bomber to take closeup shots of Arthur Godfrey in a jet; was invited by the President of the United States to photograph all the public rooms of the White House in color; snapped the kings, the princes, the movie stars, and the bums of the Bowery.

Now he is at dead stop. What happened to a proud man and a good career in one year? Ask me. I can tell you, because Emil Herman has been a good friend—an intimate friend—for many years. When I was an editor at Collier's Magazine, at Liberty, at Catholic Digest, I hired him for photographic work, not because he was a friend—no editor can afford that luxury—but because Herman is a perfectionist in his work.

On New Year's Eve 1963, we drank a toast to all the tomorrows. The good tomorrows. Emil Herman was working for The Daily Mirror. Overnight The Mirror went on strike. He had no salary; no job. I assured him that the strike would be over quickly. He assured me the contrary. "They're all nuts," he said. "The paper is losing money, so they pull a strike. You watch. It will drag on and on until both sides are bankrupt."

It cost Emil Herman $1,800. He has a son in college. He has a car to support. He has a wife, Kay, who has a silvery infectious laugh in the face of adversity; a woman who believes in him, as he does in her. Herman took a job in the Hasbrouck Heights post office to earn a little money. Kay was not too proud to go out and get a part-time job as a stenographer.

The strike finally ended. "The way I figure it," he said, "with the new raise, it is going to take years of work to make up what I lost."

He was hardly back in the job when Kay fell ill. Dr. Luke Mulligan broke the news to Emil Herman: Cancer of the breast. It might have broken the spirit of a smaller man — or even a smaller woman — but the Hermans fought it through. The operation was a success.

It would require more years of work to pay for it, but it was worth it. He got a healthy wife back, and Kay made jokes about her false figure. In October, the Daily Mirror died one night. Now he had no job, lots of talent and lots of debts.

The city was full of good photographers out of work. Top flight men who were running everywhere, willing to do anything, to keep their families together. Emil Herman went home. He packed his cameras, his light meters, his special lenses, and wrote notes to newspaper editors, to industrial companies, to press agents. He heard no echoes.

At Christmas, he paid a secret visit to Dr. Luke Mulligan. The doctor asked what the trouble was. Herman said he had a recurring pain the abdomen. "It's probably psychosomatic," he said, "just from having nothing to do." The doctor made a thorough examination, followed by tests. Then he broke the news bluntly, because Emil Herman is a man who must know the truth. He had cancer of the lower intestine. So, in one year, there were two cancers, a strike, and loss of job.

The operation constituted one more big debt on top of old ones. It was a success. Dr. Mulligan said: "He's safe. It was confined to the lower bowel. We did a cholostomy. Emil has a good future if anyone can keep him from cracking up under the strain."

Now he is home again. His strength has returned. Kay sets a good table. When their son comes in from college, they put on good smiles and they kid him about his marks and his girl-friends. There is no sign of despair, or even discouragement.

He was sitting behind the window when I walked in. He roused himself from his thinking. I asked how he felt. "Great," he said, lying. "How else would I feel? We had all our hard luck last year. Now let's take a look at this new one." . . .

Some of the most instructive bridge hands look elementary when you watch an expert play. Let's look at Ira Rubin's play of one of them.

Ira played dummy's jack of hearts at trick one. When it held the trick he led a diamond and finessed the nine. West took his king and made his best return of the nine of clubs.

Ira went right up with dummy's ace of clubs and finessed the diamond again. This worked and he cashed the ace. When this failed to drop the queen Ira went after club's and wound up with two spades, two hearts, two diamonds and three clubs.

All very elementary, but let's study Ira's reasons for adopting this line of play. Why did he play second hand high at trick one? Because he could derive no benefit from that jack of hearts if he did not play it then and there.

Why did he attack diamonds instead of clubs at trick two? Because he did not want to let East into the lead and an unsuccessful club finesse would give East the lead.

Why did he go right up with dummy's ace of clubs at trick three? Because he wanted the lead in dummy, not in his own hand, and because he was certain that West had not led from the queen of clubs. Why did he take that second diamond finesse? because he didn't mind losing it. West would be back in the lead and have nothing good to lead.

Says Report May Cut N.Y. 'Take' On Smoke Taxes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller concluded today that a recent federal report that smoking was injurious to health might halt the steady growth of New York cigarette tax receipts.

The governor estimated in his proposed 1964-65 budget that the five-cents - a - package tax would net $127 milllion, the same figure applying to the current year. This contrasted to an official guess that New Yorkers would pay the state $5.6 million more in liquor levies.

Revenue from the cigarette tax normally swells about $9 million a year.

The governor estimated at $64 million revenue from the alcoholic beverage tax in the next year, compared with $62.4 million in the current year. This is an increase of $1.6 million.

Levies on alcohol-control licenses will bring about $56 million this year and Rockefellller estimated next year's revenue at $60 million.

Governor Moves To Bolster N.Y. Meat Inspection

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller moved today to bolster the state's meat-inspection program, which underwent a sharp trimming last year.

The governor's budget proposed appropriation of $692,000 for the work in the next fiscal year. This is $217,000 more than last year, when the Legislature's financial cleaver lopped off $1,716,000 for an expanded program.

Since March 1, 1963, the state has beeen responsible for inspection of all slaughterhouses and meat plants not inspected by federal or New York City inspectors.

The $475,000, Rockefeller said, was insufficient to carry out fully the requirements of the law and inspections were limited to slaughtering plants previously inspected by local health units.

Wine Tempest Ferments

MAINZ, Germany (AP) — A sort of tempest in a wine barrel is fermenting between France and West Germany.

The French have proposed a series of "administrative regulations" to control the quality of wines produced in the six-nation European Common Market.

West German wine makers claim it is an attempt to make all European wine brands French. They say they will fight against "a uniform for European wines."

Poll Favors DeGaulle

PARIS (AP) — A poll shows President Charles de Gaulle's popularity on the upswing.

The latest survey of the French Public Opinion Institute showed 56 per cent of the persons queried said they were "satisfied" with De Gaulle as against 51 per cent at the end of November.

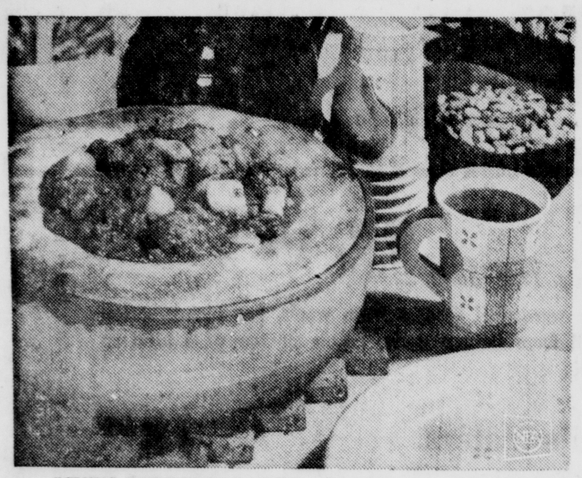
FOOD FOR AMERICANS

Casserole Mohican Satisfies Teeners



LIVEN TEENERS' PARTY with Casserole Mohican.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Teenagers automatically think of food after sports or a dance. They like to invite the gang home for an impromptu party.

Smart mothers welcome this situation with a smile. Against the "surprises" they stock the cuboard with inexpensive convenience foods and paper food service, ready to meet such occasions.

In no time, the teens themselves can prepare a hearty, one-dish meal that is both satisfying and delicious. Caserole Mohican, created from cans of stew, beef gravy and seasonings, is wreathed in a rich brown crust made from corn bread mix. During oven time, peanut and chip snacks ward off hunger pangs.

Service is set up buffet style, with colorful paper cups, plates and napkins within easy reach. Best of all, paper service offers "built-in" maid service. Dishwashing becomes a simple matter of tossing the used plates and cups into a kitchen waste container.

For such teen-age surprise forays, keep a supply of canned peanuts, assorted cookies, packaged chips and hard candies on hand, as well as canned ingredients for main dishes.

CASSEROLE MOHICAN

2 1-lb., 14oz. cans meat ball stew
1 10¼-oz. can beef gravy
1 teaspoon basil
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 10-oz. box corn bread mix
1 egg
½ cup milk

Spoon meat ball stew into a 3½ to 4 quart casserole. Add beef gravy and seasonings, mixing in gently. Prepare corn bread mix with egg and milk as directed on the package. Squeeze mixed batter from plastic bag to form a border around edge of stew. Bake in a 425-degree (hot) oven for 30-40 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—American businessmen actively engaged in foreign trade foresee a moderate improvement this year in the chronic U.S. balance of payments deficit to just under $2 billion. They expect both exports and imports to rise to new highs.

Proposals May Help

President Johnson's budget proposals may aid in this in the final six months of the year. He is asking Congresss for $3.4 billion in new foreign aid funds in the fiscal year starting July 1, the lowest request since 1948. And, more importantly perhaps he is promising further economies in other forms of dollar outflows from government programs.

The businessmen's estimates of increased trade also seem in line with the President's assessment of gains to be achieved in upcoming trade negotiations:

"The United States' 30 - year campaign to reduce barriers to world trade will reach a climax in 1964. United States industry and agriculture are in excellent condition to seize the new opportunities offered by trade liberalization and to weather the adjustments that may be required.'"

The businessmen's prediction of a $1.9-billion deficit in 1964 —the seventh consecutive deficit in the nation's international accounts — is contained in the 13th annual outlook report of the balance of payments group of the National Foreign Trade Council.

The group of foreign traders and bankers estimates the 1963 deficit at $2.6 billion, as measured by the annual changes in U.S. gold and convertible currency holdings and in liquid liabilities.

U.S. Also Will Gain

The 40 experts see exports of commercial goods rising to $22.7 billion in 1964 from $21.7 billion in 1963, and imports going to $18 billion from the 1963 figure of $16.9 billion. This would give a neat $4.7-billion trade surplus for the United States, about the same as last year.

Whittling down this trade surplus will be foreign aid spending, costs of military forces abroad, government loans and private capital investment abroad.

But the United States will also gain from income on its private investments abroad and by charges for services.

The group figures that altogether the United States will send $34.9 billion abroad and get $33 billion back. The resulting $1.9-billion deficit would be a welcome drop from the $3.9 billion in 1960, and the $3.7 billion in 1959.

In his report to Congress the President stresses "continued price stability and export promotion to maintain or improve the competitive position of our exports."

The foreign traders agree that the danger of the United States pricing itself out of world markets is less important today than formerly. They see as this year's chief competitive factors increasing technological advances abroad and the ability of foreign manufacturers to deliver goods more rapidly.

Cognac Goes Abroad

PARIS (AP) — France exported a record 45 million bottles of cognac during 1961-62, the National Bureau of Cognac reports.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Joe Tubby, the custodian of the Rondout Savings Bank, Broadway and Mill Street, showed me a very interesting little item he carries in his wallet. It is a little West Shore railroad, (Rosendale to New Paltz,) ticket, dated 1929, which had never been canceled. The train fare from Rosendale to New Paltz in 1929 was 26 cents. Mr. Tubby is himself an old railroad man, having worked for some years as a brakeman on the old Wallkill Valley, which I thought would interest other old time railroad men who visit the Rondout Savings Bank.

The other day I made mention of Mrs. Terwilliger, and her father, both school teachers, who were so beloved by their students. Miss Elizabeth Elmendorf, teacher at the George Washington School, telephoned me, and asked if I would mention, Miss Nellie E. M. McGrath, who used to live at 18 Clinton Avenue, and taught for many years at School No. 8, when Mr. Shear was superintendent. Miss McGrath died, December 1962, at the age of 90. Miss Elmendorf knew her well for they taught across the hall from each other. Miss McGrath was known as an expert in teaching reading to small children, and it seems she was even asked to demonstrate her successful methods in other schools. No doubt former students remember Miss McGrath, who helped them enjoy the written word. She taught in the second and third grades, I understand.

Miss Elmendorf, reminded me, how I had written about her grandfather, Mr. Onslow some time ago, about his talents. Her mother, Annie Onslow, was a teacher in a little schoolhouse, on the hill in Port Ewen near the Polhemus fruit farm. I think the building is now a private residence.

Miss Elmendorf told me, how she encourages her students to look up a new word each day, at home. She was also telling me, that many parents are buying new colorful, highly illustrated encyclopedia, one book at a time at food markets, and the children seem to enjoy them. They cover the latest on scientific achievements. She also told me, that some comic book companies are now taking up famous classic series, and putting them out in pictures, easy and interesting for the children to read and enjoy. I have seen some of these, one on Lincoln, where I learned for the first time, how Lincoln was taking down some merchandise on a large raft, with a friend of his, and at night he was attacked by vicious robbers. Lincoln and his friend not only had to fight to save their freight and money, but for their lives.

This book on tht life of Lincoln, is highly illustrated in bright colors. It shows how, when still in his 'teens, he built a scow at the mouth of the Anderson Creek, to carry passengers on the Ohio River. In his 20th year, young Abe built a flat-boat for a wealthy farmer, James Gentry, to carry freight down river to New Orleans. This was made of heavy oak planks. Great strength such as Lincoln had was needed to fight the strong current or sudden squall of wind which threatened to drive the home-made clumsy craft against the riverbank. At night he or the other one man on the boat had to watch they were not run down by other craft. They signalled by swinging a lantern or a burning stick. So tired from not enough sleep and too much work they pulled into a plantation wharf, and with stout clubs at their side, they went to sleep, to be attacked by these looters, seven of them, like dark shadows. Lincoln and his friend, Gentry, fought them off, but carried scars of this battle to their graves.

Extra Revenue Needed

Rocky Urges Tax Speedup on Fees

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller asked the Legislature today to require business firms to pay their taxes earlier as a device for producing an extra $175 million in state revenue.

He also proposed to drop the practice of giving a discount for prompt payment of the tax on estates, a move that he said would net another $5 million in the new fiscal year.

Covers Firms, Banks

Rockefeller spelled out details of his business-tax speedup in his annual budget message. He said he needs the extra revenue to balance his $2.92 - billion spending plan for fiscal 1964-65.

In simple terms, Rockefeller's plan would require about 25,000 large corporations and 7000 banks to estimate and pay their state tax on earnings in the same year they earn the money, rather than paying the following year.

In the second phase, about 50,000 large unincorporated businesses would be put on a quarterly payment system instead of an annual basis. They, tooo, would have to pay in the same year they earn the money, rather than settling with the state the next year.

The new system would go into effect immediately. The first estimates on 1964 taxes would have to be filed in March and April and the first payments on those estimates would be due in July.

The proposed law would exempt corporations and banks whose estimated annual tax was less than $1,000. This would exclude about 225,000 smaller corporations and about 140 small banks, the governor's office said.

Rockefeller said in his budget message that the speedup was designed to put businesses and banks on a current payment system, in line with the policy set in 1959 when personal-income taxpayers were placed under the payroll-withholding system.

Before 1959, income taxpayers were required to file and pay each April 15 the taxes due on their earnings during the previous year. Now the tax is withheld from weekly earnings.

Unincorporated businesss still pay on the old basis. Under Rockefeller's plan, they would have to file quarterly estimates and pay each quarter's taxes in April, July, September and January.

Corporations and banks would make similar payments twice a year, in March and September. Under the current system, they pay in March the full tax due on the previous year's earnings.

To ease the initial impact, all business firms affected would be permitted—this year only—to delay payment of their first 1964 estimates until July 15.

By speeding up payments, Rockefeller expects to gain an additional $150 million from the corporation franchise and bank taxes and $25 million from the unincorporated businesss tax during the fiscal year that begins March 1.

Six Women Sworn As Jury to Try 3 Kingston Youths

A jury of six women was sworn in shortly before noon today by Justice of the Peace Edmund Bower, Town of Hurley for the so-called shotgun spree trial of three Kingston youths.

A foreman of the jury was scheduled to be appointed by Judge Bower or selected by the jurors when the trial resumed this afternoon.

The Freeman was told that the six women sworn as jurors were Dagne Grunland, Alvina Boice, Mabel Rowse, Myrtle Brown, Viola Cudney and Eva Harder. A panel of 40 jurors had been called but many produced legal excuses.

The defendants are Jay Warner Stanley, 23, of 1 Cottage Row; Terry Curtis, 24, of 23 West Pierpont Street and John Dunn, 22, of 4 Tietjen Avenue. The charge is that the three youths, in company with three others drove about the city and adjoining area discharging firearms last Nov. 17.

The trial is being held in the Hurley Firehall. Hubert A. Richter is attorney for the defendants and Assistant District Attorney Robert A. MacKinnon appears for the prosecution.

Dismiss Hudson Gambling Charges

In city court in Hudson Tuesday, a variety of gambling charges against three Hudson residents and one Athens man were dismissed. The charges resulted from a state police gambling raid in Hudson last summer.

Charles Mahota, Mrs. Rita Laurella and Charles Friss of Hudson and James Apa of Athens were charged with violating the gambling law. On motion of defense attorney the information against the four was dismissed by City Judge Harold Liberman, on the basis of a County Court decision that ordered all search warrants be vacated and all evidence be supressed and returned to the defendants.

Looks Like Year

more than the $325 million allotted last year to start development of the Nike-X and to continue testing the companion Nike Zeus antimissile.

It was only a year ago that the late President John F. Kennedy approved the Nike-X project and the indications are that progress has been swift.

"We will get some test results in the course of calendar 1964," officials said.

Informed sources reported a key element in the Nike-X system—a superfast missile called Sprint—would be test fired for the first time in April or thereabouts.

The Army will have to overcome the skepticism of McNamara and Dr. Harold Brown, the Pentagon's research and engineering director.

Kennedy reflected their doubts last August when he told a news conference he thought the problems of developing an effective defense against missile attack "is beyond us and beyond the Soviets technically."

City Tax Rate Is $67.98 . . .

and chairman of the finance committee, I feel the people of this city are interested and concerned with the financial problems of their municipal government, and deserve to know the intensions of the majority party in regard to the mayor's proposal for non-property tax relief to the overburdened property owner

Proud of Leadership

"First of all, we Republicans are both proud and deeply grateful for the mayor's courage of leadership in facing up to the financial problems of our city government. He has recommended a course of action he knew would be painful to a few, unpopular with many, but on the whole, fair and equitable to the broadest majority of our citizens, and absolutely necessary for the stability of our tax structure.

"We of the majority party recognize the needs he has outlined for us. We know that some form of additional revenue source must be tapped to provide pay increases for deserving city employees, and to permit expansion of city services. We recognize too his belief that the property taxpayer has about reached the limit of endurance, and must be relieved of part of his burden by the establishment of non-property taxes payable by all citizens.

"We know that he asked last year's Common Council to study non-property tax methods, and we know that he received no cooperation from the majority then in control.

Too Important to Rush

"And, after two weeks of study, we know that non-property tax methods are a very involved and highly technical matter that cannot be rushed through the legislative mill.

"Therefore, we have found ourselves in a position where we must conduct the research on non-property taxation that should have been completed by the past Common Council.

"If we are to live up to our responsibility to the people, we must first make sure that all avenues of non-property taxation have ben explored, and, this includes the proposal of a county sales tax.

"Accordingly, the finance commitee will not report out the two local laws on non-property taxes, but continue to study both proposals carefully, as well as all other possibilities for equitable non-property taxation, in the hope that it may find a solution to the financial revenue problems the mayor has outlined in his annual message.

In the meantime, the 1964 budget must be approved if the city is to have the necessary funds to operate, and any further delay will result in additional tax anticipation borrowing and extra interest charges which we cannot afford.

Views of Minority Leader

Minority Leader Howard, dealing with the budget, said:

"The mayor's budget for 1964 has a tax increase of $5.33 per thousand. With this increase are the taxpayers going to receive any better service?

"The police department is still six men short. There is no provision for a salary increase for this department, which would certainly make this job more appealing. When Mayor Schwenk took office two years ago, he was handed over a full complement of 61 men. At the present time the police department is extremely short of personnel. In fact, I would like to ask the mayor, or a police commissioner, just how much protection the city has at night.

"The fire department, another department, which provides for our safety, is also undermanned. As per state law the work week is to be reduced to 48 hours. This requires additional men to be put on. This is not included in the 1964 budget.

"We have an increase in revenue due to a decrease in population. Other mayors of the state are presently applying pressure to the state legislature for an increase in state per capita aid. The revenue obtained by the state through additional taxes (other fees) has increased tremendously over the past few years. Yet no adjustment in state per capita aid has been forthcoming. It would appear from this budget, that the mayor is not making the necessary overtures to the Republican state legislature for the necessary adjustment in state aid.

Cites County Tax

"City share of county highway charges has been increased from $123,000 to $142,000, an increase of over $17,000. Can anyone voting here tonight tell me why. Especially since the city is housing the biggest portion of the highway department tax free.

"The quota of county charges has been increased by $60,000. I would like to be informed why."

Norton's Comment

Alderman Edward Norton (D) Seventh Ward said: "For the past two weeks I have been studying in detail the proposed budget for the City of Kingston for the year 1964. I am definitely opposed to the budget as prepared by Mayor John Schwenk, and I object to the proposed $5.33 tax rate increase for many reasons.

"However, my main objection to this increase is that the taxpayers of the City of Kingston are being asked to pay the largest single increase in years, and yet are being asked to accept curtailment of the services in all of our city departments. I feel strongly that this is unfair to all of the taxpayers of the City of Kingston. The police and fire departments are not up to their full table of organizations, are carrying a heavier work load, and did not receive the pay increases they so justly deserve.

"The City of Kingston Recreation Dept. is being forced to accept over a $12,000 cut in funds appropriated. Our Department of Public Works is expected to provide essential services with obsolete equipment as well as curtailed manpower.

"I feel that Mayor John Schwenk has failed in his duties regarding his promise to keep taxes lower in the City of Kingston and that the past two years of his administration have lacked the foresight and knowledge of the many problems affecting our great city."

Mancuso Opposed

Peter Mancuso (D) Eighth Ward, said:

"In response to the many people I have spoken to, either by phone, or personally, I wish to express their sentiments and mine.

"It appears that when a mayor submits or proposes a $5.33 tax rate increase, that the budget should reflect some increased services to the residents of the city.

"I have scrutinized this budget, and nowhere does it show any increase of services by the police department, fire department, or BPW."

"It is particularly disturbing to note a $12,000 decrease in the services of the recreation department.

"In view of these, I see no other recourse than to vote no."

Discussion of the budget brought some aldermen close to verbal flareups, and Alderman-at-Large Carroll, banged the gavel and warned: "I will not tolerate such outbursts in this council, and you better get the record straight right now."

Replies to Democrats

Machione, in reply to Democratic criticism, said, "It is very interesting to hear the Democrats come out for raises. As I recall it was a big issue here some time ago." The mayor, he held, provided for the first salary raises in six years. He noted that while it was reported at the recent public hearing that policemen and firemen in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie have received pay raises, nothing was said about the fact that both cities have new means of raising taxes.

Alderman Gallo emphasized before close of the session that he asked to bring the proposed new tax proposals out of committee, in effect, to show where the aldermen stood. "We are elected by and for and to be with the people, and let us not be political puppets for anyone," he said.

Democrats, in opposing rules of the council, asked for the word "unanimous" in one dealing with consent of the council president, majority and minority leaders, and requiring their approval for waiving the rule which requires all matters to go before the council to be filed on the Wednesday before the meeting.

They opposed a section stating that resolutions affecting duties "delegated to any and all departments of the city government by statute, shall not be in order," contending that all departments should stand questioning, and a system of check and balance should be permitted.

Change of another rule requiring certain matters to be left to the discretion of the council president, they proposed should read: "Said request shall be approved by a member of the council and countersigned by both the majority and minority party leaders."

They asked addition of a section providing that "all discussions on proposed motions and/or resolutions shall be held and and completed before start of a vote." This they held, would avoid confusion.

Left with the traffic committee by Alderman Howard was a petition bearing 49 names. It asked:

1. That alternate side parking be fully enforced for a 24-hour period on Prospect Street between Greenkill Avenue and St. James Street. It would be based on odd and even number calendar days and odd and even number sides of the streets from 8:30 a. m. to 8:30 a. m.

2. Cooperation from the department of public works so that snow removal would coincide with parking regulations. This would do away with excess snow at intersections.

3. That, if at the end of 90 days, residents of the street feel the system is not working, that the street be returned to the present system of parking.

4. That cardboard signs be placed on odd and even number sides of the street noting parking time. Such signs are economical, and have been found acceptable in Poughkeepsie, it was noted.

Could Hear Better

Alderman Donald Tucker (R) Fourth Ward, said he had received favorable reports from people attending the recent public hearing "on the fact that they could hear all that was going on in the council chamber" because of the use of a public address system.

As chairman of the building committee, he said, "I am having the city clerk investigate, and if possible, try out a couple of different inexpensive PA systems to be used in the council chamber."

Dies of Injuries, Becomes Second County Fatality

John J. Paul, 49, of Ellenville, golf course superintendent at Nevele Country Club, Ellenville, died Tuesday at Veterans Memorial Hospital in that village as a result of injuries sustained in a highway accident on Route 209 on January 12.

He became Ulster County's second highway fatality of 1964.

Called Accidental

Following an autopsy, Coroner Arthur Chipp gave a verdict of accidental death. Ellenville state police in a report of that date said Mr. Paul was in a traffic mishap on Route 209 near the Nevele. He told police that he blacked out, lost control of the car which struck a utility pole.

He was a member of the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America, Connecticut Golf Course Superintendents Association, the New York Southern Tier Golf Course Superintendents Association, and the Professional Golfers Association of America.

A native of Beckley, Conn., he was born Nov. 22, 1914, a son of Frank and Anna Pisco Paul. He was married Jan. 16, 1946 at Hartford, Conn., to the former Evelyn Stewart.

During World War II, he served in the First Division with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Surviving are his wife; a brother Frank of New Britain, Conn.; four sisters, Mrs. Ann Hamlin of Kensington, Conn., Mrs. Rose Buck of Manchester, Conn., Mrs. Helen Bishop of Middletown, Conn., Mrs. Susanne Edwards of College Point. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

Mass at Ellenville

A requiem Mass will be offered at St. Mary's and St. Andrew's Church, Ellenville at 11 a. m. Thursday with the Rev. Walter G. Fagan officiating. Burial will be in the Wallkill Valley Cemetery, Walden.

Friends may call at the Loucks Funeral Home Inc., 79 North Main Street, Ellenville, tonight. Recitation of the Rosary will be at the funeral home tonight 8 o'clock. Contributions may be made to the Veterans Memorial Hospital Building Fund, Ellenville.

Democrats Favor

session were: Aaron E. Klein, Ulster; Albert L. Hecht, Dutchess; Larry Novak, Columbia; James O'Connell, Greene, and Robert Schaeffer, Schoharie.

No Official Endorsement

There was no official endorsement for the Congressional nomination at the session, but each county chairman said Resnick's name would be recommended at Democratic county committee meetings to be held in the immediate future.

A party spokesman said that the county chairmen are expected to meet in general session within three weeks, to discuss potential candidates for Congress, and to make a final determination.

It was noted that Resnick is making his first bid for major public office. A party spokesman said that those attending the Tuesday afternoon meeting were impressed by the qualifications of Resnick and indicated they were "heartily in favor" of the Ellenville business executive as the party nominee to oppose Wharton.

Good Farm Background

Democratic leaders pointed out that Resnick not only is one of the leading business men in the area, but he also has a remarkable farm background, which party spokesmen contend coincide with requirements to best represent the people of the district in Congress.

Resnick, was born and raised on a farm in the Oak Ridge section of Ellenville.

Usually, the 28th District goes Republican in Congress by more than 40,000 votes. Four years ago, Gore Vidal, noted playwright, running on the Democratic ticket, was defeated by Representative Wharton by some 24,000 votes.

See Rocky Maneuver

Meanwhile, the Knickerbocker News said yesterday that Governor Rockefeller is seen as the power behind a maneuver through which his cousin Alexander Aldrich, a resident of Columbia County, which is part of the 28th Congressional District, would run for the congressional seat now held by Wharton.

The idea is to name a State Supreme Court justice from Schoharie County, where Wharton lives, and to stipulate that Schoharie County could not also have the congressional seat, the newspaper said.

Columbia and Schoharie Counties are part of the Third Judicial District, where a Supreme Court justice must be chosen to succeed the late Kenneth S. MacAffer, Albany Republican.

T. Paul Kane, former Schoharie County district attorney, has been mentioned for the judicial post.

Wharton has not indicated whether he wants to retire.

Extra Revenue Needed

Rocky Urges Tax Speedup on Fees

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) -- Gov. Rockefeller asked the Legislature today to require business firms to pay their taxes earlier as a device for producing an extra $175 million in state revenue.

He also proposed to drop the practice of giving a discount for prompt payment of the tax on estates, a move that he said would net another $5 million in the new fiscal year.

Covers Firms, Banks

Rockefeller spelled out details of his business-tax speedup in his annual budget message. He said he needs the extra revenue to balance his $2.92 - billion spending plan for fiscal 1964-65.

In simple terms, Rockefeller's plan would require about 25,000 large corporations and 7000 banks to estimate and pay their state tax on earnings in the same year they earn the money, rather than paying the following year.

In the second phase, about 50,000 large unincorporated businesses would be put on a quarterly payment system instead of an annual basis. They, tooo, would have to pay in the same year they earn the money, rather than settling with the state the next year.

The new system would go into effect immediately. The first estimates on 1964 taxes would have to be filed in March and April and the first payments on those estimates would be due in July.

The proposed law would exempt corporations and banks whose estimated annual tax was less than $1,000. This would exclude about 225,000 smaller corporations and about 140 small banks, the governor's office said.

Rockefeller said in his budget message that the speedup was designed to put businesses and banks on a current payment system, in line with the policy set in 1959 when personal-income taxpayers were placed under the payroll-withholding system.

Before 1959, income taxpayers were required to file and pay each April 15 the taxes due on their earnings during the previous year. Now the tax is withheld from weekly earnings.

Unincorporated businesss still pay on the old basis. Under Rockefeller's plan, they would have to file quarterly estimates and pay each quarter's taxes in April, July, September and January.

Corporations and banks would make similar payments twice a year, in March and September. Under the current system, they pay in March the full tax due on the previous year's earnings.

To ease the initial impact, all business firms affected would be permitted--this year only--to delay payment of their first 1964 estimates until July 15.

By speeding up payments, Rockefeller expects to gain an additional $150 million from the corporation franchise and bank taxes and $25 million from the unincorporated businesss tax during the fiscal year that begins March 1.

Six Women Sworn As Jury to Try 3 Kingston Youths

A jury of six women was sworn in shortly before noon today by Justice of the Peace Edmund Bower, Town of Hurley for the so-called shotgun spree trial of three Kingston youths.

A foreman of the jury was scheduled to be appointed by Judge Bower or selected by the jurors when the trial resumed this afternoon.

The Freeman was told that the six women sworn as jurors were Dagne Grunland, Alvina Boice, Mabel Rowse, Myrtle Brown, Viola Cudney and Eva Harder. A panel of 40 jurors had been called but many produced legal excuses.

The defendants are Jay Warner Stanley, 23, of 1 Cottage Row; Terry Curtis, 24, of 23 West Pierpont Street and John Dunn, 22, of 4 Tietjen Avenue. The charge is that the three youths, in company with three others drove about the city and adjoining area discharging firearms last Nov. 17.

The trial is being held in the Hurley Firehall. Hubert A. Richter is attorney for the defendants and Assistant District Attorney Robert A. MacKinnon appears for the prosecution.

Dismiss Hudson Gambling Charges

In city court in Hudson Tuesday, a variety of gambling charges against three Hudson residents and one Athens man were dismissed. The charges resulted from a state police gambling raid in Hudson last summer.

Charles Mahota, Mrs. Rita Laurella and Charles Friss of Hudson and James Apa of Athens were charged with violating the gambling law. On motion of defense attorney the information against the four was dismissed by City Judge Harold Liberman, on the basis of a County Court decision that ordered all search warrants be vacated and all evidence be supressed and returned to the defendants.

Looks Like Year

more than the $325 million allotted last year to start development of the Nike-X and to continue testing the companion Nike Zeus antimissile.

It was only a year ago that the late President John F. Kennedy approved the Nike-X project and the indications are that progress has been swift.

"We will get some test results in the course of calendar 1964," officials said.

Informed sources reported a key element in the Nike-X system—a superfast missile called Sprint—would be test fired for the first time in April or thereabouts.

The Army will have to overcome the skepticism of McNamara and Dr. Harold Brown, the Pentagon's research and engineering director.

Kennedy reflected their doubts last August when he told a news conference he thought the problems of developing an effective defense against missile attack "is beyond us and beyond the Soviets technically."

City Tax Rate Is $67.98 . . .

and chairman of the finance committee, I feel the people of this city are interested and concerned with the financial problems of their municipal government, and deserve to know the intensions of the majority party in regard to the mayor's proposal for non-property tax relief to the overburdened property owner

Proud of Leadership

"First of all, we Republicans are both proud and deeply grateful for the mayor's courage of leadership in facing up to the financial problems of our city government. He has recommended a course of action he knew would be painful to a few, unpopular with many, but on the whole, fair and equitable to the broadest majority of our citizens, and absolutely necessary for the stability of our tax structure.

"We of the majority party recognize the needs he has outlined for us. We know that some form of additional revenue source must be tapped to provide pay increases for deserving city employees, and to permit expansion of city services. We recognize too his belief that the property taxpayer has about reached the limit of endurance, and must be relieved of part of his burden by the establishment of non-property taxes payable by all citizens.

"We know that he asked last year's Common Council to study non-property tax methods, and we know that he received no cooperation from the majority then in control.

Too Important to Rush

"And, after two weeks of study, we know that non-property tax methods are a very involved and highly technical matter that cannot be rushed through the legislative mill.

"Therefore, we have found ourselves in a position where we must conduct the research on non-property taxation that should have been completed by the past Common Council.

"If we are to live up to our responsibility to the people, we must first make sure that all avenues of non-property taxation have ben explored, and, this includes the proposal of a county sales tax..

"Accordingly, the finance commitee will not report out the two local laws on non-property taxes, but continue to study both proposals carefully, as well as all other possibilities for equitable non-property taxation, in the hope that it may find a solution to the financial revenue problems the mayor has outlined in his annual message.

In the meantime, the 1964 budget must be approved if the city is to have the necessary funds to operate, and any further delay will result in additional tax anticipation borrowing and extra interest charges which we cannot afford.

Views of Minority Leader

Minority Leader Howard, dealing with the budget, said:

"The mayor's budget for 1964 has a tax increase of $5.33 per thousand. With this increase are the taxpayers going to receive any better service?

"The police department is still six men short. There is no provision for a salary increase for this department, which would certainly make this job more appealing. When Mayor Schwenk took office two years ago, he was handed over a full complement of 61 men. At the present time the police department is extremely short of personnel. In fact, I would like to ask the mayor, or a police commissioner, just how much protection the city has at night.

"The fire department, another department, which provides for our safety, is also undermanned. As per state law the work week is to be reduced to 48 hours. This requires additional men to be put on. This is not included in the 1964 budget.

"We have an increase in revenue due to a decrease in population. Other mayors of the state are presently applying pressure to the state legislature for an increase in state per capita aid. The revenue obtained by the state through additional taxes (other fees) has increased tremendously over the past few years. Yet no adjustment in state per capita aid has been forthcoming. It would appear from this budget, that the mayor is not making the necessary overtures to the Republican state legislature for the necessary adjustment in state aid.

Cites County Tax

"City share of county highway charges has been increased from $123,000 to $142,000, an increase of over $17,000. Can anyone voting here tonight tell me why. Especially since the city is housing the biggest portion of the highway department tax free.

"The quota of county charges has been increased by $60,000. I would like to be informed why."

Norton's Comment

Alderman Edward Norton (D) Seventh Ward said: "For the past two weeks I have been studying in detail the proposed budget for the City of Kingston for the year 1964. I am definitely opposed to the budget as prepared by Mayor John Schwenk, and I object to the proposed $5.33 tax rate increase for many reasons.

"However, my main objection to this increase is that the taxpayers of the City of Kingston are being asked to pay the largest single increase in years, and yet are being asked to accept curtailment of the services in all of our city departments. I feel strongly that this is unfair to all of the taxpayers of the City of Kingston. The police and fire departments are not up to their full table of organizations, are carrying a heavier work load, and did not receive the pay increases they so justly deserve.

"The City of Kingston Recreation Dept. is being forced to accept over a $12,000 cut in funds appropriated. Our Department of Public Works is expected to provide essential services with obsolete equipment as well as curtailed manpower.

"I feel that Mayor John Schwenk has failed in his duties regarding his promise to keep taxes lower in the City of Kingston and that the past two years of his administration have lacked the foresight and knowledge of the many problems affecting our great city."

Mancuso Opposed

Peter Mancuso (D) Eighth Ward, said:

"In response to the many people I have spoken to, either by phone, or personally, I wish to express their sentiments and mine.

"It appears that when a mayor submits or proposes a $5.33 tax rate increase, that the budget should reflect some increased services to the residents of the city.

"I have scrutinized this budget, and nowhere does it show any increase of services by the police department, fire department, or BPW."

"It is particularly disturbing to note a $12,000 decrease in the services of the recreation department.

"In view of these, I see no other recourse than to vote no."

Discussion of the budget brought some aldermen close to verbal flareups, and Alderman-at-Large Carroll, banged the gavel and warned: "I will not tolerate such outbursts in this council, and you better get the record straight right now."

Replies to Democrats

Machione, in reply to Democratic criticism, said, "It is very interesting to hear the Democrats come out for raises. As I recall it was a big issue here some time ago." The mayor, he held, provided for the first salary raises in six years. He noted that while it was reported at the recent public hearing that policemen and firemen in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie have received pay raises, nothing was said about the fact that both cities have new means of raising taxes.

Alderman Gallo emphasized before close of the session that he asked to bring the proposed new tax proposals out of committee, in effect, to show where the aldermen stood. "We are elected by and for and to be with the people, and let us not be political puppets for anyone," he said.

Democrats, in opposing rules of the council, asked for the word "unanimous" in one dealing with consent of the council president, majority and minority leaders, and requiring their approval for waiving the rule which requires all matters to go before the council to be filed on the Wednesday before the meeting.

They opposed a section stating that resolutions affecting duties "delegated to any and all departments of the city government by statute, shall not be in order," contending that all departments should stand questioning, and a system of check and balance should be permitted.

Change of another rule requiring certain matters to be left to the discretion of the council president, they proposed should read: "Said request shall be approved by a member of the council and countersigned by both the majority and minority party leaders."

They asked addition of a section providing that "all discussions on proposed motions and/or resolutions shall be held and and completed before start of a vote." This they held, would avoid confusion.

Left with the traffic committee by Alderman Howard was a petition bearing 49 names. It asked:

1. That alternate side parking be fully enforced for a 24-hour period on Prospect Street between Greenkill Avenue and St. James Street. It would be based on odd and even number calendar days and odd and even number sides of the streets from 8:30 a. m. to 8:30 a. m.

2. Cooperation from the department of public works so that snow removal would coincide with parking regulations. This would do away with excess snow at intersections.

3. That, if at the end of 90 days, residents of the street feel the system is not working, that the street be returned to the present system of parking.

4. That cardboard signs be placed on odd and even number sides of the street noting parking time. Such signs are economical, and have been found acceptable in Poughkeepsie, it was noted.

Could Hear Better

Alderman Donald Tucker (R) Fourth Ward, said he had received favorable reports from people attending the recent public hearing "on the fact that they could hear all that was going on in the council chamber" because of the use of a public address system.

As chairman of the building committee, he said, "I am having the city clerk investigate, and if possible, try out a couple of different inexpensive PA systems to be used in the council chamber."

Dies of Injuries, Becomes Second County Fatality

John J. Paul, 49, of Ellenville, golf course superintendent at Nevele Country Club, Ellenville, died Tuesday at Veterans Memorial Hospital in that village as a result of injuries sustained in a highway accident on Route 209 on January 12.

He became Ulster County's second highway fatality of 1964.

Called Accidental

Following an autopsy, Coroner Arthur Chipp gave a verdict of accidental death. Ellenville state police in a report of that date said Mr. Paul was in a traffic mishap on Route 209 near the Nevele. He told police that he blacked out, lost control of the car which struck a utility pole.

He was a member of the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America, Connecticut Golf Course Superintendents Association, the New York Southern Tier Golf Course Superintendents Association, and the Professional Golfers Association of America.

A native of Beckley, Conn., he was born Nov. 22, 1914, a son of Frank and Anna Pisco Paul. He was married Jan. 16, 1946 at Hartford, Conn., to the former Evelyn Stewart.

During World War II, he served in the First Division with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Surviving are his wife; a brother Frank of New Britain, Conn.; four sisters, Mrs. Ann Hamlin of Kensington, Conn., Mrs. Rose Buck of Manchester, Conn., Mrs. Helen Bishop of Middletown, Conn., Mrs. Susanne Edwards of College Point. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

Mass at Ellenville

A requiem Mass will be offered at St. Mary's and St. Andrew's Church, Ellenville at 11 a. m. Thursday with the Rev. Walter G. Fagan officiating. Burial will be in the Wallkill Valley Cemetery, Walden.

Friends may call at the Loucks Funeral Home Inc., 79 North Main Street, Ellenville, tonight. Recitation of the Rosary will be at the funeral home tonight 8 o'clock. Contributions may be made to the Veterans Memorial Hospital Building Fund, Ellenville.

Democrats Favor

session were: Aaron E. Klein, Ulster; Albert L. Hecht, Dutchess; Larry Novak, Columbia; James O'Connell, Greene, and Robert Schaeffer, Schoharie.

No Official Endorsement

There was no official endorsement for the Congressional nomination at the session, but each county chairman said Resnick's name would be recommended at Democratic county committee meetings to be held in the immediate future.

A party spokesman said that the county chairmen are expected to meet in general session within three weeks, to discuss potential candidates for Congress, and to make a final determination.

It was noted that Resnick is making his first bid for major public office. A party spokesman said that those attending the Tuesday afternoon meeting were impressed by the qualifications of Resnick and indicated they were "heartily in favor" of the Ellenville business executive as the party nominee to oppose Wharton.

Good Farm Background

Democratic leaders pointed out that Resnick not only is one of the leading business men in the area, but he also has a remarkable farm background, which party spokesmen contend coincide with requirements to best represent the people of the district in Congress.

Resnick, was born and raised on a farm in the Oak Ridge section of Ellenville.

Usually, the 28th District goes Republican in Congress by more than 40,000 votes. Four years ago, Gore Vidal, noted playwright, running on the Democratic ticket, was defeated by Representative Wharton by some 24,000 votes.

See Rocky Maneuver

Meanwhile, the Knickerbocker News said yesterday that Governor Rockefeller is seen as the power behind a maneuver through which his cousin Alexander Aldrich, a resident of Columbia County, which is part of the 28th Congressional District, would run for the congressional seat now held by Wharton.

The idea is to name a State Supreme Court justice from Schoharie County, where Wharton lives, and to stipulate that Schoharie County could not also have the congressional seat, the newspaper said.

Columbia and Schoharie Counties are part of the Third Judicial District, where a Supreme Court justice must be chosen to succeed the late Kenneth S. MacAffer, Albany Republican.

T. Paul Kane, former Schoharie County district attorney, has been mentioned for the judicial post.

Wharton has not indicated whether he wants to retire.

Hints Important

set up a summit conference between the three main disputants — Sukarno, Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman and President Diosdado Macapagal of the Philippines.

The dispute centers on the federation formed last September by Malaya, Singapore and the British Borneo territories of Sabah — British North Borneo — and Sarawak.

To Visit Air Academy

Major Lawrence H. Deede, 27 Pinetree Road, West Hurley, a reservist assigned to Headquarters, First Air Force Region at Stewart AFB, will make an official visit to the Air Force Academy and four other Reserve headquarters during an active duty tour in January.

Fifteen Reservists, headed by Brigadier General Edward J. Haseltine, region deputy commander, will visit the Air Reserve Records Center at Denver, Colo., and attend briefings at headquarters of the Fourth Region, Randolph AFB, San Antonio, Tex.; Continental Air Command headquarters, Robins AFB, Ga.; and Second Region, Andrews AFB, Md.; near Washington, D. C.

These Reservists will coordinate matters of common interest with their counterparts in the other regions. They will review activities with the objective of comparing the effectiveness of current training directives.

The tour of active duty will begin Jan. 18 at Stewart. They depart Jan. 19 and return Jan 23.

Says LBJ Got Stereo

WASHINGTON (AP)—A local insurance agent has sworn to Senate investigators that in 1959 he gave a stereo set costing over $500 to Lyndon B. Johnson at the suggestion of former Senate aid Robert G. Baker.

President Johnson at that time was the Senate Democratic leader and Baker was secretary to the Senate Democratic majority.

The story of the gift of the stereo set was told to the Senate Rules Committee in a closed session by Don B. Reynolds, who described Baker as associated with his insurance agency. The committee made the testimony public today.

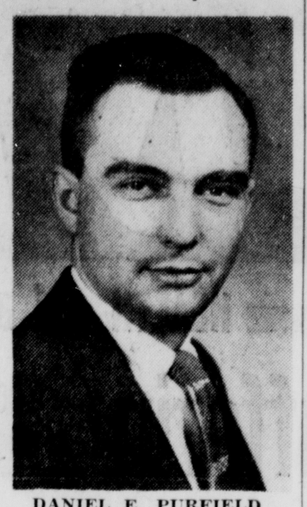
Would Cut Liquor Price

NEW YORK (AP) — The state's Moreland Commission today proposed legislation which it says would, in effect, drop liquor prices about $1 a fifth in package stores and save consumers $150 million a year.

It urged repeal of the state's compulsory Resale Price Maintenance Law under which distillers fix the consumer price of liquor. It termed the law "unjustified."

The commission's report was the third in a series of recommendations on revising the state's Alcoholic Beverage Control Laws, largely unchanged since just after the repeal of Prohibition.

Rhinebeck Man Is Promoted by IBM



DANIEL E. PURFIELD

The promotion of Daniel E. Purfield of Rhinebeck to development programmer in airlines engineering and programming at Kingston has been announced by R. C. Warren, IBM Data Processing Division vice president.

Purfield is the son of Mrs. Ann Eagan of Lounsbery Place, Kingston.

He joined IBM at Kingston in August, 1957 as a programmer in systems engineering. In 1959 he was named an associate mathematician and in June, 1960, a staff mathematician in that area. He was promoted to project programmer in airlines systems studies in the Advanced Systems Development Division at Poughkeepsie in September, 1960. Two years late, he transferred to airlines engineering and programming at Kingston in a similar position, one that he has held until present promotion.

Purfield is a member of the Association of Computing Machinery. He received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics from Albany State College.

Purfield, his wife Patricia, and daughters Kathleen, 3; and Mary, 1; reside at 39 Kalina Drive, Rhinebeck.

Afraid to Lose Face

CINCINNATI (AP) — Billie Perkins has been charged with filing a false police report—all because he did not want to lose face before his troop of Boy Scouts.

Perkins, 23, teaches gun safety to a group of scouts. He accidentally shot himself in the foot with a .25 caliber pistol.

Police said Perkins first told them he found someone looting in his apartment and was wounded while trying to take his pistol from the intruder. Later he admitted it wasn't so.

"I was just too embarrassed," he said. He was charged Monday.

Would Bet at Fairs

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A bill to permit pari-mutuel betting on fair grounds was introduced in the Legislature today.

The measure was submitted by Asssemblyman Russell Selkirk, R-Cobleskill, and Sen. E. Ogden Bush, R-Delancey. It would permit the bettting at race meetings lasting up to 30 days from the first of June to the end of October.

Protest Frat Ruling

ALFRED, N.Y. (AP) — Students at Alfred State University have protested a ruling that would, in effect, eliminate fraternities and sororities on campus.

More than 250 students paraded in orderly demonstration Monday night and then burned "mock coffins" at the site of proposed new dormitories.

The college ruled Jan. 6 that fraternities and sororities could not offer room and board to students after June 14, the close of the school year. Dormitory expansion was given as the reason for the ruling.

Two years late, he transferred to airlines engineering and programming at Kingston in a similar position, one that he has held until present promotion.

Purfield is a member of the Association of Computing Machinery. He received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics from Albany State College.

Purfield, his wife Patricia, and daughters Kathleen, 3; and Mary, 1; reside at 39 Kalina Drive, Rhinebeck.

Afraid to Lose Face

CINCINNATI (AP) — Billie Perkins has been charged with filing a false police report—all because he did not want to lose face before his troop of Boy Scouts.

Perkins, 23, teaches gun safety to a group of scouts. He accidentally shot himself in the foot with a .25 caliber pistol.

Police said Perkins first told them he found someone looting in his apartment and was wounded while trying to take his pistol from the intruder. Later he admitted it wasn't so.

"I was just too embarrassed," he said. He was charged Monday.

Would Bet at Fairs

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A bill to permit pari-mutuel betting on fair grounds was introduced in the Legislature today.

The measure was submitted by Asssemblyman Russell Selkirk, R-Cobleskill, and Sen. E. Ogden Bush, R-Delancey. It would permit the bettting at race meetings lasting up to 30 days from the first of June to the end of October.

Protest Frat Ruling

ALFRED, N.Y. (AP) — Students at Alfred State University have protested a ruling that would, in effect, eliminate fraternities and sororities on campus.

More than 250 students paraded in orderly demonstration Monday night and then burned "mock coffins" at the site of proposed new dormitories.

The college ruled Jan. 6 that fraternities and sororities could not offer room and board to students after June 14, the close of the school year. Dormitory expansion was given as the reason for the ruling.

CHEVELLE!
by Chevrolet

One of the things you'll like best about it is 11 models to choose from.

MALIBU S.S. SERIES

First year out and a winner already! And these two Super Sport models are Chevelle's finest. Front bucket seats and your choice of the optional-at-extra-cost floor-mounted Powerglide or 4-Speed Synchro-Mesh transmission. All in an elegant setting of deep-twist carpeting and vinyl upholstery in your favorite of seven colors. Pick from a wide range of standard and high-performance engines.

Relay 2 in Orbit, May Be Joined By Echo 2 Balloon in Space Friday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —A new U.S. communications satellite, Relay 2, circled the earth today and may be joined Friday by another, the giant Echo 2 balloon, as scientists seek the best space system for worldwide radio, television and telephone coverage.

Relay 2 shot into orbit from Cape Kennedy Tuesday atop a three-stage Delta rocket.

On the satellite's first orbit, radio communications and a television test pattern were beamed to it from Mojave, Calif. The satellite immediately transmitted the signals back to Mojave and to a station at Nutley, N.J.

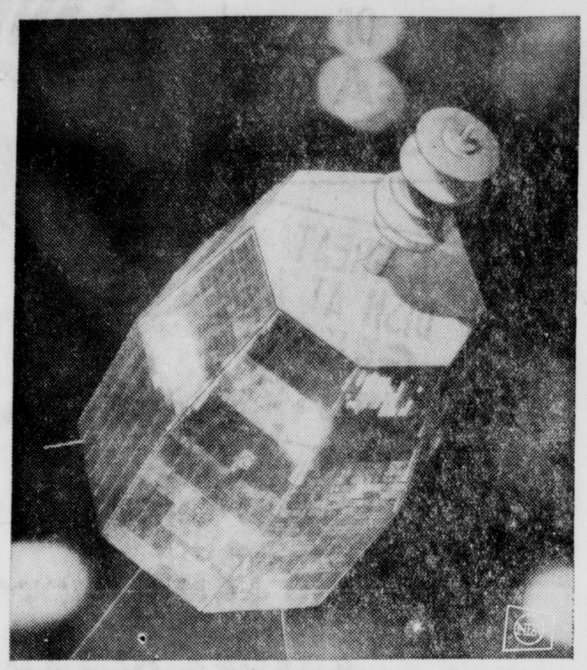
First intercontinental television broadcasts via Relay 2 were scheduled today — an exchange of greetings between U.S. and Japanese government officials. President Johnson may speak on the U.S. segment.

Echo 2, successor to the spectacular Echo 1 balloon which orbited in 1960, is scheduled for launching from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., Friday. It is to expand to a diameter of 135 feet in space, and the United States and Russia have agreed to try to bounce signals off its aluminum skin. It would be their first joint experiment in talking via satellite.

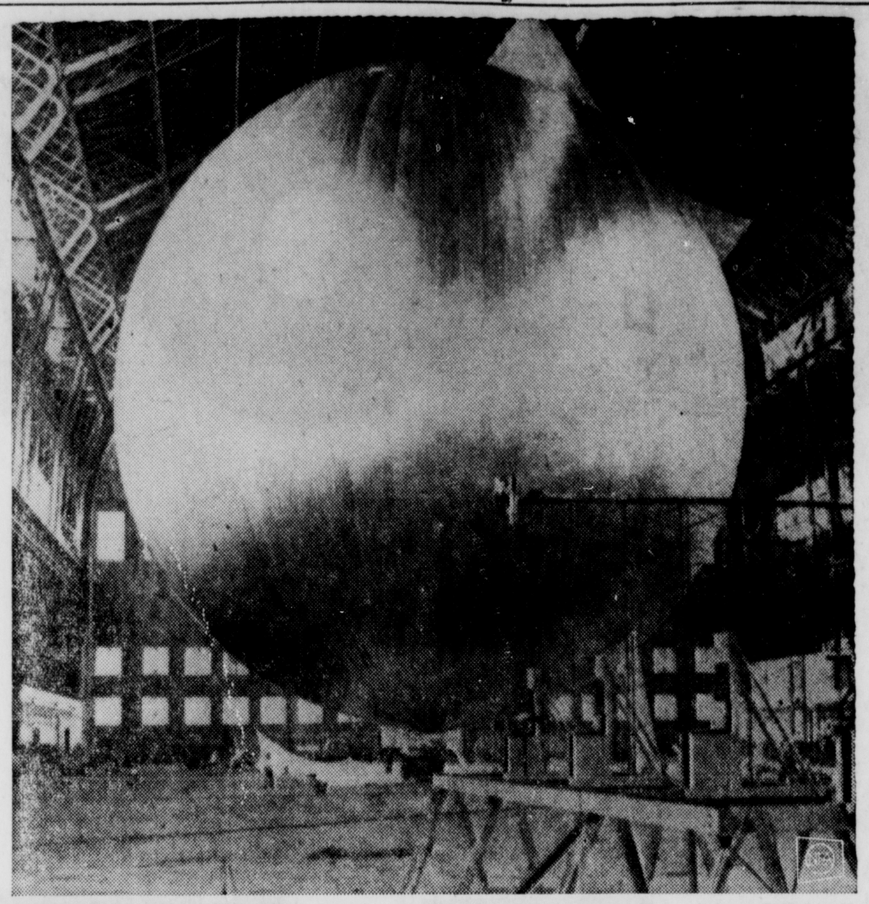
Relay 2, an active communications satellite, built by RCA, and Echo 2, which has no electronic parts and serves only as a reflector of signals, are different approaches in a U.S. effort to determine the most effective type of satellite for a global space communications system.

Most experts believe an eventual network will consist of three to six satellites similar to the Syncom 2 payload launched last year. Syncom satellites orbit 22,300 miles high, where their relative speeds match that of the earth and they appear to hover over one spot.

The higher altitude poses many technical problems, but most engineers are confident they can be overcome.



TALL TALK—Latest device for orbit is the Relay-2 communications satellite. The 184-pound moonlet is designed to act as a switchboard in space to relay radio and television between North and South America, Europe and Asia.



SOMETHING TO LOOK FOR—NASA technicians at Lakehurst, N.J., show off Echo II which is expected to join Echo I in space orbit. Echo II will be bigger and will orbit at a lower altitude and thus may be easier to see.

Hungry Burglar

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — This hungry burglar not only took canned goods but five cookbooks, five thermometers and two measuring cups, all used in classes at Hacket Junior High.

None of Wagner Extra Aid Is in Rocky's Budget

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's new budget provides none of the additional $274 million in state aid for New York City sought by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

The Republican governor's budget message to the GOP-controlled Legislature completely ignores the Democratic mayor's demand.

The budget does provide, however, for a $23-million increase in aid for the city in fiscal 1964-65. Payment of the extra money was mandated by formulas that govern the various aid programs.

The State Budget Division estimated aid for the city would total $599,693,000, compared with $576,966,000 for the current fiscal year. This includes nearly $12 million additional aid for social welfare programs and $9 million more for education.

Wagner had called for education aid of $141.2 million beyond that already required by law. Education aid for the city is expected to total $299.7 million.

The mayor also sought a 50 per cent increase in per capita aid, which would have boosted that category from the present $52 million to $78 million.

Miscellaneous other increases sought by the mayor totaled $106.8 million.

The West German government plans to build another thousand miles of autobahns by the end of this decade.

Capitol News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

TIMETABLE: With its eyes on the summer dates for the national political conventions, the House Appropriations Committee has drafted a timetable to get all the annual money bills through the House early in June.

If the schedule is followed, appropriations action, as far as the House is concerned, will be six months ahead of last year's slowdown record.

LIBRARY FUNDS: The House beat back a Republican attack and passed a bill Tuesday to extend federal library aid to urban areas.

The bill would continue a program begun in 1956 to bring library services to areas without them. The original measure was limited to communities of less than 10,000 population.

DISPUTE: The United States has accepted a Philippine proposal for patching up the dispute between this country and Cambodia, officials reported Tuesday night.

Details of the Philippine mediation proposal were not disclosed. It was not known here whether Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Cambodian government had accepted the plan.

HOUSING: President Johnson has endorsed plans for a national education program aimed at making it easier for Negroes to move into white neighborhoods.

The program will be carried out with enforcement of the executive order against discrimination in federally assisted housing.

OSWALD'S WIDOW: The Warren Commission investigating the assassination of John F. Kennedy has announced it will take testimony from the widow of Lee Oswald, the man who had been charged with killing him.

The commission is understood to want to learn as much as it can about the former Marine and avowed Marxist, particularly about his movements Nov. 22, the day the president was shot to death in Dallas.

Governor Backs Remodeling of Belmont Park

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller threw his weight today behind the New York Racing Association's plans for a $25-million remodeling of Belmont Park and major improvements at Saratoga.

Rockefeller indicated in his budget messsage that he favored continuing a $6-million annual tax concession for the association, a non-profit group that also operates Aqueduct and Saratoga.

The association says it will not be able to overhaul Belmont unless the state renews an agreement scheduled to expire next year.

If the concession is continued, the group says it not only will rebuild Belmont but undertake about $5 million in improvements at Saratoga.

Granted in 1957

The tax concession was granted in 1957, after the association assumed management of the three thoroughbred tracks. The state had been taking 11 per cent of the pari-mutuel betting pool at Belmont and Aqueduct and 10 per cent at Saratoga, leaving the tracks 4 and 5 per cent, respectively. The state cut its take to 10 and 9 per cent, leaving the tracks an extra percentage point.

In his budget message, Rockefeller estimated total pari-mutuel revenue from thoroughbred and harness racing would climb to $125 million in the new fiscal year, up $5 million from the current year.

It was understood that Rockefeller would consent to extending the agreement long enough for the association to complete the Belmont and Saratoga projects.

Relay 2 in Orbit, May Be Joined By Echo 2 Balloon in Space Friday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —A new U.S. communications satellite, Relay 2, circled the earth today and may be joined Friday by another, the giant Echo 2 balloon, as scientists seek the best space system for worldwide radio, television and telephone coverage.

Relay 2 shot into orbit from Cape Kennedy Tuesday atop a three-stage Delta rocket.

On the satellite's first orbit, radio communications and a television test pattern were beamed to it from Mojave, Calif. The satellite immediately transmitted the signals back to Mojave and to a station at Nutley, N.J.

First intercontinental television broadcasts via Relay 2 were scheduled today — an exchange of greetings between U.S. and Japanese government officials. President Johnson may speak on the U.S. segment.

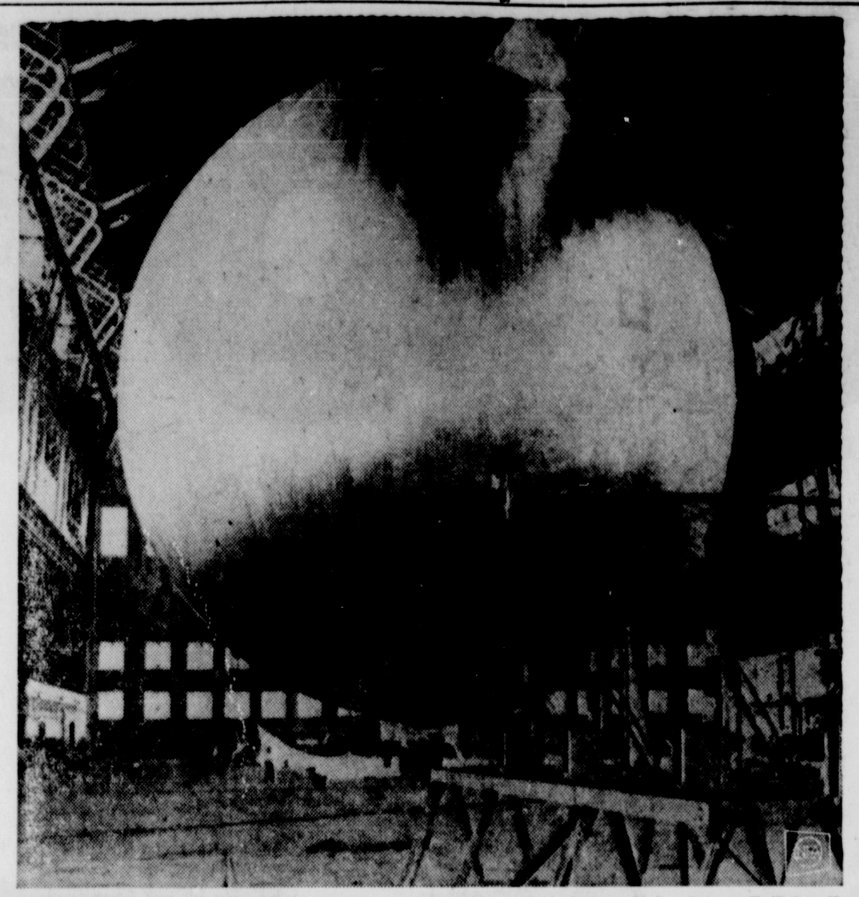
Echo 2, successor to the spectacular Echo 1 balloon which orbited in 1960, is scheduled for launching from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., Friday. It is to expand to a diameter of 135 feet in space, and the United States and Russia have agreed to try to bounce signals off its aluminum skin. It would be their first joint experiment in talking via satellite.

Relay 2, an active communications satellite, built by RCA, and Echo 2, which has no electronic parts and serves only as a reflector of signals, are different approaches in a U.S. effort to determine the most effective type of satellite for a global space communications system.

Most experts believe an eventual network will consist of three to six satellites similar to the Syncom 2 payload launched last year. Syncom satellites orbit 22,300 miles high, where their relative speeds match that of the earth and they appear to hover over one spot.

The higher altitude poses many technical problems, but most engineers are confident they can be overcome.

TALL TALK—Latest device for orbit is the Relay-2 communications satellite. The 184-pound moonlet is designed to act as a switchboard in space to relay radio and television between North and South America, Europe and Asia.



SOMETHING TO LOOK FOR—NASA technicians at Lakehurst, N.J., show off Echo II which is expected to join Echo I in space orbit. Echo II will be bigger and will orbit at a lower altitude and thus may be easier to see.

None of Wagner Extra Aid Is in Rocky's Budget

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's new budget provides none of the additional $274 million in state aid for New York City sought by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

The Republican governor's budget message to the GOP-controlled Legislature completely ignores the Democratic mayor's demand.

The budget does provide, however, for a $23-million increase in aid for the city in fiscal 1964-65. Payment of the extra money was mandated by formulas that govern the various aid programs.

The State Budget Division estimated aid for the city would total $599,693,000, compared with $576,966,000 for the current fiscal year. This includes nearly $12 million additional aid for social welfare programs and $9 million more for education.

Wagner had called for education aid of $141.2 million beyond that already required by law. Education aid for the city is expected to total $299.7 million.

The mayor also sought a 50 per cent increase in per capita aid, which would have boosted that category from the present $52 million to $78 million.

Miscellaneous other increases sought by the mayor totaled $106.8 million.

The West German government plans to build another thousand miles of autobahns by the end of this decade.

Capitol News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

TIMETABLE: With its eyes on the summer dates for the national political conventions, the House Appropriations Committee has drafted a timetable to get all the annual money bills through the House early in June.

If the schedule is followed, appropriations action, as far as the House is concerned, will be six months ahead of last year's slowdown record.

LIBRARY FUNDS: The House beat back a Republican attack and passed a bill Tuesday to extend federal library aid to urban areas.

The bill would continue a program begun in 1956 to bring library services to areas without them. The original measure was limited to communities of less than 10,000 population.

DISPUTE: The United States has accepted a Philippine proposal for patching up the dispute between this country and Cambodia, officials reported Tuesday night.

Details of the Philippine mediation proposal were not disclosed. It was not known here whether Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Cambodian government had accepted the plan.

HOUSING: President Johnson has endorsed plans for a national education program aimed at making it easier for Negroes to move into white neighborhoods.

The program will be carried out with enforcement of the executive order against discrimination in federally assisted housing.

OSWALD'S WIDOW: The Warren Commission investigating the assassination of John F. Kennedy has announced it will take testimony from the widow of Lee Oswald, the man who had been charged with killing him.

The commission is understood to want to learn as much as it can about the former Marine and avowed Marxist, particularly about his movements Nov. 22, the day the president was shot to death in Dallas.

NEW YORK (AP) — Boy and man, Red Skelton has spent so many evenings in American living rooms that his comedy characters, Freddie the Freeloader and Clem Kadidddlehopper are almost as familiar as CBS' unblinking eye and NBC's peacock.

After a few seasons, most weekly variety shows and — particularly — comedians start to show unmistakeable signs of fatigue.

Skelton has been a television regular for at least a decade and his program is always high on any list of the most popular shows.

His monologues at the opening are not in the same league with Bob Hope's or even Jack Paar's. Tuesday night it consisted of a string of tranquilizer jokes. Much of his material can be traced to old-time vaudevillle.

But there is a gayety and warmth about every Skelton show that transcends the material and reflects the talent of the star. He seems to enjoy his show, particularly the most outrageous sight gags, as much if not more than the audience.

Only Red could have pulled off Tuesday night's pantomime about the man with an allergy. His sneeezes knocked down a door, swept the whiskers off a man and onto a woman and finly blew Red out of his own shoes.

Merv Griffin, Red's guest star, played a straight man and sang and played the piano very acceptably. But Red Skelton is always the show.

"There is no question but that an Italian Mafia exists," said "CBS Reports'" producer Jay McMullen, "and there is no question but that there is a relationship between the Italian Mafia and whatever you want to call it—Mafia, Cosa Nostra—in this country."

McMullen speaks with authority after spending most of the past two years gathering facts and pictures for tonight's program, "The Business of Heroin."

After following the trail of the illicit traffic in drugs from Turkey to Aleppo to Marseille to a Harlem street corner where, with concealed cameras he filmed peddlers and addicts transacting their business, McMullen estimates that, at a very minimum, narcotics is a $50-million a year business in the United States alone.

Recommended tonight: "'CBS Reports," CBS, 7:30-8:30 (EST) —"The Business of Heroin'"; "The Danny Kaye Show," CBS, 10-11.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Yes, it has been a good year," said Roy Disney with characteristic understatement.

Report Tells Success

Roy is "'the other Disney"—the older brother who has long provided the money to bring Walt's dreams to reality. The success of this lifelong partnership is shown in Walt Disney Productions' annual report.

From 1953 to 1964, gross income increased 10-fold from $8 million to almost $82 million. Profits last year were at an all-time high of $6,574,000.

As president and financial mind of the Disney empire, Roy has long left the spotlight to his famous brother.

"'He's a grand guy,'" said Roy, whose homespun manner hides a steel-traplike financial mind. "It has always been a job keeping up with him. He gets the ideas, then I have to look at them from a practical, prosaic view.

"Sometimes I've had to say no, and he'll accept it if he knows that my decision didn't come from lack of vision. There have been times when I just couldn't get the money.

Knows What He Wants

"He's not a bad guy to work with. He knows what he wants and he'll listen to you—if you know what you're talking about. But if you're just shooting off your mouth, he won't hear a thing."

"My job is to help Walt do the things he wants to do," said Roy. "I take no part in the artistic decision; that's not my field. I deal with the banks and give Walt a free hand. The trouble with a lot of other movie companies is that the banks make decisions on the pictures.'"

Has the studio ever beeen in real trouble?

Roy smiled.

"We've always been pretty stretched out," he said. "Maybe that's why we've done so well—we always owed so much money. Only in the past three years have we been able to breathe more easily."

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Jan.22, 1964. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1932, President Herbert Hoover signed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act. It was for the purpose of providing financial aid to agriculture, commerce and industry.

On this date:

In 1673, the first official postal service out of New York City began.

In 1901, Queeen Victoria of England died.

In 1942, Japanese invasion troops landed in New Guinea and the Solomon Islands early in World War II.

In 1952, former Secretary of War Robert Patterson and 30 other persons—eight of them in homes set afire — were killed when an airliner crashed in a South Elizabeth, N.J., residential district during fog and rain.

Ten years ago — A British Comet jet airliner flew 3,064 miles nonstop from London to Khartoum, Sudan, in six hours, 22 minutes.

Five years ago — Thousands of residents were made homeless as floods, sleet and snowstorms swept Eastern and Midwestern U.S. areas.

One year ago — France and West Germany signed a treaty of cooperation.

Praises Town Officers

Editor, The Freeman:

In these days of maligning public officials, its is refreshing to laud one of our Town of Esopus officers. Mr. Paul Mercier, Superintendent of Highways, Town of Esopus, has continously "rose to the occasion" when winter snow and sleet has made roads dangerous. I am thinking in terms of his close cooperation with the Port Ewen School and the Rifton School. On every sleet and snow occasion he has been in touch with the schools, offering to proceed our school buses with his plows.

Over the years he has evidenced genuine concern for the safety of the seven hundred youngsters who attend the Town of Esopus schools. I feel this Township is fortunate to have an official of this caliber.

Sincerely,
Robert Graves

Knows What He Wants

"He's not a bad guy to work with. He knows what he wants and he'll listen to you—if you know what you're talking about. But if you're just shooting off your mouth, he won't hear a thing."

"My job is to help Walt do the things he wants to do," said Roy. "I take no part in the artistic decision; that's not my field. I deal with the banks and give Walt a free hand. The trouble with a lot of other movie companies is that the banks make decisions on the pictures."

Has the studio ever beeen in real trouble?

Roy smiled.

"We've always been pretty stretched out," he said. "Maybe that's why we've done so well—we always owed so much money. Only in the past three years have we been able to breathe more easily."

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Jan.22, 1964. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1932, President Herbert Hoover signed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act. It was for the purpose of providing financial aid to agriculture, commerce and industry.

On this date:

Praises Town Officers

Editor, The Freeman:

In these days of maligning public officials, its is refreshing to laud one of our Town of Esopus officers. Mr. Paul Mercier, Superintendent of Highways, Town of Esopus, has continously "rose to the occasion" when winter snow and sleet has made roads dangerous. I am thinking in terms of his close cooperation with the Port Ewen School and the Rifton School. On every sleet and snow occasion he has been in touch with the schools, offering to proceed our school buses with his plows.

Over the years he has evidenced genuine concern for the safety of the seven hundred youngsters who attend the Town of Esopus schools. I feel this Township is fortunate to have an official of this caliber.

Sincerely,
Robert Graves
Principal

Planning Board Closes Books On $20,000 Planning Pact

The Woodstock Planning Board has announced that with the end of 1963 the books have been closed on the Town of Woodstock's $20,000 contract with the planning consultant firm of Brown and Anthony.

The plan was paid for in three installments in 1961, 1962 and 1963.

Pledges for voluntary contributions were made by 376 individuals, totalling $12,848, while a Woodstock business man, presumably J. C. van Rijn, president of Rotron Manufacturing Company, pledged the balance. At an open meeting, van Rijn had pledged to match whatever public contributions were made. The names of the donors have never been released to the press.

Notwithstanding that the pledges covered three payments, to be extended over three consecutive years, all but $800.32 was collected as promised.

Under the contract with Brown and Anthony, the planning board received the expert assistance of this well-known town planning concerr for the preparation of a town Master Plan. The contract further included making of a draft for a zoning ordinance to implement this Master Plan. The highly technical draft will become available to the Zoning Commission as a starting point for their work. The commission was appointed at last night's meeting of the Town Board.

Hired In 1962

When, in the spring of 1961, the Woodstock Planning Board determined to have a professional Growth Plan prepared there were several ways this goal could have been achieved: (1) by the town budget, which in turn is raised by town taxes; (2) a five-year bond issue could be floated; (3) the money could be raised by town taxes.

The Planning Board decided on the third alternative and launched a drive to raise the $20,000. Within six weeks a substantial amount was covered by donations, pledges and guarantees. On June 20, 1961, a contract was signed by the Town Board with Brown and Anthony to start work on the plan. It was completed in July, 1962, and adopted as the official Master Plan for the Town of Woodstock on Oct. 22, 1962.

The term Growth Plan is purely a Woodstock innovation. The legal term as defined by Town Law is Master Plan.

Now that Woodstock has its Master Plan, the next step is for the Town Board to implement it with a Zoning Ordinance.

Several copies of the Zoning Ordinance, published in advance of the creation of a Zoning Commission and public hearings on zoning, were distributed on a limited basis in 1962 and then withdrawn from circulation. Persons who had received copies of the published Zoning Ordinance were asked to return them to Town Hall for "revisions and corrections." They have not been made available to public since then.

Trace Painting In Catskills To Circa 1735

Painting in the Woodstock and Catskill regions pre-dated the Byrdcliffe era by more than a century, Alf Evers, town historian, said in a speech before the annual meeting of the Historical Society of Woodstock, which he heads as president.

Popular legend exists that all of the region's artistic greatness followed the arrival of Ralph Radcliffe Whitehead in Woodstock 1902-03-04, in search of a new way of life. Taint so, said Evers. Area painting can be traced as far back as circa 1735.

Painting by an unknown artist an impressive painting—now a historical document of priceless signifigance—rests in Fenimore House in Cooperstown. It shows a landscape, with Dutch style farmhouse, Indians and early Negro slaves in the background.

A well known naturalist, William Bartram, was in the area in the 1750's and may have painted sketches of the region. Art seems to have remained dormant then until the 1820's when Thomas Cole held forth at Catskill. An unusual and eccentric man, he would go around dressed in a bright brown monk's role. He is said to have spent a night on Overlook and dwelled on religious themes.

About Asher Durand

In the 1840s, Asher Durand, a superb painter of the period brought his students from New York City to the Catskills. They went through Woodstock and on up the Esopus to Phoenicia, painting and fishing. Luman Reed, a New York City portrait painter; Henry Inman, another portrait painter, also circulated

Samuel Ward of New York City built an art gallery in that period that featured landscapes painted in the Catskills. This was a significant period, says Evers, because for the first time American business men began to purchase American paintings.

The Hudson Valley Period flourished in 1850-60-70's when painters congregated in boarding houses and hotels. Mead's Mountain House and Overlook House, circa 1871, were the rendezvous for many celebrated painters of the time. One was Jurges McEntee, a fine landscape painter who specialized in autumnal landscapes in various shades of brown. A friend of the famous Shakespearian actor, Edmund Booth, he painted him in many of his roles for the Players Club of New York City.

Two Great Colonies

Evers described the two great colonies of the area—the Arkville and Onteora Park painters. The U&D railroad made Arkville accessible. This was the era of patrons and patronesses of American art.

One of the most famous patrons was Julius Fleischmanns, a one-time baker in Vienna, who came to the United States to earn fame and riches as the Yeast King. Fleischmanns acquired early fame by selling his superior bread at the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876.

Having acquired wealth, he started looking around for a summer location and settled on Griffins Corner. George Inness, a topflight landscape painter, was head of a colony of a dozen or more painters there. J. Francis Murray came to Arkville as a guest of Fleischmanns.

Fleischmanns' philanthrophy took many forms. He organized a band to greet newcomers to the village and for local functions. He was interested in baseball, too, and his town team included top collegians of the day and at one time the immortal Hans Wagner. Griffins Corners later became Fleischmanns in honor of the patron.

Onteora Park flourished under the influence of Asher Durand and attracted writers, actors, painters. A theatre was opened in 1880 and it was a real mecca for the Hudson Valley school, including John W. Alexander, the president of the National Academy.

Painted Overlook

Evers thinks that J. Addison Richards may have been the first to paint Overlook in depth and he exhibited his paintings of the area at the 1876 Philadelphia Centennial. It was then known as the South Peak.

Woodstock reaction to advent of Whitehead, White and Bolton was varied. Many thought it would be a carbon copy of Onteora Park and Arkville. But Whitehead, a social reformer, had other ideas. A strong disciple of John Rusk, the 19th century socialist, Whitehead was looking for a new way of life. He was more interested in crafts than in painting.

The Art Students League then came on to furnish the impetus for the Woodstock art heritage that has continued down through the years.

Taxpayers Form Committee for JFK Memorial

The Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association has announced the appointment of a special committee on the proposed President Kennedy Memorial in Woodstock. The association is in favor of some form of memorial at the Woodstock Library if the project is adopted.

Named to the committee were: Karl Seiger, chairman; Annette I. Dietz, William Rudman, Arthur P. Shepard and Zenna Winslow.

Function of the committee is to cooperate with any committee or organization, existing or to be formed, that are interested in the creation of a suitable memorial to our late President Kennedy, which is connected with the Woodstock Library, said Walter H. Schulman, association president.

The taxpayer group is also interested "in the establishing of a memorial trust fund to further the maintenance and operation of an enduring memorial of library character."

Representatives of Woodstock organizations who wish to communicate with Seiger may reach him at 22 Broadview Road, Woodstock.

City Court Cases HeardHereToday By Judge Feeney

Ronald Kevin Weeks, 16, of 618 Broadway, one of 10 persons booked on narcotics charges Jan. 4, waived preliminary hearing today in city court and was held for grand jury action.

Albert L. Weiss, 51, of 652 Broadway, booked on a first degree assault charge, after allegedly threatening a policeman with a rifle, Jan. 4, also waived hearing this morning before Special City Judge Bernard A. Feeney Jr.

Hearing of charges against two teenagers returned here from Greene County after recovery there of an alleged stolen car, resulted in dismissals.

Most of the defendants, booked when Weeks was charged with narcotics violations, were picked up on bench warrants and are due for appearance in county court. Two more were held after the arrest of the 10, and most were booked on charges dealing with possession and sale.

Weeks, represented by Attorney Charles J. Saccoman, has been under $500 bail.

Saccoman also appears for Weiss, who, it is alleged, threatened Officer George Barringer, when he and other policemen were dispatched to the Weiss house after reported trouble there.

Charges dealing with alleged theft of the car of Samuel Beck, of 331 Main Street, from the Kingston Buick Co., Inc., garage, 10 Main Street, Jan. 17, lodged against Ettie Downs, 19, who gave a Murphy Street address, and June Krusher, 16, of 3 North Front Street, were dismissed on the claim of insufficient evidence.

Attorney Howard C. St. John appeared for June Krusher and George Beck for the other defendant. Francis J. Vogt represented the district attorney's office.

Police said the two girls had been with John Manfro, 23, of 3 Cedar Street, and Arthur Holmes, 26, of 231 Albany Avenue, when the car was stopped by state police in Greene County. Manfro and Holmes were booked on second degree assault charges after they allegedly attacked a state trooper.

Hearing of Arthur L. Hanvey, 32, of Box 118-B, Kingston, charged with driving while intoxicated early Tuesday, was put over to Jan. 29. He was booked on the charge after a report that a snow removal sign near 373 Washington Avenue, had been hit by a car. Officers John Crespino and Ernest Bartroff were dispatched there.

Station Wagon Sought

An unknown station wagon, reported to be a 1958 or 1959 blue Ford, Tuesday night struck a fence on the New Salem Road damaging the fence and continuing on. A search is being continued for the car which was damaged about the front. The side mirror was ripped from the vehicle.

Mrs. Frank Schick of New Salem Road reported at 7:50 p. m. Tuesday that a fence on a neighbor's property had been struck. Deputy Sheriffs Robert Doran and oJhn Daly were sent to investigate. County Investigator Thomas Mayone was continuing the investigation today.

Fined on Two Charges

A first driver charged locally with operating a motor vehicle with unsafe tires appeared in city court today. He is Wayne Rydnewski, 18, of Box 30, Star Route, Rosendale, and was also booked for driving with inadequate lights. He pleaded guilty before Special City Judge Bernard A. Feeney Jr., and was fined $5 on each charge. He was summoned by Officers Thomas Coffey and Otto Short.

Shader Faces Charge

Robert M. Shader, 34, of 164 Fair Street, was booked Tuesday on a fraudulent check charge. It was lodged on a warrant executed by Sgt. Carl Janasiewicz at police headquarters. The check involved was reported made out for $30. A Wall Street drug company was the complainant. Shader pleaded guilty in city court today and sentencing was postponed to Jan. 29.

No. 3 Auxiliary Sets Meeting for Tuesday

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Woodstock Fire Company No. 3 will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 28, at the firehouse in Lake Hill, beginning at 8 p. m.

Plans for spring and summer activities will be discussed.

Any woman residing in the communities of Willow, Lake Hill, or Shady are cordially invited to attend this meeting and affiliate themselves with the organization.

$1.25 Dividend Is Voted IBM Shares, Favor Stock Split

NEW YORK — Directors of International Business Machines Corporation on Tuesday declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of $1.25 a share on the common stock, payable March 10, 1964, to holders of record Feb. 7, 1964.

The board also voted to recommend to stockholders a stock split of 25 per cent.

Upon approval by stockholders at the annual meeting April 28, 1964, the split would be made effective by issuing an additional one-quarter share for each share held, as soon as possible after May 5, 1964, the tentative record date of the split.

The board announced its intention to declare a cash dividend for the second quarter of 1964 in the amount of $1.25 a share (including the shares to be issued in the stock split), equivalent to an increase of 25 per cent on the stock outstanding before the split. It would be payable June 10, 1964 to stockholders of record on May 28, 1964.

Shriver Undecided

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Sargent Shriver, director of the U.S. Peace Corps, told newsmen Tuesday night he has not decided whether to run for vice president if he is asked.

Shriver, on a world tour, came to inspect Peace Corps work in Afghanistan and to deliver a message from President Johnson to King Mohammad Zahir.

Men Facing New Charges, Await Dutchess Action

Awaiting grand jury action in Dutchess County on charges arising from a television store burglary at East Fishkill last Saturday, three men, including a former Ellenville area workman, are facing additional charges.

The defendants are: McDonald Elwood Taylor, 35, formerly employed in the Ellenville area; Francis Fayne Bove, 22, and Robert James Beasley, 22, all of Brooklyn.

They were apprehended Saturday by Fishkill and Putnam Valley State Police, in connection with a burglary at Leon Dutcher's television store on Route 52, Hopewell Junction.

Investigation Pushed

The trio waived preliminary hearing on third degree burglary charges, and were committed to the county jail at Poughkeepsie.

The investigation of the three defendants was continued Tuesday by State Police BCI Investigators J. W. Nolan and A. J. Visciarelli of Fishkill; BCI Investigators Charles Teelon and George Dana of Ellenville, and Police Chief Abe Rand of the village of Ellenville.

Fishkill troopers told The Freeman today that investigation disclosed that Bove was on bail on a third degree burglary charge pending against him in New York City, at the time he allegedly participated in the Dutchess County TV store burglary.

Authorities said Beasley was on parole at the time. State Parole Board authorities have filed a warrant in Dutchess County charging him with a parole violation.

Sought Since March

Taylor had been sought by Ellenville police since March. Chief Rand said Village Police Justice Frank Decker issued a warrant several months ago accusing Taylor of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The warrant was filed yesterday with Dutchess County authorities.

Fishkill troopers said the Brooklyn homes of each of the three defendants were searched Tuesday by Ellenville and Fishkill BCI officers and Chief Rand, and property valued at about $300, believed to have been stolen, was seized.

Chief Rand said Taylor formerly had been employed in the Ellenville area.

Central Merchants Elect Fairley as President for '64

Directors elected for three-year terms were Carl Esposito, Walter Smith, William Fairley Sr. and Harry Rigby Jr. Trustees named were Frank A. Reis, retiring president; Thomas Reynolds and David Fletcher, past presidents. Directors whose terms did not expire include Michael Arace, Frank Carpino, John Naccarato, Thomas Reynolds, Herbert Myers, Dewey Logan and David Fletcher.

President Fairley announced that the annual banquet will be held during the latter part of April. Committees on Urban Renewal, economic and membership will be announced at the next meeting.

4 Are Hospitalized After Car, Taxi Are in Collision

Four persons were hospitalized after a car-taxi mishap Tuesday afternoon at Pine Grove and Mary's Avenue.

The car, police said, was driven by Joseph Banks, 28, of St. Remy, and the taxi, owned by Economy Cab, of Wilbur Avenue, was driven by Elmer Smith, RD 2, Box 258, Kingston.

Injured were: Smith, possible internal injuries; Roberta Winpen, 19, of 51 Summer Street, knee injury (a passenger in the taxi), Joseph Banks, driver of the other car, no injuries listed, and Everette Banks, 27, of 112 Spring Street, right knee and side.

All were taken to Benedictine Hospital.

Officers Louis Sapp and James Scott investigated the accident reported at 1:20 p. m. They said the Banks car was headed south on Mary's Avenue and the taxi east on Pine Grove.

PRATT BOICE

Is Elected 24th Time as Savings Institution Head

During the annual meeting of the Ulster County Savings Institution at the banking house Tuesday, President Pratt Boice presided and noted that the year of his election to the office of president, 1940, the total assets of the bank stood at $9,000,000 and that today the total assets are approaching $41,500,000.

President Boice remarked that again, as in the past, the bank continues to grow and by so doing, has been a major factor in the economic welfare of the area. He noted that an increase in the mortgage portfolio of over $5,000,000 was made during the year 1963 and remarked that such a sum created many new homes in the area for people desiring home ownership. Boice said the bank wrote more mortgages in this area than any other financial institution within the past year.

Through efficient operation and wise management, President Boice said that the bank was able to increase its dividend rate to 4¼ per cent per annum, the highest rate paid by any bank in the area. He pointed out that all depositors received dividends from the day of deposit.

All officers of the bank were reelected as follows:

Pratt Boice, president, Victor H. Roth, executive vice-president-treasurer and secretary; George L. Berry, senior assistant treasurer; Joseph A. Fassbender, assistant treasurer; Robert A. Riel, assistant treasurer; Colleen R. Crispino, assistant treasurer; Irving J. Kotrady, auditor, and Howard C. St. John, attorney.

In addition to the above, Alfred Schmid was elected to the office of vice-president. Schmid is accepting the vice-presidency, remarked that great credit should be given to the staff for the continued success of the bank and felt that the public's confidence in the bank was attributable to the friendly atmosphere created by the employes.

Thinks . . .

public on election day."

Anderson urged the committee to concentrate on two distinct areas:

1. "The question of a legislator's vote on bills in which, because of his business, profession, or because of his investments, he may conceivably be said to have a conflict of interest."

2. "Whether a lawyer-legislator or a lawyer-public employ should be permitted to deal with or appear before state agencies."

Anderson contended, however, that restrictive statutes in either of the two areas might bar the most qualified men from office.

Cloyd Laporte, a Democrat and a member of Dewey's New York City law firm, is chairman of the ethics commitee. The other members are State Comptroller Arthur Levitt and Prof. Gray Theron of the Cornell University Law School.

Committee hearings also are scheduled for Feb. 3 in Syracuse, Feb. 5 in Rochester, Feb. 7 in New York City and Feb. 24 in Albany again.

Ellenville Man Is Appointed to Dannemora Post

The New York State Department of Correction announced the promotion of Robert J. Henderson Jr. of Ellenville to the post of Correction Hospital Security Supervisor at the Dannemora State Hospital effective Jan. 30.

Henderson, who entered state service as a Prison Guard at Napanoch in 1953, was promoted to sergeant in 1958 and to lieutenant in 1962. He is presently employed at the Eastern Correctional Institution at Napanoch and has served at Woodbourne Correctional Institution, Great Meadow Correctional Institution, Green Haven Prison and Clinton Prison. He is currently enrolled as a Correctional Administration major at Orange County Community College.

Sensible Living Pays Off: Cash Handy to Buy Stocks

Q) "I am in my late sixties, still working, but will retire shortly. After a lifetime of sensible living, we have at present $100,000 in savings earning 4¼ per cent. We would like to invest about half this money in reasonably secure stocks with a higher yield. Would you please help us with suggestions?"—H. R.

A) I am very much pleased that sensible living has paid off for you and that you can retire in comfort.

At this relatively high level in the market, I believe you should invest only $25,000 and hold $25,000 in reserve for a possibly better buying opportunity later.

For present purchases, I suggest General Motors, yielding 5.1 per cent and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, showing a 5 per cent return. You can buy Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass on a 5 per cent basis; Continental Can, to yield 4.7 per cent; Maytag, on a 4.7 per cent basis.

Equal dollar amounts invested in the foregoing would give you, I believe, a good stock package for income.

Q) "I read on Dec. 18 that Crown Zellerbach Corp. has come up with a chemical compound that is said to have some remarkable medicinal qualities. Dr. Jacob, of the University of Oregon Medical School, has emphasized that it has been tried out on only a few patients and on laboratory animals. Would you consider Crown Zellerbach as a speculation on this account?"
—C. C.

A) I'm afraid I would not.

Crown Zellerbach is our second largest paper company. Even if the new chemical compound is proved effective, I doubt it it would greatly alter the outlook for the shares. They ran up to a new high during the week your news appeared and have since declined about 10 per cent.

Crown Zellerbach is a strong company, and I would buy the stock mainly for its well-secured 3.3 per cent yield—if that attracted me. I would not buy in the expectation of great profits from an as yet untested chemical compound.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

that was placed in evidence, denied knowledge of any arrangements by which Reynolds bought advertising time or ever suggesting that the LBJ Company should get any rebate from Reynolds' insurance commissions.

Reynolds insisted that Jenkins had discussed the purchase of advertising time with him.

At the White House, press secretary Pierre Salinger was asked to comment on the Reynolds testimony.

"Mr. Jenkins' statement which is part of the record makes it very clear the President never had any conversation with Mr. Reynolds about the record player and considered it a gift from a long-time employe," Salinger said.

Asked if Johnson did not receive an invoice which listed Reynolds as the buyer of the equipment, Salinger said, "I'm standing on the statement I made. I think it was very explicit."

Salinger reported, in response to another question, that Johnson gave the stereo machine to one of his household employes—not identified—"some time ago."

Ruby Defense Is

to begin Feb. 3.

The defense suddenly dropped its attempt to get Ruby freed on bond after the court agreed to appoint the team of psychiatrists.

Brown held a long afternoon conference with prosecution and defense lawyers and stated afterward that the psychiatrists' report must be evaluated in court, subject to argument from both sides.

"The jury will have to decide whether Ruby is sane or insane," Brown emphasized.

Defense counsel sought throughout the hearing to show that Ruby was a man with brain damage that would make him capable of killing without knowing it.

Planning Board Closes Books On $20,000 Planning Pact

The Woodstock Planning Board has announced that with the end of 1963 the books have been closed on the Town of Woodstock's $20,000 contract with the planning consultant firm of Brown and Anthony.

The plan was paid for in three installments in 1961, 1962 and 1963.

Pledges for voluntary contributions were made by 376 individuals, totalling $12,848, while a Woodstock business man, presumably J. C. van Rijn, president of Rotron Manufacturing Company, pledged the balance. At an open meeting, van Rijn had pledged to match whatever public contributions were made. The names of the donors have never been released to the press.

Notwithstanding that the pledges covered three payments, to be extended over three consecutive years, all but $800.32 was collected as promised.

Under the contract with Brown and Anthony, the planning board received the expert assistance of this well-known town planning concern for the preparation of a town Master Plan. The contract further included making of a draft for a zoning ordinance to implement this Master Plan. The highly technical draft will become available to the Zoning Commission as a starting point for their work. The commission was appointed at last night's meeting of the Town Board.

Hired In 1962

When, in the spring of 1961, the Woodstock Planning Board determined to have a professional Growth Plan prepared there were several ways this goal could have been achieved: (1) by the town budget, which in turn is raised by town taxes; (2) a five-year bond issue could be floated; (3) the money could be raised by town taxes.

The Planning Board decided on the third alternative and launched a drive to raise the $20,000. Within six weeks a substantial amount was covered by donations, pledges and guarantees. On June 20, 1961, a contract was signed by the Town Board with Brown and Anthony to start work on the plan. It was completed in July, 1962, and adopted as the official Master Plan for the Town of Woodstock on Oct. 22, 1962.

The term Growth Plan is purely a Woodstock innovation. The legal term as defined by Town Law is Master Plan.

Now that Woodstock has its Master Plan, the next step is for the Town Board to implement it with a Zoning Ordinance.

Several copies of the Zoning Ordinance, published in advance of the creation of a Zoning Commission and public hearings on zoning, were distributed on a limited basis in 1962 and then withdrawn from circulation. Persons who had received copies of the published Zoning Ordinance were asked to return them to Town Hall for "revisions and corrections." They have not been made available to public since then.

Trace Painting In Catskills To Circa 1735

Painting in the Woodstock and Catskill regions pre-dated the Byrdcliffe era by more than a century, Alf Evers, town historian, said in a speech before the annual meeting of the Historical Society of Woodstock, which he heads as president.

Popular legend exists that all of the region's artistic greatness followed the arrival of Ralph Radcliffe Whitehead in Woodstock 1902-03-04, in search of a new way of life. Taint so, said Evers. Area painting can be traced as far back as circa 1735.

Painting by an unknown artist an impressive painting—now a historical document of priceless signifigance—rests in Fenimore House in Cooperstown. It shows a landscape, with Dutch style farmhouse, Indians and early Negro slaves in the background.

A well known naturalist, William Bartram, was in the area in the 1750's and may have painted sketches of the region. Art seems to have remained dormant then until the 1820's when Thomas Cole held forth at Catskill. An unusual and eccentric man, he would go around dressed in a bright brown monk's role. He is said to have spent a night on Overlook and dwelled on religious themes.

About Asher Durand

In the 1840s, Asher Durand, a superb painter of the period brought his students from New York City to the Catskills. They went through Woodstock and on up the Esopus to Phoenicia, painting and fishing. Luman Reed, a New York City portrait painter; Henry Inman, another portrait painter, also circulated

Samuel Ward of New York City built an art gallery in that period that featured landscapes painted in the Catskills. This was a significant period, says Evers, because for the first time American business men began to purchase American paintings.

The Hudson Valley Period flourished in 1850-60-70's when painters congregated in boarding houses and hotels. Mead's Mountain House and Overlook House, circa 1871, were the rendezvous for many celebrated painters of the time. One was Jurges McEntee, a fine landscape painter who specialized in autumnal landscapes in various shades of brown. A friend of the famous Shakespearian actor, Edmund Booth, he painted him in many of his roles for the Players Club of New York City.

Two Great Colonies

Evers described the two great colonies of the area—the Arkville and Onteora Park painters. The U&D railroad made Arkville accessible. This was the era of patrons and patronesses of American art.

One of the most famous patrons was Julius Fleischmanns, a one-time baker in Vienna, who came to the United States to earn fame and riches as the Yeast King. Fleischmanns acquired early fame by selling his superior bread at the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876.

Having acquired wealth, he started looking around for a summer location and settled on Griffins Corner. George Inness, a topflight landscape painter, was head of a colony of a dozen or more painters there. J. Francis Murray came to Arkville as a guest of Fleischmanns.

Fleischmanns' philanthrophy took many forms. He organized a band to greet newcomers to the village and for local functions. He was interested in baseball, too, and his town team included top collegians of the day and at one time the immortal Hans Wagner. Griffins Corners later became Fleischmanns in honor of the patron.

Onteora Park flourished under the influence of Asher Durand and attracted writers, actors, painters. A theatre was opened in 1880 and it was a real mecca for the Hudson Valley school, including John W. Alexander, the president of the National Academy.

Painted Overlook

Evers thinks that J. Addison Richards may have been the first to paint Overlook in depth and he exhibited his paintings of the area at the 1876 Philadelphia Centennial. It was then known as the South Peak.

Woodstock reaction to advent of Whitehead, White and Bolton was varied. Many thought it would be a carbon copy of Onteora Park and Arkville. But Whitehead, a social reformer, had other ideas. A strong disciple of John Rusk, the 19th century socialist, Whitehead was looking for a new way of life. He was more interested in crafts than in painting.

The Art Students League then came on to furnish the impetus for the Woodstock art heritage that has continued down through the years.

Taxpayers Form Committee for JFK Memorial

The Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association has announced the appointment of a special committee on the proposed President Kennedy Memorial in Woodstock. The association is in favor of some form of memorial at the Woodstock Library if the project is adopted.

Named to the committee were: Karl Seiger, chairman; Annette I. Dietz, William Rudman, Arthur P. Shepard and Zenna Winslow.

Function of the committee is to cooperate with any committee or organization, existing or to be formed, that are interested in the creation of a suitable memorial to our late President Kennedy, which is connected with the Woodstock Library, said Walter H. Schulman, association president.

The taxpayer group is also interested "in the establishing of a memorial trust fund to further the maintenance and operation of an enduring memorial of library character."

Representatives of Woodstock organizations who wish to communicate with Seiger may reach him at 22 Broadview Road, Woodstock.

City Court Cases HeardHereToday By Judge Feeney

Ronald Kevin Weeks, 16, of 618 Broadway, one of 10 persons booked on narcotics charges Jan. 4, waived preliminary hearing today in city court and was held for grand jury action.

Albert L. Weiss, 51, of 652 Broadway, booked on a first degree assault charge, after allegedly threatening a policeman with a rifle, Jan. 4, also waived hearing this morning before Special City Judge Bernard A. Feeney Jr.

Hearing of charges against two teenagers returned here from Greene County after recovery there of an alleged stolen car, resulted in dismissals.

Most of the defendants, booked when Weeks was charged with narcotics violations, were picked up on bench warrants and are due for appearance in county court. Two more were held after the arrest of the 10, and most were booked on charges dealing with possession and sale.

Weeks, represented by Attorney Charles J. Saccoman, has been under $500 bail.

Saccoman also appears for Weiss, who, it is alleged, threatened Officer George Barringer, when he and other policemen were dispatched to the Weiss house after reported trouble there.

Charges dealing with alleged theft of the car of Samuel Beck, of 331 Main Street, from the Kingston Buick Co., Inc., garage, 10 Main Street, Jan. 17, lodged against Ettie Downs, 19, who gave a Murphy Street address, and June Krusher, 16, of 3 North Front Street, were dismissed on the claim of insufficient evidence.

Attorney Howard C. St. John appeared for June Krusher and George Beck for the other defendant. Francis J. Vogt represented the district attorney's office.

Police said the two girls had been with John Manfro, 23, of 3 Cedar Street, and Arthur Holmes, 26, of 231 Albany Avenue, when the car was stopped by state police in Greene County. Manfro and Holmes were booked on second degree assault charges after they allegedly attacked a state trooper.

Hearing of Arthur L. Hanvey, 32, of Box 118-B, Kingston, charged with driving while intoxicated early Tuesday, was put over to Jan. 29. He was booked on the charge after a report that a snow removal sign near 373 Washington Avenue, had been hit by a car. Officers John Crespino and Ernest Bartroff were dispatched there.

Station Wagon Sought

An unknown station wagon, reported to be a 1958 or 1959 blue Ford, Tuesday night struck a fence on the New Salem Road damaging the fence and continuing on. A search is being continued for the car which was damaged about the front. The side mirror was ripped from the vehicle.

Mrs. Frank Schick of New Salem Road reported at 7:50 p. m. Tuesday that a fence on a neighbor's property had been struck. Deputy Sheriffs Robert Doran and oJhn Daly were sent to investigate. County Investigator Thomas Mayone was continuing the investigation today.

Fined on Two Charges

A first driver charged locally with operating a motor vehicle with unsafe tires appeared in city court today. He is Wayne Rydnewski, 18, of Box 30, Star Route, Rosendale, and was also booked for driving with inadequate lights. He pleaded guilty before Special City Judge Bernard A. Feeney Jr., and was fined $5 on each charge. He was summoned by Officers Thomas Coffey and Otto Short.

Shader Faces Charge

Robert M. Shader, 34, of 164 Fair Street, was booked Tuesday on a fraudulent check charge. It was lodged on a warrant executed by Sgt. Carl Janasiewicz at police headquarters. The check involved was reported made out for $30. A Wall Street drug company was the complainant. Shader pleaded guilty in city court today and sentencing was postponed to Jan. 29.

No. 3 Auxiliary Sets Meeting for Tuesday

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Woodstock Fire Company No. 3 will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 28, at the firehouse in Lake Hill, beginning at 8 p. m.

Plans for spring and summer activities will be discussed.

Any woman residing in the communities of Willow, Lake Hill, or Shady are cordially invited to attend this meeting and affiliate themselves with the organization.

$1.25 Dividend Is Voted IBM Shares, Favor Stock Split

NEW YORK — Directors of International Business Machines Corporation on Tuesday declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of $1.25 a share on the common stock, payable March 10, 1964, to holders of record Feb. 7, 1964.

The board also voted to recommend to stockholders a stock split of 25 per cent.

Upon approval by stockholders at the annual meeting April 28, 1964, the split would be made effective by issuing an additional one-quarter share for each share held, as soon as possible after May 5, 1964, the tentative record date of the split.

The board announced its intention to declare a cash dividend for the second quarter of 1964 in the amount of $1.25 a share (including the shares to be issued in the stock split), equivalent to an increase of 25 per cent on the stock outstanding before the split. It would be payable June 10, 1964 to stockholders of record on May 28, 1964.

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Sargent Shriver, director of the U.S. Peace Corps, told newsmen Tuesday night he has not decided whether to run for vice president if he is asked.

Shriver, on a world tour, came to inspect Peace Corps work in Afghanistan and to deliver a message from President Johnson to King Mohammad Zahir.

Men Facing New Charges, Await Dutchess Action

Awaiting grand jury action in Dutchess County on charges arising from a television store burglary at East Fishkill last Saturday, three men, including a former Ellenville area workman, are facing additional charges.

The defendants are: McDonald Elwood Taylor, 35, formerly employed in the Ellenville area; Francis Fayne Bove, 22, and Robert James Beasley, 22, all of Brooklyn.

They were apprehended Saturday by Fishkill and Putnam Valley State Police, in connection with a burglary at Leon Dutcher's television store on Route 52, Hopewell Junction.

Investigation Pushed

The trio waived preliminary hearing on third degree burglary charges, and were committed to the county jail at Poughkeepsie.

The investigation of the three defendants was continued Tuesday by State Police BCI Investigators J. W. Nolan and A. J. Visciarelli of Fishkill; BCI Investigators Charles Teelon and George Dana of Ellenville, and Police Chief Abe Rand of the village of Ellenville.

Fishkill troopers told The Freeman today that investigation disclosed that Bove was on bail on a third degree burglary charge pending against him in New York City, at the time he allegedly participated in the Dutchess County TV store burglary.

Authorities said Beasley was on parole at the time. State Parole Board authorities have filed a warrant in Dutchess County charging him with a parole violation.

Sought Since March

Taylor had been sought by Ellenville police since March. Chief Rand said Village Police Justice Frank Decker issued a warrant several months ago accusing Taylor of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The warrant was filed yesterday with Dutchess County authorities.

Fishkill troopers said the Brooklyn homes of each of the three defendants were searched Tuesday by Ellenville and Fishkill BCI officers and Chief Rand, and property valued at about $300, believed to have been stolen, was seized.

Chief Rand said Taylor formerly had been employed in the Ellenville area.

Central Merchants Elect Fairley as President for '64

William B. Fairley Sr. of the Tri-County Business Machines, 448 Broadway, was elected president of the Central Businessmen's Association this week.

Fairley succeeds Frank A. Reis who has been president for several terms.

Others elected were:

John Naccarato, proprietor of Dittmar Shoe store, vice president; Samuel Bradley, First Federal Savings and Loan, secretary and Charles Gruenwald, treasurer.

Directors elected for three-year terms were Carl Esposito, Walter Smith, William Fairley Sr. and Harry Rigby Jr. Trustees named were Frank A. Reis, retiring president; Thomas Reynolds and David Fletcher, past presidents. Directors whose terms did not expire include Michael Arace, Frank Carpino, John Naccarato, Thomas Reynolds, Herbert Myers, Dewey Logan and David Fletcher.

President Fairley announced that the annual banquet will be held during the latter part of April. Committees on Urban Renewal, economic and membership will be announced at the next meeting.

4 Are Hospitalized After Car, Taxi Are in Collision

Four persons were hospitalized after a car-taxi mishap Tuesday afternoon at Pine Grove and Mary's Avenue.

The car, police said, was driven by Joseph Banks, 28, of St. Remy, and the taxi, owned by Economy Cab, of Wilbur Avenue, was driven by Elmer Smith, RD 2, Box 258, Kingston.

Injured were: Smith, possible internal injuries; Roberta Winpen, 19, of 51 Summer Street, knee injury (a passenger in the taxi), Joseph Banks, driver of the other car, no injuries listed, and Everette Banks, 27, of 112 Spring Street, right knee and side.

All were taken to Benedictine Hospital.

Officers Louis Sapp and James Scott investigated the accident reported at 1:20 p. m. They said the Banks car was headed south on Mary's Avenue and the taxi east on Pine Grove.

PRATT BOICE

Is Elected 24th Time as Savings Institution Head

During the annual meeting of the Ulster County Savings Institution at the banking house Tuesday, President Pratt Boice presided and noted that the year of his election to the office of president, 1940, the total assets of the bank stood at $9,000,000 and that today the total assets are approaching $41,500,000.

President Boice remarked that again, as in the past, the bank continues to grow and by so doing, has been a major factor in the economic welfare of the area. He noted that an increase in the mortgage portfolio of over $5,000,000 was made during the year 1963 and remarked that such a sum created many new homes in the area for people desiring home ownership. Boice said the bank wrote more mortgages in this area than any other financial institution within the past year.

Through efficient operation and wise management, President Boice said that the bank was able to increase its dividend rate to 4¼ per cent per annum, the highest rate paid by any bank in the area. He pointed out that all depositors received dividends from the day of deposit.

All officers of the bank were reelected as follows:

Pratt Boice, president, Victor H. Roth, executive vice-president-treasurer and secretary; George L. Berry, senior assistant treasurer; Joseph A. Fassbender, assistant treasurer; Robert A. Riel, assistant treasurer; Colleen R. Crispino, assistant treasurer; Irving J. Kotrady, auditor, and Howard C. St. John, attorney.

In addition to the above, Alfred Schmid was elected to the office of vice-president. Schmid is accepting the vice-presidency, remarked that great credit should be given to the staff for the continued success of the bank and felt that the public's confidence in the bank was attributable to the friendly atmosphere created by the employes.

public on election day."

Anderson urged the committee to concentrate on two distinct areas:

1. "The question of a legislator's vote on bills in which, because of his business, profession, or because of his investments, he may conceivably be said to have a conflict of interest."

2. "Whether a lawyer-legislator or a lawyer-public employ should be permitted to deal with or appear before state agencies."

Anderson contended, however, that restrictive statutes in either of the two areas might bar the most qualified men from office.

Cloyd Laporte, a Democrat and a member of Dewey's New York City law firm, is chairman of the ethics commitee. The other members are State Comptroller Arthur Levitt and Prof. Gray Theron of the Cornell University Law School.

Committee hearings also are scheduled for Feb. 3 in Syracuse, Feb. 5 in Rochester, Feb. 7 in New York City and Feb. 24 in Albany again.

Ellenville Man Is Appointed to Dannemora Post

The New York State Department of Correction announced the promotion of Robert J. Henderson Jr. of Ellenville to the post of Correction Hospital Security Supervisor at the Dannemora State Hospital effective Jan. 30.

Henderson, who entered state service as a Prison Guard at Napanoch in 1953, was promoted to sergeant in 1958 and to lieutenant in 1962. He is presently employed at the Eastern Correctional Institution at Napanoch and has served at Woodbourne Correctional Institution, Great Meadow Correctional Institution, Green Haven Prison and Clinton Prison. He is currently enrolled as a Correctional Administration major at Orange County Community College.

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "I am in my late sixties, still working, but will retire shortly. After a lifetime of sensible living, we have at present $100,000 in savings earning 4¼ per cent. We would like to invest about half this money in reasonably secure stocks with a higher yield. Would you please help us with suggestions?"—H. R.

A) I am very much pleased that sensible living has paid off for you and that you can retire in comfort.

At this relatively high level in the market, I believe you should invest only $25,000 and hold $25,000 in reserve for a possibly better buying opportunity later.

For present purchases, I suggest General Motors, yielding 5.1 per cent and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, showing a 5 per cent return. You can buy Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass on a 5 per cent basis; Continental Can, to yield 4.7 per cent; Maytag, on a 4.7 per cent basis.

Equal dollar amounts invested in the foregoing would give you, I believe, a good stock package for income.

Q) "I read on Dec. 18 that Crown Zellerbach Corp. has come up with a chemical compound that is said to have some remarkable medicinal qualities. Dr. Jacob, of the University of Oregon Medical School, has emphasized that it has been tried out on only a few patients and on laboratory animals. Would you consider Crown Zellerbach as a speculation on this account?"

—C. C.

A) I'm afraid I would not.

Crown Zellerbach is our second largest paper company. Even if the new chemical compound is proved effective, I doubt it it would greatly alter the outlook for the shares. They ran up to a new high during the week your news appeared and have since declined about 10 per cent.

Crown Zellerbach is a strong company, and I would buy the stock mainly for its well-secured 3.3 per cent yield—if that attracted me. I would not buy in the expectation of great profits from an as yet untested chemical compound.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

State Budget . . .

will finance construction through borrowing.

State aid to localities, including that for schools, is estimated at $1,648,000,000, an increase of $103 million.

Spending for various state departments is set at $938 million, an increase of $65 million. Approximately $600 million of that amount goes in wages to the state's 117,000 employees.

Not Certain . . .

that was placed in evidence, denied knowledge of any arrangements by which Reynolds bought advertising time or ever suggesting that the LBJ Company should get any rebate from Reynolds' insurance commissions.

Reynolds insisted that Jenkins had discussed the purchase of advertising time with him.

At the White House, press secretary Pierre Salinger was asked to comment on the Reynolds testimony.

"Mr. Jenkins' statement which is part of the record makes it very clear the President never had any conversation with Mr. Reynolds about the record player and considered it a gift from a long-time employe," Salinger said.

Asked if Johnson did not receive an invoice which listed Reynolds as the buyer of the equipment, Salinger said, "I'm standing on the statement I made. I think it was very explicit."

Salinger reported, in response to another question, that Johnson gave the stereo machine to one of his household employes—not identified—"some time ago."

Ruby Defense Is

to begin Feb. 3.

The defense suddenly dropped its attempt to get Ruby freed on bond after the court agreed to appoint the team of psychiatrists.

Brown held a long afternoon conference with prosecution and defense lawyers and stated afterward that the psychiatrists' report must be evaluated in court, subject to argument from both sides.

"The jury will have to decide whether Ruby is sane or insane," Brown emphasized.

Defense counsel sought throughout the hearing to show that Ruby was a man with brain damage that would make him capable of killing without knowing it.

A group of jolly city people were having a house party on a farm. As part of the entertainment they entered enthusiastically into the plans of their hostess to give a wedding to a girl who was to marry a young farmer of the neighborhood. The most dapper and punctilious of the city youths volunteered to be "best man."

Now, said he to the stalwart groom, you just give me the fee you have arranged for the minister, and I'll have it in my vest pocket, ready to hand him.

Whereupon the rustic giant shook with laughter. You won't be getting it into your vest pocket! he chuckled. It's a little pig I've been fattening for the parson.

A colonel who had been promoted to general gave a banquet to his regiment.

Addressing himself to the soldiers he said:

Colonel—Fall upon the food without pity—treat it as if it were the enemy.

At the end of the banquet he observed a sergeant hiding two bottles of wine.

Colonel—What are you doing?

Sergeant—Obeying orders, sir. In war when you don't kill the enemy you take them prisoner.

Reade Honored

Specialized Films Key to Growth of Motion Pictures

Specialized films, both domestic and imported, have become the greatest vital growth element in the motion picture business, Walter Reade Jr., chairman of the Board of Walter Reade-Sterling, Inc., declared Tuesday night a the International Film Awards Dinner of the Independent Film Importers and Distributors of America, at the Americana Hotel in New York City.

Reade, the only speaker at the dinner at which IFIDA presented its annual "best" awards for 1963 imported films, was later in the evening, the recipient of IFIDA's Service Award for his contributions to IFIDA, the film importing business, and the exhibition of specialized motion pictures.

Reade told the more than 1,000 persons in the Grand Ballroom, that quality, rather than the place or origin, is now the yardstick of the success of a specialized film. Noting that "there is scarcely a theatre among the nation's 16,000 that does not present some imported product during the year," and that imported films are finding an increasingly important place in television programming, he predicted continued increasing acceptance by mass American movie audiences of specialized motion pictures.

Scouting Council Holds Den Chief Training Session

Den Chiefs and Cub Scout leaders from all parts of the Rip Van Winkle Council gathered last Saturday at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts Street, for the council's annual Den Chiefs' Conference.

A den chief is a registered Boy Scout, active with his troop, who also is serving as a leader in a Cub Scout den, assisting the den mother in putting on her program.

The four-hour conference covered such specific areas as: How to Lead Songs; Den Mother-Den Chief Relationships; Activities, Tricks, and Stunts; How to Use and Lead Games; and the Seven-Point Trail to Successful Den Meetings.

Serving as conference chairman was Ronald C. Latz, assistant cubmaster of Pack 26, Port Ewen. Assisting in the instructional assignments were: Jack Spader, cubmaster Pack 3, Kingston; Fred Kirk, cubmaster Pack 26, Porft Ewen; Herbert Burns, cubmaster Pack 34, Woodstock; Stanley Wase, cubmaster Pack 41, Catskill; Harry Slobodian, assistant district commissioner of Saugerties District; John Carlson, Saugerties District commissioner; Richard Waltman, Kingston District commissioner; and William Poythress, neighborhood commissioner, Saugerties. John Vliet and Kenneth Malchow of the Rip Van Winkle staff, served as advisors to the event, assisting with the registration and literature tables.

Twenty-nine den chiefs in attendance were presented with training certificates and conference activity strips by Latz at the closing ceremony. They represented 10 troops in the council area, as follows: Troops 16, 18 and 19 of Kingston; Troop 26 of Port Ewen; Troops 31, 39 and 130 of Saugerties; Troop 34 of Woodstock; Troop 44 of Catskill; and Troop 70 of Highland.

Highland

Faculty Will Present Play During March

HIGHLAND — Curtis Valentine, president of the Highland Teachers' Association announced today that the faculty will present the play Harvey on March 19 and 21. The proceeds will benefit the scholarship fund.

Robert Schwerdt, department chairman of English will direct the play.

This play will continue a tradition revived two years ago with the successful presentation of, You Can't Take It With You. Last year the faculty presented three one act plays including Checkoo's The Boor.

Harvey was probably the most successful Broadway comedy of all time. The leading role was immortalized by Frank Fay. A successful movie version starred James Stewart.

Arrange Campus Tours

Campus visitations at Mohawk Community College for all Highland High School students interested have been arranged for Feb. 8, March 14, April 4 and May 6. Students, parents, high school personnel and friends will attend a general meeting at 10 a. m. The balance of the day will be spent in group meetings with campus tours and personal interviews available. Entrance examinations are not scheduled on the dates listed.

Approve Library Fund

Town of Poughkeepsie voters on Monday approved by 161 votes, a proposition for the town payment of $23,980 in each of the years 1964, 1965, and 1966 for full services for town residents at the Adriance Memorial Library, Poughkeepsie. There were 2,668 votes cast of which seven were void. Under the agreement the Town of Poughkeepsie will enter into a contract with the library for use of the library by town residents. Approval of the proposal will increase the town taxes an average of 54 cents per $1,000 of assesed valuation. At present the town residents are barred from any and all services provided at the library in the City of Poughkeepsie. Under the approval voted Monday these facilities will become available.

Eastern 4-H Club Parley Scheduled At Local Armory

Eastern District 4-H Club demonstration activity at the New York State Horticultural Society Meeting will take place on Wednesday, Jan. 29 at the Kingston Armory, Manor Avenue.

Mrs. McLean F. Reynolds, Ulster County assistant 4-H Club agent, in charge of activities, announces that nine counties and approximately 30 girls will participate in the event. The counties included are Columbia, Delaware, Dutchess, Greene, Rockland, Sullivan, Nassau, Otesgo, and Ulster.

The program which commences at 8:30 a. m. will include fruit dish demonstrations by members. Each county may bring three fruit demonstrators to participate. Each of these girls are judged by home economists in the different counties and given a rating and certificate, award for their demonstration. Entrants from Ulster County are: Susan Widing, age 10 years, a two-year 4-H Club member from New Paltz and Roseann O'Reilly, age 15, years, a four-year 4-H Club member from Lincoln Park.

The pantomine apple pie demonstration will take place at 10 a. m. on the main floor of the Armory. Each county may bring one representative to enter this event, the girl having been chosen at a local bake-off is called the county apple pie baker. Six girls will participate this year, and be judged on their demonstration skills and techniques, and also their finished product. Ulster County apple pie baker this year is Miss Judy Schadewald, a 14 year old four-year Club member from Hurley Busy Bees 4-H Club of Hurley.

A luncheon given by the New York State Horticultural Society will be held for all 4-H participants at the Sky Top Restaurant. Thomas LaMont, secretary of the Horticultural Society will be on hand to present certificates to all demonstrators and pie bakers. Albert Kurdt, manager of Kingston Chamber of Commerce will act as master of ceremonies.

Specialized Films Key to Growth of Motion Pictures

Specialized films, both domestic and imported, have become the greatest vital growth element in the motion picture business, Walter Reade Jr., chairman of the Board of Walter Reade-Sterling, Inc., declared Tuesday night a the International Film Awards Dinner of the Independent Film Importers and Distributors of America, at the Americana Hotel in New York City.

Reade, the only speaker at the dinner at which IFIDA presented its annual "best" awards for 1963 imported films, was later in the evening, the recipient of IFIDA's Service Award for his contributions to IFIDA, the film importing business, and the exhibition of specialized motion pictures.

Reade told the more than 1,000 persons in the Grand Ballroom, that quality, rather than the place or origin, is now the yardstick of the success of a specialized film. Noting that "there is scarcely a theatre among the nation's 16,000 that does not present some imported product during the year," and that imported films are finding an increasingly important place in television programming, he predicted continued increasing acceptance by mass American movie audiences of specialized motion pictures.

Scouting Council Holds Den Chief Training Session

Den Chiefs and Cub Scout leaders from all parts of the Rip Van Winkle Council gathered last Saturday at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts Street, for the council's annual Den Chiefs' Conference.

A den chief is a registered Boy Scout, active with his troop, who also is serving as a leader in a Cub Scout den, assisting the den mother in putting on her program.

The four-hour conference covered such specific areas as: How to Lead Songs; Den Mother-Den Chief Relationships; Activities, Tricks, and Stunts; How to Use and Lead Games; and the Seven-Point Trail to Successful Den Meetings.

Serving as conference chairman was Ronald C. Latz, assistant cubmaster of Pack 26, Port Ewen. Assisting in the instructional assignments were: Jack Spader, cubmaster Pack 3, Kingston; Fred Kirk, cubmaster Pack 26, Porft Ewen; Herbert Burns, cubmaster Pack 34, Woodstock; Stanley Wase, cubmaster Pack 41, Catskill; Harry Slobodian, assistant district commissioner of Saugerties District; John Carlson, Saugerties District commissioner; Richard Waltman, Kingston District commissioner; and William Poythress, neighborhood commissioner, Saugerties. John Vliet and Kenneth Malchow of the Rip Van Winkle staff, served as advisors to the event, assisting with the registration and literature tables.

Twenty-nine den chiefs in attendance were presented with training certificates and conference activity strips by Latz at the closing ceremony. They represented 10 troops in the council area, as follows: Troops 16, 18 and 19 of Kingston; Troop 26 of Port Ewen; Troops 31, 39 and 130 of Saugerties; Troop 34 of Woodstock; Troop 44 of Catskill; and Troop 70 of Highland.

Faculty Will Present Play During March

HIGHLAND — Curtis Valentine, president of the Highland Teachers' Association announced today that the faculty will present the play Harvey on March 19 and 21. The proceeds will benefit the scholarship fund.

Robert Schwerdt, department chairman of English will direct the play.

This play will continue a tradition revived two years ago with the successful presentation of, You Can't Take It With You. Last year the faculty presented three one act plays including Checkoo's The Boor.

Harvey was probably the most successful Broadway comedy of all time. The leading role was immortalized by Frank Fay. A successful movie version starred James Stewart.

Arrange Campus Tours

Campus visitations at Mohawk Community College for all Highland High School students interested have been arranged for Feb. 8, March 14, April 4 and May 6. Students, parents, high school personnel and friends will attend a general meeting at 10 a. m. The balance of the day will be spent in group meetings with campus tours and personal interviews available. Entrance examinations are not scheduled on the dates listed.

Approve Library Fund

Town of Poughkeepsie voters on Monday approved by 161 votes, a proposition for the town payment of $23,980 in each of the years 1964, 1965, and 1966 for full services for town residents at the Adriance Memorial Library, Poughkeepsie. There were 2,668 votes cast of which seven were void. Under the agreement the Town of Poughkeepsie will enter into a contract with the library for use of the library by town residents. Approval of the proposal will increase the town taxes an average of 54 cents per $1,000 of assesed valuation. At present the town residents are barred from any and all services provided at the library in the City of Poughkeepsie. Under the approval voted Monday these facilities will become available.

Philharmonic Group At Vassar College

Frank Baker will be the reciter in a performance of "Facade" to be presented by Philharmonic Chamber Music Concerts on Sunday, February 2 at 4 p. m. in Skinner Recital Hall, Vassar College.

"Facade" is a work by William Walton, composed to accompany the recitation of poetry by Edith Sitwell. This work was first publicly performed in 1923 and at that time created an historic furor.

The work calls for a larger ensemble than has been usual for Philharmonic chamber music. Musicians will include: Boris Koutzen, guest conductor; Mardele Combs, flute and piccolo; Lawrence Combs, clarinet and bass clarinet; James Meyer, alto saxophone and flute; William Krinsky, trumpet; Sterling Hunkins, 'cello; James Coover, percussion; and Frank Baker, reciter.

Mr. Baker, who teaches at Bennington College, has directed an opera theatre in Piedmont, N. Y. He studied at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, and sang for years on major radio stations in the United States and in Canada.

This concert is the second in a series. A third will be held on Sunday, Feb. 23, featuring the Hudson Valley String Quartet with Norman Schweikert, horn.

Tickets may be obtained at the door, or by writing to Mrs. R. W. Murphy, 74 New Heckensack Road, Poughkeepsie.

Galitzine Displays Bulky Fashions in Italian Style Show

By LOUISE HICKMAN
AP Fashion Writer

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Poles-apart collections by Irene Galitzine and Federico Forquet caused a buzz of excitement Tuesday night at the Florence spring and summer fashion showings.

Galitzine had little dash, compared to her former designer Forquet. Her look was almost bulky after the trim, controlled look prevailing here. Bloused bodices and soft sashes didn't help.

Forquet's colors were the palest of the pale — watercolor greens and blues, combinations of both, beige and ecru, white, and white combined with beige.

Mock-cape coats began the Forquet showing. From a fold at the shoulder they spread out in front in a wide, flat flare, their narrow sleeves and straight backs completely concealed.

Belted and stiffly flared three-quarter coats were in grospoint wool over suits of smooth wool.

Neckline treatments were important in the Forquet collection.

Big, rolled wing collars flipped out over the wide revers or cardigan V-necks of coats or suits. Bulky straight scarves of matching fabric were looped loosely around collarless necklines.

Shirred-neck sleeveless silk tubes were superb. Her long culotte-shift and tube dress in butterfly print white pique were wonderfully fresh and pretty.

Long-line, long dresses with big V-neck and center seam outlined in ruche or rustle detail were elegant. Belled princess gowns in stiff white pique or pink silk were beautifully shaped.

Lyric Choristers Applauded

Lyric Choristers of Kingston were recently thanked in a letter from Dr. Hyman Pleasure, Director of the State Hospital at Middletown, N. Y. for the performance they gave during the holiday season there.

Dr. Pleasure said "The entire performance was both stirring and brilliant, providing a delightful evening for our patients, employes and guests. We hope the Kingston Lyric Choristers will include us again in planning for their next holiday concert."

This program at the hospital has been given annually for the past three years. It was one of the activities instigated by Mrs. John E. Egbert formerly of Kingston, when she was chairman of the Volunteers Committee of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health.

Dramatic Soprano Gives City Memorable Concert; Appearance Here Draws Full House

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

"Magnificent" is the word for Eileen Farrell, America's finest dramatic soprano.

In a concert at Community Theatre last night, the talented and attractive performer captivated her listeners with her tremendous voice, versatility and polished performance.

Although her program was sophisticated and many had hoped for more "favorite chestnuts," Miss Farrell could have dwelled on the simple scale and I would have been thrilled, nonetheless, with the enormous splendor of her voice.

I am prejudiced about Eileen Farrell for she is, in my opinion, a singer's singer. Her contact with the audience is instantaneous and magnetic. She has fantastic dramatic abilities and it was evident she chose her selections with an eye toward displaying all the best qualities of her voice—tone, depth, elasticity, range, clarity and quality.

Miss Farrell, who has won a reputation for singing the blues as well as concert stage and opera selections, presented a program which included Handel, Respighi, Giordano, Debussy, Faure and Arlen. She proved she was master of her voice with the demanding pianissimo quality called for in Respighi's "Venitelo a vedere 'l mi' piccino."

Dramatically she was at her best with David Diamond's "David Weeps for Absalom."

Miss Farrell did bend a bit toward the blues with Arlen's "Sleep Peaceful," from St. Louis Woman, and she bubbled with a Calypso number by Benjamin, "Linstead Market."

Her encores included the beautiful Greig art song "A Dream," as well as "Through the Years," and "Sing to Me Sing."

The Farrell concert filled the theatre seats by 8 p. m. and created several parking problems outdoors. Music lovers skirted slushy puddles and some were thankful for the "drawbridge" in front of the theatre. But no one wanted to miss hearing this "Supreme Soprano" as Time Magazine nominated her this year.

Miss Farrell's accompanist was George Trovillo.

Radiation Food Processing

Radiation, the first completely new method of food processing in 150 years, is receiving increased attention and emphasis today, as a result of extensive research conducted by the U. S. Army. In February, 1963, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration, under the food additive amendment, approved for public consumption radiation sterilized bacon. Several other foods, including potatoes, chicken, orange fruit compote, and pork loins have been submitted for approval, says Louise M. Kakargo, assistant home demonstration agent.

The search for an ideal food preservation method has been a search for a technique that will drastically slow down and reduce spoilage of food while retaining its original quality. Preservation seeks to:

- Protect from insect infestation.
- Destroy or inhibit the growth of microorganisms.
- Inactivate enzymes.
- Decrease or inhibit chemical changes, which may be dependent on the above.

Canning, freezing, drying, and pickling or combinations of these older methods of food preservation act to slow down or destroy the growth of organisms that cause food to spoil. Radiation does this, too, by a process in which food is exposed to radiation in measured and controlled amounts. The result is an extended storage life for foods that retain many qualities of fresh food since the treatment causes little increase in product temperature. The food, thus treated, must be protected from recontamination by suitable packaging. The package must be airtight for extended shelf storage.

Research on the wholesomeness of cobalt irradiation processed foods has shown that they are safe for human consumption.

Many experiments have been conducted with various radiation doses to determine the value of the process. Food technologists are particularly interested in two levels of treatment in relation to long and short term storage life. They are:

- A sterilization treatment in which the food could be stored for long periods without refrigeration. Bacon, treated in this manner, has been stored as long as 2 years at room temperatures. Taste tests conducted by the U. S. Army showed it to be an acceptable product. Pork loin stored for a year at room temperature was rated in taste tests to be equal in acceptance to fresh pork loin. Similar results have been obtained with some other foods.
- A pasteurization treatment in which the storage life of food under refrigeration could be extended. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has conducted experiments with low levels of irradiation for peaches, strawberries, figs, nectarines, peppers, and asparagus. Preliminary results were favorable enough to encourage further testing.

Successful radiation processing of foods would have some important advantages in the marketing of food.

- Reduction of spoilage. Many food items are highly perishable and are also subject to insect damage. The resulting waste is a part of the cost of marketing food. Radiation treatment of strawberries, peaches, tomatoes, grapes, and oranges to extend their refrigerator storage life would reduce losses.
- Quality maintenance. Successful radiation processing of foods aims at retaining the natural fresh characteristics of the food. Taste tests conducted by the U.S. Army indicate that quality retention is acceptable for many foods. Another aspect of quality retention is the possibility that some time in the future, fruits and vegetables could be harvested in a more nearly ripe, mature condition. With this quality maintained, fruits and vegetables could be marketed to consumers in a better condition.
- Extended storage life. In addition to reducing spoilage, a longer storage life would lengthen the marketing season for many foods. Consumers would have a longer period of time in which to select a food with a short marketing season.

Commercial Processing Is Some Time Away

Consumers will hear more and more of radiation processed foods in the future even though these foods are not in commercial production, and are not available to consumers. One drawback is the high initial expenditure required. The U. S. Government's Inter-departmental Committee on Radiation Preservation of Food has stated that a start on commercial processing for civilian use may be feasible in about three years. Dr. Ferdinand P. Mehrlich, director, Food Division, U. S. Army Natick Laboratories, where much of the research on radiation processing has been carried out, has stated that, according to recent studies by the Operations Research Office of the Johns Hopkins University and by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in behalf of the Atomic Energy Commission, costs of radiation preservation will become competitive with costs for canning, freezing and freeze-drying.

Philharmonic Group At Vassar College

Frank Baker will be the reciter in a performance of "Facade" to be presented by Philharmonic Chamber Music Concerts on Sunday, February 2 at 4 p. m. in Skinner Recital Hall, Vassar College.

"Facade" is a work by William Walton, composed to accompany the recitation of poetry by Edith Sitwell. This work was first publicly performed in 1923 and at that time created an historic furor.

The work calls for a larger ensemble than has been usual for Philharmonic chamber music. Musicians will include: Boris Koutzen, guest conductor; Mardele Combs, flute and piccolo; Lawrence Combs, clarinet and bass clarinet; James Meyer, alto saxophone and flute; William Krinsky, trumpet; Sterling Hunkins, 'cello; James Coover, percussion; and Frank Baker, reciter.

Mr. Baker, who teaches at Bennington College, has directed an opera theatre in Piedmont, N. Y. He studied at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, and sang for years on major radio stations in the United States and in Canada.

This concert is the second in a series. A third will be held on Sunday, Feb. 23, featuring the Hudson Valley String Quartet with Norman Schweikert, horn.

Tickets may be obtained at the door, or by writing to Mrs. R. W. Murphy, 74 New Hackensack Road, Poughkeepsie.

Galitzine Displays Bulky Fashions in Italian Style Show

By LOUISE HICKMAN
AP Fashion Writer

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Poles-apart collections by Irene Galitzine and Federico Forquet caused a buzz of excitement Tuesday night at the Florence spring and summer fashion showings.

Galitzine had little dash, compared to her former designer Forquet. Her look was almost bulky after the trim, controlled look prevailing here. Bloused bodices and soft sashes didn't help.

Forquet's colors were the palest of the pale — watercolor greens and blues, combinations of both, beige and ecru, white, and white combined with beige.

Mock-cape coats began the Forquet showing. From a fold at the shoulder they spread out in front in a wide, flat flare, their narrow sleeves and straight backs completely concealed.

Belted and stiffly flared three-quarter coats were in grospoint wool over suits of smooth wool.

Neckline treatments were important in the Forquet collection.

Big, rolled wing collars flipped out over the wide revers or cardigan V-necks of coats or suits. Bulky straight scarves of matching fabric were looped loosely around collarless necklines.

Shirred-neck sleeveless silk tubes were superb. Her long culotte-shift and tube dress in butterfly print white pique were wonderfully fresh and pretty.

Long-line, long dresses with big V-neck and center seam outlined in ruche or rustle detail were elegant. Belled princess gowns in stiff white pique or pink silk were beautifully shaped.

Lyric Choristers Applauded

Lyric Choristers of Kingston were recently thanked in a letter from Dr. Hyman Pleasure, Director of the State Hospital at Middletown, N. Y. for the performance they gave during the holiday season there.

Dr. Pleasure said "The entire performance was both stirring and brilliant, providing a delightful evening for our patients, employes and guests. We hope the Kingston Lyric Choristers will include us again in planning for their next holiday concert."

This program at the hospital has been given annually for the past three years. It was one of the activities instigated by Mrs. John E. Egbert formerly of Kingston, when she was chairman of the Volunteers Committee of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health.

Dramatic Soprano Gives City Memorable Concert; Appearance Here Draws Full House

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

"Magnificent" is the word for Eileen Farrell, America's finest dramatic soprano.

In a concert at Community Theatre last night, the talented and attractive performer captivated her listeners with her tremendous voice, versatility and polished performance.

Although her program was sophisticated and many had hoped for more "favorite chestnuts," Miss Farrell could have dwelled on the simple scale and I would have been thrilled, nonetheless, with the enormous splendor of her voice.

I am prejudiced about Eileen Farrell for she is, in my opinion, a singer's singer. Her contact with the audience is instantaneous and magnetic. She has fantastic dramatic abilities and it was evident she chose her selections with an eye toward displaying all the best qualities of her voice—tone, depth, elasticity, range, clarity and quality.

Miss Farrell, who has won a reputation for singing the blues as well as concert stage and opera selections, presented a program which included Handel, Respighi, Giordano, Debussy, Faure and Arlen. She proved she was master of her voice with the demanding pianissimo quality called for in Respighi's "Venitelo a vedere 'l mi' piccino."

Dramatically she was at her best with David Diamond's "David Weeps for Absalom."

Miss Farrell did bend a bit toward the blues with Arlen's "Sleep Peaceful," from St. Louis Woman, and she bubbled with a Calypso number by Benjamin, "Linstead Market."

Her encores included the beautiful Greig art song "A Dream," as well as "Through the Years," and "Sing to Me Sing."

The Farrell concert filled the theatre seats by 8 p. m. and created several parking problems outdoors. Music lovers skirted slushy puddles and some were thankful for the "drawbridge" in front of the theatre. But no one wanted to miss hearing this "Supreme Soprano" as Time Magazine nominated her this year.

Miss Farrell's accompanist was George Trovillo.

Radiation Food Processing

Radiation, the first completely new method of food processing in 150 years, is receiving increased attention and emphasis today, as a result of extensive research conducted by the U. S. Army. In February, 1963, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration, under the food additive amendment, approved for public consumption radiation sterilized bacon. Several other foods, including potatoes, chicken, orange fruit compote, and pork loins have been submitted for approval, says Louise M. Kakargo, assistant home demonstration agent.

The search for an ideal food preservation method has been a search for a technique that will drastically slow down and reduce spoilage of food while retaining its original quality. Preservation seeks to:

- Protect from insect infestation.
- Destroy or inhibit the growth of microorganisms.
- Inactivate enzymes.
- Decrease or inhibit chemical changes, which may be dependent on the above.

Canning, freezing, drying, and pickling or combinations of these older methods of food preservation act to slow down or destroy the growth of organisms that cause food to spoil. Radiation does this, too, by a process in which food is exposed to radiation in measured and controlled amounts. The result is an extended storage life for foods that retain many qualities of fresh food since the treatment causes little increase in product temperature. The food, thus treated, must be protected from recontamination by suitable packaging. The package must be airtight for extended shelf storage.

Research on the wholesomeness of cobalt irradiation processed foods has shown that they are safe for human consumption.

Many experiments have been conducted with various radiation doses to determine the value of the process. Food technologists are particularly interested in two levels of treatment in relation to long and short term storage life. They are:

- A sterilization treatment in which the food could be stored for long periods without refrigeration. Bacon, treated in this manner, has been stored as long as 2 years at room temperatures. Taste tests conducted by the U. S. Army showed it to be an acceptable product. Pork loin stored for a year at room temperature was rated in taste tests to be equal in acceptance to fresh pork loin. Similar results have been obtained with some other foods.
- A pasteurization treatment in which the storage life of food under refrigeration could be extended. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has conducted experiments with low levels of irradiation for peaches, strawberries, figs, nectarines, peppers, and asparagus. Preliminary results were favorable enough to encourage further testing.

Successful radiation processing of foods would have some important advantages in the marketing of food.

- Reduction of spoilage. Many food items are highly perishable and are also subject to insect damage. The resulting waste is a part of the cost of marketing food. Radiation treatment of strawberries, peaches, tomatoes, grapes, and oranges to extend their refrigerator storage life would reduce losses.
- Quality maintenance. Successful radiation processing of foods aims at retaining the natural fresh characteristics of the food. Taste tests conducted by the U.S. Army indicate that quality retention is acceptable for many foods. Another aspect of quality retention is the possibility that some time in the future, fruits and vegetables could be harvested in a more nearly ripe, mature condition. With this quality maintained, fruits and vegetables could be marketed to consumers in a better condition.
- Extended storage life. In addition to reducing spoilage, a longer storage life would lengthen the marketing season for many foods. Consumers would have a longer period of time in which to select a food with a short marketing season.

Commercial Processing Is Some Time Away

Consumers will hear more and more of radiation processed foods in the future even though these foods are not in commercial production, and are not available to consumers. One drawback is the high initial expenditure required. The U. S. Government's Inter-departmental Committee on Radiation Preservation of Food has stated that a start on commercial processing for civilian use may be feasible in about three years. Dr. Ferdinand P. Mehrlich, director, Food Division, U. S. Army Natick Laboratories, where much of the research on radiation processing has been carried out, has stated that, according to recent studies by the Operations Research Office of the Johns Hopkins University and by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in behalf of the Atomic Energy Commission, costs of radiation preservation will become competitive with costs for canning, freezing and freeze-drying.

SEEING FRIENDS OFF ON A TRIP

Q: Last week friends of ours sailed to Europe for an extended trip. My husband and I were not invited to the boat to see them aboard and we felt very hurt about it. When I mentioned this to my mother she said that friends are supposed to go on their own to send flowers to those who are traveling. I always thought one was invited to be invited. When my husband and I went on a cruise while back we invited our friends to come to the boat. Will you please tell me what is customary in this situation?

A: There is no set rule. Sometimes those going away give a party on board ship and invite guests to it. In this case, one would not go uninvited. But if no party is given, intimate friends go to the ship as a matter of course without waiting to be asked to do so.

Writing Thank-You Notes For Employer

Q: My employer's wife died last week and he has asked me to write thank-you notes to people who sent flowers and other kindnesses. I am his business secretary and in no way connected with the family. I would be only too glad to take care of these notes for him but I don't think it is proper for me to thank them and I'm afraid he will be criticized. What is your opinion on this?

A: If your employer is unable to perform the task of writing thank-you notes himself, some member of his family or possibly a near friend may write for him but certainly not his business secretary.

Dish Shown for Host's Approval

Q: When giving a dinner party in a restaurant and the waiter brings a dish to the table for the host's inspection and approval before serving it to the guests, how the host show his approval (or disapproval)?

A: The host simply nods that it is all right to serve, perhaps adding, "It looks very good," or if the dish is not what was ordered or unsatisfactory, he tells the waiter what is wrong in a low voice, so as not to attract any unnecessary attention.

B'nai B'rith Women Maintain Full Calendar Of Activities; Upcoming Programs Noted

Neither snow, wind, rain nor sleet have perceptively slowed down the activities of B'nai B'rith Women, the feminine arm of the world's oldest and largest Jewish community service organization, during the past few months.

Plans were announced for forthcoming activities last week at a board meeting held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Pinsly. Presiding was Mrs. William Helmrich, vice president.

Mrs. Irwin Gellen, president announced that an afternoon meeting, combining business with cards and games following, is slated for 12:30 p. m. Wednesday; Jan. 29 at the Jewish Community Center. Members may bring a box lunch. Dessert will be served.

On the agenda will be the naming of a nominating committee to propose new officers for the coming term. This committee will report back to the membership in February, at which time nominations from the floor will also be accepted. Elections will take place in March.

Mrs. Sam Barnovitz, a mother and grandmother of considerable experience, has volunteered to babysit with children over three years of age if their mothers wish to attend the Wednesday meeting. Those desiring her expert services are urged to contact her at her home.

B'nai B'rith Women are the hostesses this month for a party at the Wassaic Home for Girls here in Kingston. Mrs. Abe Meisner and Mrs. Robert Kurland are in charge.

In February, Mrs. Martin Aaron will head up the afternoon story hours for children at the Kingston Library. Mrs. Stanley Plasker and Mrs. Stanley Wyman have announced that four "Dolls for Democracy" programs are planned for various youth groups in the area in the coming weeks. The programs emphasize brotherhood via play-acting with dolls as the heroes and heroines.

Mrs. Plasker also reported that a book, commemorating the passing of President Kennedy, will be presented to the library in B'nai B'rith's name in the near future. Further details will be announced.

Mrs. Fred Strauss has announced that B'nai B'rith Women will provide birthday cakes for celebrants in February and March residing at the Infirmary. Mrs. Sam Barnovitz and Mrs. Leonard Kronick will be among the bakers.

Fund raising co-chairmen Mrs. Harold Beller and Mrs. Ronald Wolfield are planning a second theatre party at the Lyceum Theatre, Red Hook, for Sunday, March 15. The film will be designated shortly.

Members were urged to support Las Vegas Nite at the Jewish Community Center, taking place this Saturday. The following morning Center workers will report for a breakfast and a membership drive.

Mrs. Jerry Cohen, vice president, Mrs. Marvin Millens, Hillel chairman, and Dan Weisberg journeyed to New Paltz State Teachers College last week in an effort to implement a group designated to provide Jewish fellowship for on-campus students.

Schiff, William Helmrich, Irving Brower, Harry Spiegel, Sam Barnovitz, and Ida Werbalowsky.

Special thanks was tendered to Mrs. Pearl Adin, a super-saleswomen, and to Mrs. Eva Weiner for use of the store. Special donations were received from Mrs. Gellen, Mrs. Richard Kalish and Mrs. Harvey Kronick.

The following women baked cookies for the TB Hospital party in December: the Mmes. Arnold Pinsly, Massie Mehl, Marvin Millens, Robert Ronder, Aaron Klein, Rae Levine, Morton Levine, Stanley Kaplan, Ronald Wolfield, Harris Gally, Sam Barnovitz, Alfred Ronder, Ida Werbalowsky and William Helmrich. B'nai B'rith was particularly grateful to one of its members, Mrs. Jack Zweben, for donating cookies by the dozens.

Eight members of the B'nai B'rith board are enrolled in a short course entitled "Public Speaking and Leadership Development," given by former president Mrs. Arnold Pinsly, who is also a member of the District Executive Committee. The students include the Mmes. Harris Gally, William Helmrich, Sam Barnovitz, Irwin Gellen, Morton Levine, Seymour Semilof, Jerry Cohen, Stanley Wyman and Seymour Werbalowsky.

The third and final session is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 27 at 8:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Helmrich, Sherry Lane.

The success of December's toy and rummage sale has also been reported. Aiding in the work were the Mmes. Ross Ellis, Al Camhi, Charles Ronder, Stanley Kohnberg, Irwin Gellin, Arthur

Card Parties

Colonial Rebekahs

A public card party will be held on Monday, Jan. 27 at 8 p. m. by Colonial Rebekahs, Odd Fellows Hall, Broadway and Brewster Street.

Glasco Ladies' Auxiliary

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Glasco Fire Company was held on Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8 p. m., with Mrs. Barbara Bruno presiding.

A general discussion was held concerning activities to take place during the coming year.

Refreshments were served by the committee consisting of Miss Theresa Cafaldo, Mrs. Sonja Cafaldo, Mrs. Rosina Cafaldo and Mrs. Emma DeGregoria.

The next regular meeting of the Auxiliary will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 11, 1964, at the Firehall. All members are urged to attend.

We the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If your grown children don't write as often as they should, don't sit around feeling sorry for yourself or worrying about them.

Your problem and that of many, many other parents whose children are so busy with their own lives, or so thoughtless, or so allergic to letter writing that they keep putting it off has been solved with the innovation of gift certificates for long distance phone calls.

So all you have to do is send your children long distance gift certificates with the specification that they be used for calls to you.

If the idea of footing the bill for grown children to phone you seems dreary — just recall that it isn't nearly as dreary as sitting around feeling neglected.

And when the phone rings and it's a long distance call from one of your children, you'll be so happy you won't even think about who is paying for the call — now, will you?

Besides, if your children are terribly poor about writing letters, it just might be that it's your own fault. Perhaps that you didn't insist on their writing their thank-you notes when they were children, or make it quite plain that you expected regular letters from them when they were in summer camp, away at school, or off on a visit.

Once children are grown and gone from home you aren't going to change them. It's certainly better to make it pleasant and easy for them to keep in touch with you, if you can afford to, than to worry and fret because you so seldom hear from them.

Dish Shown for Host's Approval

Q: When giving a dinner party in a restaurant and the waiter brings a dish to the table for the host's inspection and approval before serving it to the guests, how the host show his approval (or disapproval)?

A: The host simply nods that it is all right to serve, perhaps adding, "It looks very good," or if the dish is not what was ordered or unsatisfactory, he tells the waiter what is wrong in a low voice, so as not to attract any unnecessary attention.

We the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If your grown children don't write as often as they should, don't sit around feeling sorry for yourself or worrying about them.

Your problem and that of many, many other parents whose children are so busy with their own lives, or so thoughtless, or so allergic to letter writing that they keep putting it off has been solved with the innovation of gift certificates for long distance phone calls.

So all you have to do is send your children long distance gift certificates with the specification that they be used for calls to you.

If the idea of footing the bill for grown children to phone you seems dreary — just recall that it isn't nearly as dreary as sitting around feeling neglected.

And when the phone rings and it's a long distance call from one of your children, you'll be so happy you won't even think about who is paying for the call — now, will you?

Besides, if your children are terribly poor about writing letters, it just might be that it's your own fault. Perhaps that you didn't insist on their writing their thank-you notes when they were children, or make it quite plain that you expected regular letters from them when they were in summer camp, away at school, or off on a visit.

Once children are grown and gone from home you aren't going to change them. It's certainly better to make it pleasant and easy for them to keep in touch with you, if you can afford to, than to worry and fret because you so seldom hear from them.

B'nai B'rith Women Maintain Full Calendar Of Activities; Upcoming Programs Noted

Neither snow, wind, rain nor sleet have perceptively slowed down the activities of B'nai B'rith Women, the feminine arm of the world's oldest and largest Jewish community service organization, during the past few months.

Plans were announced for forthcoming activities last week at a board meeting held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Pinsly. Presiding was Mrs. William Helmrich, vice president.

Mrs. Irwin Gellen, president announced that an afternoon meeting, combining business with cards and games following, is slated for 12:30 p. m. Wednesday, Jan. 29 at the Jewish Community Center. Members may bring a box lunch. Dessert will be served.

On the agenda will be the naming of a nominating committee to propose new officers for the coming term. This committee will report back to the membership in February, at which time nominations from the floor will also be accepted. Elections will take place in March.

Mrs. Sam Barnovitz, a mother and grandmother of considerable experience, has volunteered to babysit with children over three years of age if their mothers wish to attend the Wednesday meeting. Those desiring her expert services are urged to contact her at her home.

B'nai B'rith Women are the hostesses this month for a party at the Wassaic Home for Girls here in Kingston. Mrs. Abe Meisner and Mrs. Robert Kurland are in charge.

In February, Mrs. Martin Aaron will head up the afternoon story hours for children at the Kingston Library. Mrs. Stanley Plasker and Mrs. Stanley Wyman have announced that four "Dolls for Democracy" programs are planned for various youth groups in the area in the coming weeks. The programs emphasize brotherhood via play-acting with dolls as the heroes and heroines.

Mrs. Plasker also reported that a book, commemorating the passing of President Kennedy, will be presented to the library in B'nai B'rith's name in the near future. Further details will be announced.

Mrs. Fred Strauss has announced that B'nai B'rith Women will provide birthday cakes for celebrants in February and March residing at the Infirmary. Mrs. Sam Barnovitz and Mrs. Leonard Kronick will be among the bakers.

Fund raising co-chairmen Mrs. Harold Beller and Mrs. Ronald Wolfield are planning a second theatre party at the Lyceum Theatre, Red Hook, for Sunday, March 15. The film will be designated shortly.

Members were urged to support Las Vegas Nite at the Jewish Community Center, taking place this Saturday. The following morning Center workers will report for a breakfast and a membership drive.

Mrs. Jerry Cohen, vice president, Mrs. Marvin Millens, Hillel chairman, and Dan Weisberg journeyed to New Paltz State Teachers College last week in an effort to implement a group designated to provide Jewish fellowship for on-campus students.

Schiff, William Helmrich, Irving Brower, Harry Spiegel, Sam Barnovitz, and Ida Werbalowsky. Special thanks was tendered to Mrs. Pearl Adin, a super-saleswomen, and to Mrs. Eva Weiner for use of the store. Special donations were received from Mrs. Gellen, Mrs. Richard Kalish and Mrs. Harvey Kronick.

The following women baked cookies for the TB Hospital party in December: the Mmes. Arnold Pinsly, Massie Mehl, Marvin Millens, Robert Ronder, Aaron Klein, Rae Levine, Morton Levine, Stanley Kaplan, Ronald Wolfield, Harris Gally, Sam Barnovitz, Alfred Ronder, Ida Werbalowsky and William Helmrich. B'nai B'rith was particularly grateful to one of its members, Mrs. Jack Zweben, for donating cookies by the dozens.

Eight members of the B'nai B'rith board are enrolled in a short course entitled "Public Speaking and Leadership Development," given by former president Mrs. Arnold Pinsly, who is also a member of the District Executive Committee. The students include the Mmes. Harris Gally, William Helmrich, Sam Barnovitz, Irwin Gellen, Morton Levine, Seymour Semilof, Jerry Cohen, Stanley Wyman and Seymour Werbalowsky.

The third and final session is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 27 at 8:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Helmrich, Sherry Lane.

The success of December's toy and rummage sale has also been reported. Aiding in the work were the Mmes. Ross Ellis, Al Camhi, Charles Ronder, Stanley Kohnberg, Irwin Gellin, Arthur

Glasco Ladies' Auxiliary

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Glasco Fire Company was held on Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8 p. m., with Mrs. Barbara Bruno presiding.

A general discussion was held concerning activities to take place during the coming year.

Refreshments were served by the committee consisting of Miss Theresa Cafaldo, Mrs. Sonja Cafaldo, Mrs. Rosina Cafaldo and Mrs. Emma DeGregoria.

The next regular meeting of the Auxiliary will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 11, 1964, at the Firehall. All members are urged to attend.

Kingston Romps to 62-44 DUSO Decision Over Port Jervis

Has High Run of 57

Jimmy Caras Wins Matches From Costello and Sangaline

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Freeman Sports Editor)

Jimmy Caras, a four-time World Pocket Billiard champion, revisited Kingston after a 25-year absence and blew hot and cold in two exhibitions Tuesday at Buster Ferraro's Golden Cue.

The affable Greek star was sharp in a matinee performance in which he defeated southpaw Bill Costello, 125 to 40, in nine innings. Caras pocketed a high run of 57.

Caras staged a late rally to beat Charlie Sangaline, current city champion, 125 to 78 in gruelling night contest before nearly 300 fans that jammed the Golden Cue. About 500 persons in all saw the two exhibitions in settings reminiscent of the pre-war golden age of pocket billiards.

In addition to his string of 57, Caras had other clusters of 18 and 19 against Costello, an expert shotmaker who couldn't untrack himself against the ex-champion. Bill settled for high runs of 11 and 12.

Caras appeared in deep trouble in the early going against Sangaline, who led by 22-6 at the end of two racks. After forging ahead, 56-41, Caras managed to stay in front all the way, but he was hounded by bad rolls and leaves. Sangaline, meanwhile, missed easy shots at stages when he could have taken a commanding lead over his renowned opponent.

Caras went out with a run of 20 against Sangaline and added two more for his best skein of the night. He had an earlier string of 18. Sangaline had 15 for his high cluster.

The New Image

The personable Caras personified the "new image" of pocket billiards. In addition to brief prematch instruction periods, he explained position play, technique and strategy during the regular matches, a departure from the serious, hard-nosed performances by champions of the past. After each match, he regaled the huge audiences with an extensive repertoire of trick and fancy shots.

Caras revealed a fine sense of humor and stage presence in all phases of his exhibition. He apparently "missed" one trick specialty several times during the match with Sangaline but "managed" to make it late in the game. He had executed the same shot on the third try before the smaller matinee crowd.

Trout Unlimited Chapter Formed by AreaSportsmen

A local chapter of the national organization Trout Unlimited, Inc. was organized recently by a small group of area sportsmen.

Trout Unlimited is the voice of dedicated trout anglers throughout the nation who are determined to protect and improve their wonderful sport. As individuals we can do very little in this regard, but united with this national organization we can conserve and preserve the ancient and honorable sport of trout angling with all its glorious tradition.

There are state and local chapters of Trout Unlimited and a regular membership entitles you to membership in your area chapter where, banded together with other members, you can discuss trout problems and get information on trout management that is not available elsewhere.

A dinner meeting will be held on Feb. 6 for all trout fishermen and women interested in joining the local chapter. Announcement for time, place and whom to contact for reservations will be published shortly. The guest speaker will be A. C. Neumann, executive secretary of the National Organization of Trout Unlimited, Inc.

Maroon Cagers Get 28-66 In Win Over Port

Kingston High cagers made 28 baskets in 66 attempts while defeating Port Jervis, 62-44, last night.

Jim Plunket led the team in field goals with eight and in rebounds with 20.

Shooting:
Jim Plunket, 8-15 Larry Armstead, 6-15; Leon Hanna, 2-5; Mike Burns, 3-9; Dan Heppner, 0-5; Larry Marcus, 6-12; Mike Canning, 2-3; Joe Schabot, 0-1; Brian Bach, 1-1. Total 28-66.

Rebounding:
Plunket, 20; Hanna, 12; Marcus, 10; Burns, 4; Heppner, 1.

Assists:
Armstead, 4; Plunket, 1.

Combine Good Offense With Defensive Play

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Combining their brilliant defensive with some good offensive work, Kingston High cagers surprised the high flying Raiders of Port Jervis, 62-44, in a DUSO league contest before a small crowd last night at the Kate Walton Field House.

The Raiders came in with an average of near 70 points a game on offensive. However, they were met by a tenacious defense and it limited them to 17 buckets.

Coach John Gilligan's cagers moved to an early lead and were never headed. Big Leon Hanna, a sophomore inserted into the starting lineup, did some solid rebounding to give his club a much needed lift.

When Hanna picked up his fourth personal foul with 6:30 to play in the half, Jim Plunket took up the rebounding slack and chipped in with some valuable points.

Raiders Stage Rally

Kingston had a 30-20 lead at the intermission. Armstead hit from outside and Hanna from close to zoom the margin to 14 points, 34-20, starting the third session. At this point, the Raiders came back as Al Wilkerson tallied on a driving layup, Walt Lederhaas tapped in a missed shot and Wilkerson came back with another drive.

After Hanna hit for the locals, Joe Nolan made a long jumper and football ace Ricky Spears scored from in close, making the scoreboard read, 36-30, with 4:30 of the period left.

Port never came any closer. Plunket tapped in a missed shot and Armstead swished one in from the outside, giving the home side a 10 point lead once more. After Nolan tallied for Port, Plunket and Glen Roderman exchanged buckets before Armstead and Marcus connected. At the end of the period, the lead was 12 points, 46-34, and this one was all but over.

Gilligan gave everyone a chance to play in the late stages of the contest.

Plunket, improving with each outing, rimmed 20 points to pace the winners. He and Hanna were bearcats on the boards. Marcus and Armstead had 13 points each. Armstead held the high scoring Spears to just two buckets in another superlative performance.

CAGE JOTTINGS. Bob Markes, the ex-cage coach at Middletown and now assistant principal at the J. Watson Bailey School, enjoyed the proceedings. He's still an avid cage fan . . . Wally Lucaszewski made his varsity debut. He was added to the squad several days ago . . . Pat Farace, who spent a year out of coaching because of an illness, was his usual chipper self before, during and after the game . . . Hanna is showing signs of developing. He brought some cheers from the crowd with his rebounding and defensive work . . . Less than 300 were in attendance, the third straight sub-par crowd . . . Lourdes and Poughkeepsie pay visits next week and look for a pick-up in attendance.

Koufax Hoping Knowledge Will Aid Pitching Career

BOSTON (AP) — Sandy Koufax says he reached the pitching heights when he lost some of his stuff and gained more knowledge. And he hopes pride will help him stay on top.

The 28-year-old Los Angeles Dodger southpaw won The Associated Press Award as Male Athlete of the Year, was named the National League's Most Valuable Player and collected endless other honors in the wake of the 1963 season.

He won 25 regular season games and pitched two of the victories in the four-game World Series sweep of the New York Yankees.

"I don't think my stuff is as good as it used to be," Koufax said Tuesday night while in town to receive an award from the B'nai B'rith Sports Lodge of Boston.

A Better Pitcher

"I'm a better pitcher than I used to be mostly because I have better control and know more about pitching.

"It's not true that all I have to do is get my fast ball and good curve over the plate. The only time I can afford simply to fire the ball through the strike zone anywhere is when my team is several runs ahead, and with the Dodgers that isn't often. Our team relies on speed and tight defense. We don't have many big innings.

"I don't know how I acquired control. All I know is that I never used to know where a pitch was going to end up when I fired and now I do. That's about the only difference between winning and losing."

Koufax was asked what keeps a pitcher on top once he gets there.

"I think it is, to a great extent, a matter of personal pride. Why has Warren Spahn gone on winning the way he has? First, it's his beautiful smooth pitching delivery. But also it's his pitcher's pride.

"You always feel you want tremendously to win.

"Spahn has another important asset. He's resourceful and thoughtful and has the ability to appraise himself. When his fast ball lost some of its steam, he was resourceful enough to develop another pitch.

"For that matter, that's what a pitcher does in a ball game. He often doesn't know what his best pitch is — that particular day — until the hiters 'inform' him."

Hurley Reformed Wins Sr. Church Loop Tilt

Ken Hopper hade eight of nine free throws to pace Hurley Reformed to a 47-43 win over Church of Comforter in a Senior Protestant Church league game at the YMCA court.

In other circuit tilts, Port Ewen Reformed beat St. James Methodist, 39-17, and Old Dutch walloped St. John's Episcopal, 53-22.

Hopper had 14 points to pace Hurley. The winners trailed, 16-9, after the first period and were on the short end of a 24-21 count at halftime and 34-29 starting the final period.

Ferguson rimmed 22 points for Port Ewen Reformed, which led at each quarter stop.

Old Dutch had a well-balanced attack with Brown potting 12 points and Don Wolf making 10.

Hub Delis and 50 Club Tied for Lead in 'B' Set

Hub Delicatessen drubbed City Hall Tavern, 72-30, and The 50 Club trounced Triangles, 80-64, to maintain the status quo in the YMCA "B" pennant race. Each team is now 6 and 0.

Led by Joe Palen's 21 points Hub poured in a steady flow of points with quarter totals of 19-16-19-18 against City Hall. Don Komosa added 17, Tony Causa 16 and Dan Levy 14 for the Delis. John Graney led City Hall with 8 points.

Iron Man Stunt

50 Club used only five players against Triangles, got off to a 37-26 halftime lead and outscored their opponents, 43-38, after the recess.

Bill Chase dunked 22 points and Rick Broberg hit 21. Other totals were: Bill Tomaseskie 12, Rick Gray 13 and Terry Corkery 12.

John Byczek led Triangles with 18 points. Fred Jackson meshed 12 and Dick Chatham and Bill Palen hit 10 each.

Kingston Romps to 62-44 DUSO Decision Over Port Jervis

Has High Run of 57

Jimmy Caras Wins Matches From Costello and Sangaline

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Freeman Sports Editor)

Jimmy Caras, a four-time World Pocket Billiard champion, revisited Kingston after a 25-year absence and blew hot and cold in two exhibitions Tuesday at Buster Ferraro's Golden Cue.

The affable Greek star was sharp in a matince performance in which he defeated southpaw Bill Costello, 125 to 40, in nine innings. Caras pocketed a high run of 57.

Caras staged a late rally to beat Charlie Sangaline, current city champion, 125 to 78 in gruelling night contest before nearly 500 fans that jammed the Golden Cue. About 500 persons in all saw the two exhibitions in settings reminiscent of the pre-war golden age of pocket billiards.

In addition to his string of 57, Caras had other clusters of 18 and 19 against Costello, an expert shotmaker who couldn't untrack himself against the ex-champion. Bill settled for high runs of 11 and 12.

Caras appeared in deep trouble in the early going against Sangaline, who led by 22-6 at the end of two racks. After forging ahead, 56-41, Caras managed to stay in front all the way, but he was hounded by bad rolls and leaves. Sangaline, meanwhile, missed easy shots at stages when he could have taken a commanding lead over his renowned opponent.

Caras went out with a run of 20 against Sangaline and added two more for his best skein of the night. He had an earlier string of 18. Sangaline had 15 for his high cluster.

The New Image

The personable Caras personified the "new image" of pocket billiards. In addition to brief pre-match instruction periods, he explained position play, technique and strategy during the regular matches, a departure from the serious, hard-nosed performances by champions of the past. After each match, he regaled the huge audiences with an extensive repertoire of trick and fancy shots.

Caras revealed a fine sense of humor and stage presence in all phases of his exhibition. He apparently "missed" one trick specialty several times during the match with Sangaline but "managed" to make it late in the game. He had executed the same shot on the third try before the smaller matinee crowd.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — (NEA)—Jim Redman is expected to lead a Honda team in the world championship motorcycle races over the Daytona International Speedway Feb. 1-2. Redman of South Rhodesia is the 250-cc world champion.

Combine Good Offense With Defensive Play

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Combining their brilliant defensive with some good offensive work, Kingston High cagers surprised the high flying Raiders of Port Jervis, 62-44, in a DUSO league contest before a small crowd last night at the Kate Walton Field House.

The Raiders came in with an average of near 70 points a game on offensive. However, they were met by a tenacious defense and it limited them to 17 buckets.

Coach John Gilligan's cagers moved to an early lead and were never headed. Big Leon Hanna, a sophomore inserted into the starting lineup, did some solid rebounding to give his club a much needed lift.

When Hanna picked up his fourth personal foul with 6:30 to play in the half, Jim Plunket took up the rebounding slack and chipped in with some valuable points.

Raiders Stage Rally

Kingston had a 30-20 lead at the intermission. Armstead hit from outside and Hanna from close to zoom the margin to 14 points, 34-20, starting the third session. At this point, the Raiders came back as Al Wilkerson tallied on a driving layup, Walt Lederhaas tapped in a missed shot and Wilkerson came back with another drive.

After Hanna hit for the locals, Joe Nolan made a long jumper and football ace Ricky Spears scored from in close, making the scoreboard read, 36-30, with 4:30 of the period left.

Port never came any closer. Plunket tapped in a missed shot and Armstead swished one in from the outside, giving the home side a 10 point lead once more. After Nolan tallied for Port, Plunket and Glen Roderman exchanged buckets before Armstead and Marcus connected. At the end of the period, the lead was 12 points, 46-34, and this one was all but over.

Gilligan gave everyone a chance to play in the late stages of the contest.

Plunket, improving with each outing, rimmed 20 points to pace the winners. He and Hanna were bearcats on the boards. Marcus and Armstead had 13 points each. Armstead held the high scoring Spears to just two buckets in another superlative performance.

CAGE JOTTINGS. Bob Markes, the ex-cage coach at Middletown and now assistant principal at the J. Watson Bailey School, enjoyed the proceedings. He's still an avid cage fan . . . Wally Lucaszewski made his varsity debut. He was added to the squad several days ago . . . Pat Farace, who spent a year out of coaching because of an illness, was his usual chipper self before, during and after the game . . . Hanna is showing signs of developing. He brought some cheers from the crowd with his rebounding and defensive work . . . Less than 300 were in attendance, the third straight sub-par crowd . . . Lourdes and Poughkeepsie pay visits next week and look for a pick-up in attendance.

Trout Unlimited Chapter Formed by AreaSportsmen

A local chapter of the national organization Trout Unlimited, Inc. was organized recently by a small group of area sportsmen.

Trout Unlimited is the voice of dedicated trout anglers throughout the nation who are determined to protect and improve their wonderful sport. As individuals we can do very little in this regard, but united with this national organization we can conserve and preserve the ancient and honorable sport of trout angling with all its glorious tradition.

There are state and local chapters of Trout Unlimited and a regular membership entitles you to membership in your area chapter where, banded together with other members, you can discuss trout problems and get information on trout management that is not available elsewhere.

A dinner meeting will be held on Feb. 6 for all trout fishermen and women interested in joining the local chapter. Announcement for time, place and whom to contact for reservations will be published shortly. The guest speaker will be A. C. Neumann, executive secretary of the National Organization of Trout Unlimited, Inc.

Koufax Hoping Knowledge Will Aid Pitching Career

BOSTON (AP) — Sandy Koufax says he reached the pitching heights when he lost some of his stuff and gained more knowledge. And he hopes pride will help him stay on top.

The 28-year-old Los Angeles Dodger southpaw won The Associated Press Award as Male Athlete of the Year, was named the National League's Most Valuable Player and collected endless other honors in the wake of the 1963 season.

He won 25 regular season games and pitched two of the victories in the four-game World Series sweep of the New York Yankees.

"I don't think my stuff is as good as it used to be," Koufax said Tuesday night while in town to receive an award from the B'nai B'rith Sports Lodge of Boston.

A Better Pitcher

"I'm a better pitcher than I used to be mostly because I have better control and know more about pitching.

"It's not true that all I have to do is get my fast ball and good curve over the plate. The only time I can afford simply to fire the ball through the strike zone anywhere is when my team is several runs ahead, and with the Dodgers that isn't often. Our team relies on speed and tight defense. We don't have many big innings.

"I don't know how I acquired control. All I know is that I never used to know where a pitch was going to end up when I fired and now I do. That's about the only difference between winning and losing."

Koufax was asked what keeps a pitcher on top once he gets there.

"I think it is, to a great extent, a matter of personal pride. Why has Warren Spahn gone on winning the way he has? First, it's his beautiful smooth pitching delivery. But also it's his pitcher's pride.

"You always feel you want tremendously to win.

"Spahn has another important asset. He's resourceful and thoughtful and has the ability to appraise himself. When his fast ball lost some of its steam, he was resourceful enough to develop another pitch.

"For that matter, that's what a pitcher does in a ball game. He often doesn't know what his best pitch is — that particular day — until the hiters 'inform' him."

The one on top is a world famous legend.

The one below it is the same legend redesigned into an all new station wagon.

It has the deluxe interior appointments and comfortable ride of a fine passenger car . . . carries six big adults plus more luggage and equipment than you can imagine. It's powered by America's only automotive overhead cam engine, the high torque Tornado OHC . . . offers optional extras such as automatic transmission, independent front suspension, power steering and power brakes. But the all new Wagoneer is really a 'Jeep' vehicle at heart.

The 'Jeep' Wagoneer goes up steep hills, over rough rugged terrain and through snow and mud that leave other cars helpless. And around slippery turns that cause fishtailing and skidding, it hugs the road with traditional 'Jeep' traction.

The big reason is 4-wheel "Drivepower".* All four wheels are power wheels instead of just two. Take a demonstration drive soon. You've never driven a car that can do the things this one can.

Royals Tie Celtics In Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals are fattening up in Column One, but Column Two apparently has them beaten.

The Royals tied the Eastern Division leading Boston Celtics with the most victories in the National Basketball Association by walloping the New York Knickerbockers 139-124 Tuesday night for their 32nd victory.

The 32 victories represent Column One in the NBA standings. Column Two, the loss column, shows the Royals with 17 losses — seven more than the Celtics, who were beaten by St. Louis 116-114 on Zelmo Beaty's jump shot with 14 seconds remaining.

The Royals still are 3½ games behind the Celtics.

In other games, Terry Dischinger's interception preserved Baltimore's 124-121 victory over Philadelphia and San Francisco blew an early 20-point lead and then came back to defeat Detroit 100-88.

Three Big Men

The Royals brought their record to 7-1 against the Knicks behind a three-man attack led by Oscar Robertson, 31 points, Jack Twyman, 21, and Jerry Lucas, 20 and five stitches. The stiches were required to close a cut chin suffered in the first quarter.

The Cetics trailed 114-106 with 3:04 left but baskets by Sam Jones, John Havlicek, Bill Russell and foul shots by Russell and K. C. Jones tied it. Beaty then ruined the comeback. Beaty wound up with 11 points. Bob Pettit led the Hawks with 29 while Sam Jones had 20 for Boston.

Philadelphia rallied from seven points down to within 122-121 with 23 seconds left, and had possession. But Dischinger stole a pass, and Walt Bellamy eventually sank two free throws with four seconds left to clinch it for Baltimore. Bellamy led the scorers with 37 points to 36 for Hal Greer of the 76ers.

The Warriors' Wilt Chamberlain scored only three points in the third period but led his team with 24 points as San Francisco moved within 2½ games of Los Angeles in the NBA's Western Division. Don Ohl topped the Pistons with 17.

Shifts to Purdue

AMES, Iowa — (NEA) — Ernie Zwahlen has resigned his grid duties at Iowa State University to take a job as head coach at Purdue University.

OUT AHEAD—Jockey Ron Ferraro, national riding champion of 1962, displays a number five. It signifies the five consecutive races in two days he won at Bowie, Md. On Jan. 18 he had winning mounts in the sixth, seventh and eighth races. On Jan. 20 he took the first and third.

Joe Donato Fails

Joe Joseph, Mrs. Bopp Top All Star Bowlers

DALLAS (AP)—Joe Joseph, a wise-cracking pro from Lansing, Mich., won the qualifying trophy at the $100,000 All-Star bowling tournament Tuesday night with a 32-game total of 6915.

Joseph was lurking in sixth place after the first round of semifinals early Tuesday. He sprinted into the lead in the final round by firing a 214-214-226-264-214-192—1324 series.

Ted Hoffman, Jr., a burly young Philadelphia bowler who took the lead after the first semifinal block, dipped to third place after a modest 1240 series in the last qualifying round.

Mike Chiuchiolo of Patchogue, L.I., N.Y., moved up to second place on the final squad with 1301—6910.

Weber Qualifies

Dick Weber, the defending champion from St. Louis, finished fourth in qualifying to earn a shot at his third straight All-Star Championship.

Don Ellis of Houston moved up to fifth on the last squad. Bill Lillard, Dallas, the leader for the preliminary rounds, dropped to sixth place.

The lowest score qualifying was Tommy Tuttle's 6781.

Tuttle, an engaging newcomer from Rural Hall, N.C., finished 16th.

Jeannette Bopp, 36-year-old Milwaukee housewife, won the women's qualifying trophy with a 24-game total of 4966. Mrs. Bopp's performance was second in all-star history only to the 5018 which won the qualifying trophy last year for Marion Ladewig, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Ladewig, eight-time champion of the event, failed to survive even the semifinal cut last Sunday.

Albanians Fail

Three Albany bowlers who made the semi-finals failed to make the cutoff for the 16-man finals competition that opens today.

Joe Donato strung games of 197, 208, 176, 257, 218 and 192 for a 1249 in his morning block. His first three games at night—197, 193, 169—eliminated him.

Dick Peckham blasted an excellent 1308 Tuesday afternoon with games of 226, 192, 201, 219, 234 and 236. The youngster appeared to be heading for the finals with slams of 226, 221 and 227 in the first three sets at night. Then he ran into all kinds of trouble and finished with 169, 176, 188 for 1207 and 6603.

Don Gates fired 1249 in the first block then faded badly at night.

Chevrolets Rip Sportsman Park

Byrne Chevrolets scored 50 points in the second half to bury Sportsman's Park, 88-59, in the YMCA "A" basketball league. The winners led 38-30 at the intermission.

All nine Chevrolets crashed the scoring column, with five in double figures. John Morris led with 21 and Bill DuBois added 16. Other top scorers included Al Brown 12, Walt Harder 14 and Joe Long 10.

Tom Fiore of Sportsman's Park took game honors with 26 points. Stu Harris canned 16 and Bob Smith had 11.

Clay, Liston See Dollar S'gns

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Liston may have another short night's work Feb. 25 with Cassius Clay at Miami Beach, but the heavyweight champion figures to make a bundle. Cassius won't have to depend on any Social Security, either, if he makes it.

Nate Halpern, the president of Theater Network Television, Inc., the company that will operate a closed circuit telecast of the title fight, said Tuesday he already had 1,000,000 seats available. It may hit 1,250,000 by fight time.

As Halpern figures the average price will be about $5, a sell-out in the theaters and arenas in between 250 and 300 locations would bring in something between $5 million and $6,250,000. The record is the $4 million estimated for the first Liston-Floyd Patterson fight in 1962.

The actual gate at Miami Beach could reach $1,200,000 if they sell all the tickets starting at a $250 top. Bill MacDonald, a Miami sportsman, has assured the fighters they will share in $625,000 by buying the live gate for that amount.

Royals Tie Celtics In Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals are fattening up in Column One, but Column Two apparently has them beaten.

The Royals tied the Eastern Division leading Boston Celtics with the most victories in the National Basketball Association by walloping the New York Knickerbockers 139-124 Tuesday night for their 32nd victory.

The 32 victories represent Column One in the NBA standings. Column Two, the loss column, shows the Royals with 17 losses — seven more than the Celtics, who were beaten by St. Louis 116-114 on Zelmo Beaty's jump shot with 14 seconds remaining.

The Royals still are 3½ games behind the Celtics.

In other games, Terry Dischinger's interception preserved Baltimore's 124-121 victory over Philadelphia and San Francisco blew an early 20-point lead and then came back to defeat Detroit 100-88.

Three Big Men

The Royals brought their record to 7-1 against the Knicks behind a three-man attack led by Oscar Robertson, 31 points, Jack Twyman, 21, and Jerry Lucas, 20 and five stitches. The stiches were required to close a cut chin suffered in the first quarter.

The Cetics trailed 114-106 with 3:04 left but baskets by Sam Jones, John Havlicek, Bill Russell and foul shots by Russell and K. C. Jones tied it. Beaty then ruined the comeback. Beaty wound up with 11 points. Bob Pettit led the Hawks with 29 while Sam Jones had 20 for Boston.

Philadelphia rallied from seven points down to within 122-121 with 23 seconds left, and had possession. But Dischinger stole a pass, and Walt Bellamy eventually sank two free throws with four seconds left to clinch it for Baltimore. Bellamy led the scorers with 37 points to 36 for Hal Greer of the 76ers.

The Warriors' Wilt Chamberlain scored only three points in the third period but led his team with 24 points as San Francisco moved within 2½ games of Los Angeles in the NBA's Western Division. Don Ohl topped the Pistons with 17.

DALLAS (AP)—Joe Joseph, a wise-cracking pro from Lansing, Mich., won the qualifying trophy at the $100,000 All-Star bowling tournament Tuesday night with a 32-game total of 6915.

Joseph was lurking in sixth place after the first round of semifinals early Tuesday. He sprinted into the lead in the final round by firing a 214-214-226-264-214-192—1324 series.

Ted Hoffman, Jr., a burly young Philadelphia bowler who took the lead after the first semifinal block, dipped to third place after a modest 1240 series in the last qualifying round.

Mike Chiuchiolo of Patchogue, L.I., N.Y., moved up to second place on the final squad with 1301—6910.

Weber Qualifies

Dick Weber, the defending champion from St. Louis, finished fourth in qualifying to earn a shot at his third straight All-Star Championship.

Don Ellis of Houston moved up to fifth on the last squad. Bill Lillard, Dallas, the leader for the preliminary rounds, dropped to sixth place.

The lowest score qualifying was Tommy Tuttle's 6781.

Tuttle, an engaging newcomer from Rural Hall, N.C., finished 16th.

Jeannette Bopp, 36-year-old Milwaukee housewife, won the women's qualifying trophy with a 24-game total of 4966. Mrs. Bopp's performance was second in all-star history only to the 5018 which won the qualifying trophy last year for Marion Ladewig, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Ladewig, eight-time champion of the event, failed to survive even the semifinal cut last Sunday.

Albanians Fail

Three Albany bowlers who made the semi-finals failed to make the cutoff for the 16-man finals competition that opens today.

Joe Donato strung games of 197, 208, 176, 257, 218 and 192 for a 1249 in his morning block. His first three games at night—197, 193, 169—eliminated him.

Dick Peckham blasted an excellent 1308 Tuesday afternoon with games of 226, 192, 201, 219, 234 and 236. The youngster appeared to be heading for the finals with slams of 226, 221 and 227 in the first three sets at night. Then he ran into all kinds of trouble and finished with 169, 176, 188 for 1207 and 6603.

Don Gates fired 1249 in the first block then faded badly at night.

Minisink Tops New Paltz, 64-52

Despite a 31-point performance by Bruce McKinney, New Paltz Central dropped a 64-52 decision to visiting Minisink Valley last night.

McKinney had 10 of the Huguenots' field goals and 11 of their foul shots. Bob Zaccheo aided with 11 but the others couldn't find the range.

Clay, Liston See Dollar S'gns

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Liston may have another short night's work Feb. 25 with Cassius Clay at Miami Beach, but the heavyweight champion figures to make a bundle. Cassius won't have to depend on any Social Security, either, if he makes it.

Nate Halpern, the president of Theater Network Television, Inc., the company that will operate a closed circuit telecast of the title fight, said Tuesday he already had 1,000,000 seats available. It may hit 1,250,000 by fight time.

As Halpern figures the average price will be about $5, a sell-out in the theaters and arenas in between 250 and 300 locations would bring in something between $5 million and $6,250,000. The record is the $4 million estimated for the first Liston-Floyd Patterson fight in 1962.

The actual gate at Miami Beach could reach $1,200,000 if they sell all the tickets starting at a $250 top. Bill MacDonald, a Miami sportsman, has assured the fighters they will share in $625,000 by buying the live gate for that amount.

EMPLOYMENT

NOTICE TO JOB APPLICANTS
The Kingston Daily Freeman does not knowingly accept Help-Wanted advertisements from employers covered by the Federal Wage-Hour Law if they offer less than legal minimum wages. Most employes engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or in the production of goods for such commerce must be paid not less than $1.25 an hour and at least one and one-half times their regular rate of pay for hours worked after a maximum workweek of 40 hours, unless specifically exempt. Also, most employes in certain large retail, service, construction and other enterprises engaged in or producing goods for commerce, who have been entitled to a minimum wage of at least $1.00 an hour since September 3, 1961, must be paid overtime pay of not less than one and one-half times their regular rates for all hours worked after a maximum workweek of 44 hours, unless specifically exempt. If you are offered less by covered employers, or if you have questions concerning the Fair Labor Standards Act or other activities of the U. S. Department of Labor, call or write the Department's local office at 881 Gerard Ave., Bronx, N. Y. 10452 WYandotte 2-1235.

EMPLOYMENT

NOTICE TO JOB APPLICANTS
The Kingston Daily Freeman does not knowingly accept Help-Wanted advertisements from employers covered by the Federal Wage-Hour Law if they offer less than legal minimum wages. Most employes engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or in the production of goods for such commerce must be paid not less than $1.25 an hour and at least one and one-half times their regular rate of pay for hours worked after a maximum workweek of 40 hours, unless specifically exempt. Also, most employes in certain large retail, service, construction and other enterprises engaged in or producing goods for commerce, who have been entitled to a minimum wage of at least $1.00 an hour since September 3, 1961, must be paid overtime pay of not less than one and one-half times their regular rates for all hours worked after a maximum workweek of 44 hours, unless specifically exempt. If you are offered less by covered employers, or if you have questions concerning the Fair Labor Standards Act or other activities of the U. S. Department of Labor, call or write the Department's local office at 881 Gerard Ave., Bronx, N. Y. 10452 WYandotte 2-1235.

Possibility Seen Of Action for More Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The death of another Roman Catholic cardinal increased anticipation today that Pope Paul VI soon will call a consistory to replenish the Sacred College.

There also was speculation that the pontiff would make most of his choices from outside Italy, in line with his manifest desire to give the church's leadership a more international character.

Carlo Cardinal Chiarlo, 82, Italian member of the Vatican Curia, died Tuesday night of an intestinal tumor at Lucca, his family home. He had been ill more than seven months.

Cardinal Chiarlo's death reduced the College of Cardinals to 78 members.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

C of C Installs Officers, Names Committee Heads

Newly elected officers of Saugerties Area Chamer of Commerce were installed and commitee chairmen named at the first meeting of the year held Tuesday night at Schoentag's Colonial Tavern, Cedar Grove.

Joseph Bosco Jr., installed president was presented with the gavel by outgoing president, Nathan A. Aaron. Bosco served as first vice president last year.

Aaron in his farewell speech, reviewed the accomplishments of his administration during the past year. He emphasized that what was needed in Saugerties were more boosters of the town stressing the important and best features of the town and village.

Others installed were Francis J. Moran, first vice president; Robert Levintan, second vice president; Louis Montano, treasurer, and Aaron, director for three years.

Executive Secretary Alfred R. MacMullen was reappointed for another year. A social dinner is planned for April and Aaron, in charge of the event will attempt to secure a guest speaker.

Committees named were: Highway, Franklin P. Clum Sr.; legal and legislation, Louis P. Francello and William D. Brinnier; membership and attendance, Levintan and Ben Fein; civic pride, Peter Murphy; social features, Aaron; educational, Richard Messina; health and welfare, Barclay Van Tassel; Christmas lighting, Lachmann and Bosco; advertising and publicity, Edward Himburger; representative at Village and Town Board Meetings, Aaron; Jaycees liaison, Lachmann.

Bosco, who headed the Christmas street lighting committee with Lachmann reported that the program went very well and that sufficient funds were realized from the drive.

Albert Conte, Miss Saugerties Pageant chairman reported that information of the 1964 Miss New York State Pageant had been received and work had already started on the local pageant to be held during the summer.

Emmanuel OES Slates Reception For Matron, Patron

A reception for the newly installed matron and patron of Emmanuel Chapter 517, Order of the Eastern Star will be held Tuesday, Jan. 28 at Saugerties Masonic Temple, Main Street.

Mrs. Helen Toennis is matron and Coy Willis Henderson is patron. Installation ceremonies were held last week at the temple. The Rev. Henry Reinewald, pastor of Plattekill Reformed Church, Mt. Marion, and newly installed associate patron, was initiated in a ceremony conducted by Robert Schuchhardt. Mrs. Milton Armstrong and Mrs. George Transom became members by affiliation.

Right Worthy Brother Ernest Schirmer installed the new officers, assisted by Outgoing Matron Mrs. Mildred Schuchhardt as marshal; Mrs. Vera Van Tassel, assistant marshal; Mrs. Grace Finkbeiner, chaplain; Mrs. Mildred Bissikumer, warder, and Margaret Seigel, pianist.

In addition to those mentioned, installed were:

Mrs. Julia Kellerhouse, associate matron; Mrs. Berna Reinewald, conductress; Mabel Chapman, associate conductress; Maude Eckhoff, chaplain; Mildred Schuchhardt, marshal; Ollie Warringer, assistant marshal; Jean Henderson, historian; Margaret Seigel, musician; Kenneth Haggins, master of Ulster Lodge, F&AM, sentinel; Barbara Leard, warder; Lillian Devaney, color bearer; Christine Foundas, Adah; Alice Sherman, Ruth; Barbara Shultis, Esther; Ethel Wilhelm, Martha; Marilyn Short, Electa; trustees, Mildred Brady, Dora Aplustill, and Vera Van Tassel; cheer committee, Anna Peters and Irene Kullmann, and Miss Beverly Kellerhouse, secretary.

Refreshments were served following the ceremony.

Mrs. Schuchhardt, outgoing matron delivered a farewell speech thanking all for their cooperation. A farewell program was presented entitled An Evening in Court, written by Mildred Brady and Jean Henderson.

Panama Is Topic Of Monday Club

The Rev. Orville J. Hine, pastor of Saugerties Reformed Church was guest speaker at this week's meeting of Saugerties Monday Club at the home of Mrs. Lewis F. Fellows, Virginia Avenue.

Mrs. Dorrance Baker vice president presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. William Ziegler.

The Rev. Mr. Hine, who with his family spent three years in Panama from 1959-1962, spoke to the members about the people and conditions in the Canal Zone. Although only a small area it is of great importance to the rest of the world as well as the United States. Eighty per cent of the Canal traffic is commercial. One of the big issues among the people is the income range. Most of the people in the Canal Zone earn on an average of $8,200 per year while the neighboring adjacent areas exist on $200 to $399 per year, he said. Sufficient income is derived from the Canal so the United States is not burdened with any cost of operating the area.

Mrs. Robert M. Freligh presented a program on the history of soap. While the history of soap goes back more than 4500 years, soap and water cleanliness as we know it today is little more than 200 years old. The present day intensive fight against dirt is one of the notable aspects of modern civilization, she said. Without soap today, people could no longer keep up appearances and standards of public health would be impossible.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Zeigler, Lafayette Street.

Lutheran Church Approves Budget, Elects Councilmen

Atonement Lutheran Church, Saugerties elected six new councilmen and approved a $21,503 budget at the annual congregational meeting held at the church early this week following a covered dish supper. The Rev. Walter Cowen, pastor, presided.

The pastor's report revealed that 41 new members and 21 children were added to the rolls of the congregation during 1963. The property committee reported that through offerings received for Atonement Improvement Drive, 14 major improvements were completed including releading and storm glazing of front and tower windows, a new walk, new entrance decorative wrought iron railing, redecoration of interior of the parish house and installation of tiletex flooring were among the improvements.

It was announced that in 1964 the church would be rewired and new lamps installed in the nave, auxiliary room and entrance halls; the basement would be repainted. The latter is being done now by the men of the Lutheran Brotherhood. It is planned also in 1964 to make extensive repairs in the kitchen.

The Lutheran Church Women, official women's group of the Lutheran Church in America in 1963 visited the shut-ins of the congregation four times, and remembered them during Easter and Christmas with small gifts. The group had provided for care of the altar, preparation for communion, care of sanctuary light, nursery care for children during church service, sent 35 cartons of clothing for World Relief, made comfort pillows for aged, 39 bed jackets, 300 bed pads and 130 bandage rolls for institutional use, provided Christmas gifts for Clinton Lutheran Old Folks Home, Clinton.

The meeting voted to ask the members of Atonement for a special offering on Ash Wednesday for Immanuel Lutheran Church of Kingston, whose church was recently damaged by fire.

The Lutheran League reported completion of decorating the interior of the parish house during 1963. The treasurer, Donald Neff, reported that $5,323.15 had been given for synodical and world objectives and that all bills for 1963 had been paid.

The congregation passed a budget of $21,503 of which $6743 is for world-wide and beyond congregational objectives and $14,760 is for current needs.

The following were elected to the church council for a period of three years:

Durwood Swart of Churchland Road; Jack Melber and Kenneth Hauck, Mt. Marion Park; Donald Neff, Edith Street; Miss Margaret Gippert, Mt. Marion Road, two years, and Mrs. Fred Schmersahl, Meadow Court, for one year. The newly elected council members will be installed on Sunday at the 11 a. m. service together with all elected officers of the organizations of the church.

An adult membership class will be conducted by Pastor Cowen, beginning Sunday, Feb. 23 at 9:30 a. m. at the parsonage. The Book Growth in Grace, by William Horn, will be used. Classes will continue each Sunday for five Sundays leading to reception into membership on Palm Sunday.

Seek Nominations For Outstanding Citizen of Year

Saugerties Jaycees are seeking nominations for the outstanding citizen of the year which will be presented at a dinner tendered in his honor.

The program is conducted in order to foster community services and acclaim local public spirited citizens. The award is given to the man in Saugerties, who has done the most for the community in the past year.

This is the fifth consecutive year, the local Jaycees have sponsored the program.

Previous winners are: 1959 Vernon Joe Benjamin; 1960 Peter Pocalyko; 1961 Donald S. Fellows; 1962 Nathan Aaron.

The winner will receive a plaque at a testimonial dinner to be held at the Flamingo Restaurant on March 12. The dinner will be open to the public.

Nomination forms are available at Amrod's Department Store, P. C. Smith Hardware Store or by contacting Jaycee Committee Chairman Robert Schnell.

CYO Committee Lists Schedule Of Coming Events

CYO executive committee of Saint Mary of the Snow Parish, Saugerties, at its meeting Monday in the school cafeteria discussed coming events and the following tentative schedule was arranged:

Feb. 7, Valentine's dance; Feb. 23, talent show for the elementary grades and teenage CYO members; March 16, Saint Patrick's Day dance for the elementary grades; March 22, Communion breakfast for CYO members and on April 12 artcraft and hobby show for CYO members from Ulster County.

Prior to the regular meeting, the cultural committee assembled to discuss plans for the artcraft and hobby show and the talent show. Members of this committee are Armand Bosse, chairman; Robert Schnell, Ronald Deek, Pearl Christiana, Mary Collins, Fay Washburn and Ann McCormick.

The Rev. Joseph Hamilton is the CYO moderator and Donald Longtoe is chairman of the executive committee.

About Town Folks

MR. & MRS. ROBERT M. FRELIGH of Finger Street observed their 20th wedding anniversary on January 16.

Possibility Seen Of Action for More Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The death of another Roman Catholic cardinal increased anticipation today that Pope Paul VI soon will call a consistory to replenish the Sacred College.

There also was speculation that the pontiff would make most of his choices from outside Italy, in line with his manifest desire to give the church's leadership a more international character.

Carlo Cardinal Chiarlo, 82, Italian member of the Vatican Curia, died Tuesday night of an intestinal tumor at Lucca, his family home. He had been ill more than seven months.

Cardinal Chiarlo's death reduced the College of Cardinals to 78 members.

C of C Installs Officers, Names Committee Heads

Newly elected officers of Saugerties Area Chamer of Commerce were installed and commitee chairmen named at the first meeting of the year held Tuesday night at Schoentag's Colonial Tavern, Cedar Grove.

Joseph Bosco Jr., installed president was presented with the gavel by outgoing president, Nathan A. Aaron. Bosco served as first vice president last year.

Aaron in his farewell speech, reviewed the accomplishments of his administration during the past year. He emphasized that what was needed in Saugerties were more boosters of the town stressing the important and best features of the town and village.

Others installed were Francis J. Moran, first vice president; Robert Levintan, second vice president; Louis Montano, treasurer, and Aaron, director for three years.

Executive Secretary Alfred R. MacMullen was reappointed for another year. A social dinner is planned for April and Aaron, in charge of the event will attempt to secure a guest speaker.

Committees named were: Highway, Franklin P. Clum Sr.; legal and legislation, Louis P. Francello and William D. Brinnier; membership and attendance, Levintan and Ben Fein; civic pride, Peter Murphy; social features, Aaron; educational, Richard Messina; health and welfare, Barclay Van Tassel; Christmas lighting, Lachmann and Bosco; advertising and publicity, Edward Himburger; representative at Village and Town Board Meetings, Aaron; Jaycees liaison, Lachmann.

Bosco, who headed the Christmas street lighting committee with Lachmann reported that the program went very well and that sufficient funds were realized from the drive.

Albert Conte, Miss Saugerties Pageant chairman reported that information of the 1964 Miss New York State Pageant had been received and work had already started on the local pageant to be held during the summer.

Seek Nominations For Outstanding Citizen of Year

Saugerties Jaycees are seeking nominations for the outstanding citizen of the year which will be presented at a dinner tendered in his honor.

The program is conducted in order to foster community services and acclaim local public spirited citizens. The award is given to the man in Saugerties, who has done the most for the community in the past year.

This is the fifth consecutive year, the local Jaycees have sponsored the program.

Previous winners are: 1959 Vernon Joe Benjamin; 1960 Peter Pocalyko; 1961 Donald S. Fellows; 1962 Nathan Aaron.

The winner will receive a plaque at a testimonial dinner to be held at the Flamingo Restaurant on March 12. The dinner will be open to the public.

Nomination forms are available at Amrod's Department Store, P. C. Smith Hardware Store or by contacting Jaycee Committee Chairman Robert Schnell.

Lutheran Church Approves Budget, Elects Councilmen

Atonement Lutheran Church, Saugerties elected six new councilmen and approved a $21,503 budget at the annual congregational meeting held at the church early this week following a covered dish supper. The Rev. Walter Cowen, pastor, presided.

The pastor's report revealed that 41 new members and 21 children were added to the rolls of the congregation during 1963. The property committee reported that through offerings received for Atonement Improvement Drive, 14 major improvements were completed including releading and storm glazing of front and tower windows, a new walk, new entrance decorative wrought iron railing, redecoration of interior of the parish house and installation of tiletex flooring were among the improvements.

It was announced that in 1964 the church would be rewired and new lamps installed in the nave, auxiliary room and entrance halls; the basement would be repainted. The latter is being done now by the men of the Lutheran Brotherhood. It is planned also in 1964 to make extensive repairs in the kitchen.

The Lutheran Church Women, official women's group of the Lutheran Church in America in 1963 visited the shut-ins of the congregation four times, and remembered them during Easter and Christmas with small gifts. The group had provided for care of the altar, preparation for communion, care of sanctuary light, nursery care for children during church service, sent 35 cartons of clothing for World Relief, made comfort pillows for aged, 39 bed jackets, 300 bed pads and 130 bandage rolls for institutional use, provided Christmas gifts for Clinton Lutheran Old Folks Home, Clinton.

The meeting voted to ask the members of Atonement for a special offering on Ash Wednesday for Immanuel Lutheran Church of Kingston, whose church was recently damaged by fire.

The Lutheran League reported completion of decorating the interior of the parish house during 1963. The treasurer, Donald Neff, reported that $5,323.15 had been given for synodical and world objectives and that all bills for 1963 had been paid.

The congregation passed a budget of $21,503 of which $6743 is for world-wide and beyond congregational objectives and $14,760 is for current needs.

The following were elected to the church council for a period of three years:

Durwood Swart of Churchland Road; Jack Melber and Kenneth Hauck, Mt. Marion Park; Donald Neff, Edith Street; Miss Margaret Gippert, Mt. Marion Road, two years, and Mrs. Fred Schmersahl, Meadow Court, for one year. The newly elected council members will be installed on Sunday at the 11 a. m. service together with all elected officers of the organizations of the church.

An adult membership class will be conducted by Pastor Cowen, beginning Sunday, Feb. 23 at 9:30 a. m. at the parsonage. The Book Growth in Grace, by William Horn, will be used. Classes will continue each Sunday for five Sundays leading to reception into membership on Palm Sunday.

Panama Is Topic Of Monday Club

The Rev. Orville J. Hine, pastor of Saugerties Reformed Church was guest speaker at this week's meeting of Saugerties Monday Club at the home of Mrs. Lewis F. Fellows, Virginia Avenue.

Mrs. Dorrance Baker vice president presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. William Ziegler.

The Rev. Mr. Hine, who with his family spent three years in Panama from 1959-1962, spoke to the members about the people and conditions in the Canal Zone. Although only a small area it is of great importance to the rest of the world as well as the United States. Eighty per cent of the Canal traffic is commercial. One of the big issues among the people is the income range. Most of the people in the Canal Zone earn on an average of $8,200 per year while the neighboring adjacent areas exist on $200 to $399 per year, he said. Sufficient income is derived from the Canal so the United States is not burdened with any cost of operating the area.

Mrs. Robert M. Freligh presented a program on the history of soap. While the history of soap goes back more than 4500 years, soap and water cleanliness as we know it today is little more than 200 years old. The present day intensive fight against dirt is one of the notable aspects of modern civilization, she said. Without soap today, people could no longer keep up appearances and standards of public health would be impossible.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Zeigler, Lafayette Street.

CYO Committee Lists Schedule Of Coming Events

CYO executive committee of Saint Mary of the Snow Parish, Saugerties, at its meeting Monday in the school cafeteria discussed coming events and the following tentative schedule was arranged:

Feb. 7, Valentine's dance; Feb. 23, talent show for the elementary grades and teenage CYO members; March 16, Saint Patrick's Day dance for the elementary grades; March 22, Communion breakfast for CYO members and on April 12 artcraft and hobby show for CYO members from Ulster County.

Prior to the regular meeting, the cultural committee assembled to discuss plans for the artcraft and hobby show and the talent show. Members of this committee are Armand Bosse, chairman; Robert Schnell, Ronald Deek, Pearl Christiana, Mary Collins, Fay Washburn and Ann McCormick.

The Rev. Joseph Hamilton is the CYO moderator and Donald Longtoe is chairman of the executive committee.

About Town Folks

MR. & MRS. ROBERT M. FRELIGH of Finger Street observed their 20th wedding anniversary on January 16.

Second Ring Does It

EASTON, Conn. (AP) — Mrs. Walter R. Whitman was embarrassed when the burglar alarm went off as she opened her front door to a caller Tuesday night.

Mrs. Whitman, who had set the alarm because she was alone, hastily turned it off. Then the well dressed, clean-cut visitor, who had introduced himself as an insurance salesman, pulled a gun, police said.

Mrs. Whitman slammed the door, ran back and turned the alarm on again. The caller fled.

Winter Finally Arrives in L.A.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wintry weather finally arrived in Southern California, previously drought-stricken and smugly basking in sunshine and near 70-degree temperatures.

Southern Californiians were promised more scattered showers in the wake of Tuesday's gusty storm that flooded streets, stalled traffic and spilled mud slides into homes.

The storm was the worst of the season, dumping up to 3.28 inches of rain in the Los Angeles area. It was the first rain in nearly two months.

Blizzards Hit Northwest

In the San Diego area, the storm caused flooding of streets, threatening seaside homes. Several residents were forced to evacuate their homes, but no injuries were reported.

Blizzards and snow slides were reported in the Pacific Northwest.

At Hoodoo Bowl, 90 miles east of Salem, Ore., 42 persons, snowbound in a ski lodge since Saturday, were returned home Tuesday. But the forecast called for continued snow and showers.

The storm brought down telephone lines, cutting off long-distance service to a half a dozen towns in eastern Oregon. Service was expected to be restored today.

Bay Area Hit

More rain and snow was predicted for Northern California. Rain, snow, lightning and hail were reported Tuesday in various parts of the San Francisco area.

The storm so far has dumped 3.5 inches of rain in San Francisco, and more than 5 inches were recorded in nearby Orinda, in Contra Costa County.

Blizzards brought 3 feet of snow to Squaw Valley and caused widespread damage to homes and utilities.

No Fantastic Deal: Eddie

Liz, Burton Head For L. A. Showdown

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, the world's most publicized lovers, will fly here today from Mexico for what could be a face to face showdown with singer Eddie Fisher.

Milton Rudin, lawyer for Miss Taylor, said the actress and Burton will make the flight from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico by chartered plane.

Arrival Time Unknown

Their estimated time of arrival is unknown.

Burton wrote a letter from the once obscure Mexican resort to Richard Hanley, Miss Taylor's secretary, with instructions that it be released exclusively to The Associated Press. It said:

"We are told publicly by the press that Mrs. Fisher is anxious to make easy the procedure of divorce. We are told privately by our lawyers that Mr. Fisher's demands are in the realm of the fantastic and quite intolerable.

"In the past two years, the world press for the most part have reviled, abused and maligned Miss Taylor, but even they have never accused her of being a liar," Burton said.

"Mr. Fisher must now decide whether to live up to his public image and do what he calls 'the gentlemanly thing,' or he must make public to the newspapers his private demands."

But Fisher, occupying a bungalow in the Beverly Hills Hotel, said he knew of no plans for a showdown. His lawyer, Louis Nizer, has been urging such a meeting for weeks.

It's All a Bore: Fisher

"I'll be here today," said Fisher "and if Elizabeth and Burton want to see me, I'll be available.

"I have no fantastic demands, no fantastic deals to make. I just want the whole thing over with as soon as possible. I think it is all a big bore."

Fisher leaves Thursday for New York, then he takes off for Zurich, Geneva and Innsbruck, Austria, where he'll sing at the gala opening of the winter Olympics.

Gets Insurance Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Henry Root Stern Jr. of old Westbury is the new state supreintendent of insurance.

Stern, named Tuesday to the $28,857 - a - year - job, succeeds Thomas Thacher of New York City, who resigned.

Stern, 51, is a native of New York City and graduate of Yale University.

Proposals Are Made To Help Lake Ports

CHICAGO (AP)—A freeze on existing maximum tolls and an extension of the shipping season for the St. Lawrence Seaway have been proposed by the directors of the International Association of Great Lakes Ports.

The moves, suggested Tuesday, are designed to lift the volume of shipping to and from Great Lakes ports through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The directors also voted support of a Senate bill that would provide government subsidies for shipbuilding in Great Lakes ports on an equal basis with Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Fugitive Gives Up to Chaplain, Girl Was Hostage

COMSTOCK, N.Y. (AP) — A prison chaplain strolled into a field outside Great Meadow Correctional Institution Tuesday night and talked a gun-wielding fugitive into surrendering himself and a 20-year-old girl hostage, police said.

Ronald Lane of Old Bennington, Vt., was arrested at the climax of a wild police chase and arraigned in South Glens Falls on a charge of third-degree burglary.

State Police said he also was wanted on assault charges in this state and on a grand larceny charge in Bennington.

Troopers gave this version of the arrest:

Lane stole a rifle, ammunition and $50 in Bennington Tuesday night, drove to Whitehall, where he picked up Miss Shirley Stark, and was spotted by police, who gave chase.

Lane wheeled his car into the yard in front of the prison in this Washington County community. Surrounded by troopters, he and the girl retreated to a field in back of the prison.

The Rev. Warren Churchill, Methodist chaplain at the prison, strode into the field and persuaded Lane to give himself up.

Senators Ask Caution After Johnson Disarmament Ideas

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The endless circle spins again. President Johnson has made disarmament proposals based on the hope the Soviet Union has changed its mind. But there's no reason to believe it has.

Johnson suggested Tuesday — in a message to the 18-nation disarmament conference which opened in Geneva — several moves for controlling nuclear weapons and cutting down their production.

There would have to be an inspection system to prevent cheating. This is what the United States has always insisted upon, before there could be an agreement. But the Soviet Union has always opposed an inspection system.

Last week Johnson said "we shall make new proposals" to the conference. Later he was quoted in a White House statement as saying "as the United States enters these negotiations . . . we harbor no illusions of easy success."

His proposals Tuesday were not basically new. Even his opening sentence had a familiar sound, the kind of thing the United States and the Soviet Union have been saying for years:

"There is only one item on the agenda of this conference — it is the leading item on the agenda — and that one item is peace."

The Soviet Union said several years ago in a memorandum on disarmament: "There is no task more vital and urgent today than the task of preserving peace."

Stress Inspection

The White House had hardly announced Johnson's proposals before senators were urging caution, warning there could be no agreement without inspection.

Any hope of a Soviet switch on inspection seems based on this: Maybe they think it's time for a second look because (1) their economy is in a downturn and less money spent on armaments would help and (2) their split with Red China may make them want better relations with the West.

This past year there have been some steps towards better relations, as Johnson mentioned: an agreement banning nuclear tests except underground; a direct line between Moscow and Washington to be used in a crisis to prevent misunderstandings; and a unanimous United Nations vote last October against nuclear - armed space satellites to halt the arms race upstairs.

What About Red China

But even if the Soviet Union switched on inspection, this awfully unpleasant question remains: what good would a disarmament agreement be unless Red China was a party to it?

It's hard to believe the U.S. Senate would ever approve a disarmament agreement which did not include Red China. But Red China is not taking part in the 18-nation conference. And, to complicate matters, this country refuses to recognize the Communist Chinese as the lawful masters of China.

The Red Chinese, in turn, have said they would not be bound by any disarmament treaty unless they took part in it and, in addition, they said they would not take part unless the United States recognized them.

The Kennedy View

The fallacy in a disarmament agreement without Red China was explained by the late President John F. Kennedy at a news conference Feb. 14, 1962:

"There is no use having an inspection system agreed upon between . . . the United States and the Soviet Union and some other countries and then have another country, large, carrying on intensive armaments preparations. Quite obviously that would not protect our security.

"So this problem of bringing that in is a problem that must be considered before we would be able to have confidence in any disarmament agreement."

Red China is not even a member of the United Nations. The United States has managed so far to keep it out. But the American ally, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China on Formosa, is a U.N. member.

Chiang claims to be boss of all China, although the Reds drove him off the mainland and have kept him off. So, in addition to all the problems just mentioned, there's this.

How, for the sake of universal disarmament, could the United States recognize Red China without abandoning Chiang or at least in effect agreeing that the Red Chinese and not Chiang were the boss of China?

For all these reasons the disarmament circle seems due to keep spinning quite a while.

Support Is High For JFK Library

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans for a President John F. Kennedy Library are meeting enthusiastic public approval and support, a spokesman for the project said today.

More than $2 million of the needed $10 million has been received — including a $1-million primer from the Kennedy Fountion. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, a brother of the late president, has said the family hopes the fund-raising drive will be over in six months.

The thousands of letters from a public which mourned Kennedy's death — he was assassinated two months ago today — bear witness to the support for the library to be built near Harvard University.

Contributions have ranged from $1 to $50,000.

Many writers have expressed the hope that the library will be available to them and their families — not just to students. They are being assured that after the library is completed with public funds, it will be turned over to the federal government and will be open to the public.

In addition to the contributions sent to the president's widow and his two brothers, others have been sent to the White House and the United Nations; the late president's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, and his brothers-in-law, Steven Smith and Sargent Shriver.

QUESTION: Suppose a driver hits his brakes so hard he wears flat spots on all his tires trying to avoid a collision. Shouldn't the insurance company pay for the tire damage? After all, the driver probably saved the company a big collision repair bill.

ANSWER: No. Tires are worn a bit every time a stop is made and if insurance companies paid for that damage there would be a million arguments as to degree of damage and whether or not it was necessary in avoiding a collision.

No Fantastic Deal: Eddie

Liz, Burton Head For L. A. Showdown

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, the world's most publicized lovers, will fly here today from Mexico for what could be a face to face showdown with singer Eddie Fisher.

Milton Rudin, lawyer for Miss Taylor, said the actress and Burton will make the flight from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico by chartered plane.

Arrival Time Unknown

Their estimated time of arrival is unknown.

Burton wrote a letter from the once obscure Mexican resort to Richard Hanley, Miss Taylor's secretary, with instructions that it be released exclusively to The Associated Press. It said:

"We are told publicly by the press that Mrs. Fisher is anxious to make easy the procedure of divorce. We are told privately by our lawyers that Mr. Fisher's demands are in the realm of the fantastic and quite intolerable.

"In the past two years, the world press for the most part have reviled, abused and maligned Miss Taylor, but even they have never accused her of being a liar," Burton said.

"Mr. Fisher must now decide whether to live up to his public image and do what he calls 'the gentlemanly thing,' or he must make public to the newspapers his private demands."

But Fisher, occupying a bungalow in the Beverly Hills Hotel, said he knew of no plans for a showdown. His lawyer, Louis Nizer, has been urging such a meeting for weeks.

It's All a Bore: Fisher

"I'll be here today," said Fisher "and if Elizabeth and Burton want to see me, I'll be available.

"I have no fantastic demands, no fantastic deals to make. I just want the whole thing over with as soon as possible. I think it is all a big bore."

Fisher leaves Thursday for New York, then he takes off for Zurich, Geneva and Innsbruck, Austria, where he'll sing at the gala opening of the winter Olympics.

Gets Insurance Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Henry Root Stern Jr. of old Westbury is the new state supreintendent of insurance.

Stern, named Tuesday to the $28,857 - a - year - job, succeeds Thomas Thacher of New York City, who resigned.

Stern, 51, is a native of New York City and graduate of Yale University.

Proposals Are Made To Help Lake Ports

CHICAGO (AP)—A freeze on existing maximum tolls and an extension of the shipping season for the St. Lawrence Seaway have been proposed by the directors of the International Association of Great Lakes Ports.

The moves, suggested Tuesday, are designed to lift the volume of shipping to and from Great Lakes ports through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The directors also voted support of a Senate bill that would provide government subsidies for shipbuilding in Great Lakes ports on an equal basis with Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Fugitive Gives Up to Chaplain, Girl Was Hostage

COMSTOCK, N.Y. (AP) — A prison chaplain strolled into a field outside Great Meadow Correctional Institution Tuesday night and talked a gun-wielding fugitive into surrendering himself and a 20-year-old girl hostage, police said.

Ronald Lane of Old Bennington, Vt., was arrested at the climax of a wild police chase and arraigned in South Glens Falls on a charge of third-degree burglary.

State Police said he also was wanted on assault charges in this state and on a grand larceny charge in Bennington.

Troopers gave this version of the arrest:

Lane stole a rifle, ammunition and $50 in Bennington Tuesday night, drove to Whitehall, where he picked up Miss Shirley Stark, and was spotted by police, who gave chase.

Lane wheeled his car into the yard in front of the prison in this Washington County community. Surrounded by troopters, he and the girl retreated to a field in back of the prison.

The Rev. Warren Churchill, Methodist chaplain at the prison, strode into the field and persuaded Lane to give himself up.

Senators Ask Caution After Johnson Disarmament Ideas

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The endless circle spins again. President Johnson has made disarmament proposals based on the hope the Soviet Union has changed its mind. But there's no reason to believe it has.

Johnson suggested Tuesday — in a message to the 18-nation disarmament conference which opened in Geneva — several moves for controlling nuclear weapons and cutting down their production.

There would have to be an inspection system to prevent cheating. This is what the United States has always insisted upon, before there could be an agreement. But the Soviet Union has always opposed an inspection system.

Last week Johnson said "we shall make new proposals" to the conference. Later he was quoted in a White House statement as saying "as the United States enters these negotiations . . . we harbor no illusions of easy success."

His proposals Tuesday were not basically new. Even his opening sentence had a familiar sound, the kind of thing the United States and the Soviet Union have been saying for years:

"There is only one item on the agenda of this conference — it is the leading item on the agenda — and that one item is peace."

The Soviet Union said several years ago in a memorandum on disarmament: "There is no task more vital and urgent today than the task of preserving peace."

Stress Inspection

The White House had hardly announced Johnson's proposals before senators were urging caution, warning there could be no agreement without inspection.

Any hope of a Soviet switch on inspection seems based on this: Maybe they think it's time for a second look because (1) their economy is in a downturn and less money spent on armaments would help and (2) their split with Red China may make them want better relations with the West.

This past year there have been some steps towards better relations, as Johnson mentioned: an agreement banning nuclear tests except underground; a direct line between Moscow and Washington to be used in a crisis to prevent misunderstandings; and a unanimous United Nations vote last October against nuclear - armed space satellites to halt the arms race upstairs.

What About Red China

But even if the Soviet Union switched on inspection, this awfully unpleasant question remains: what good would a disarmament agreement be unless Red China was a party to it?

It's hard to believe the U.S. Senate would ever approve a disarmament agreement which did not include Red China. But Red China is not taking part in the 18-nation conference. And, to complicate matters, this country refuses to recognize the Communist Chinese as the lawful masters of China.

The Red Chinese, in turn, have said they would not be bound by any disarmament treaty unless they took part in it and, in addition, they said they would not take part unless the United States recognized them.

The Kennedy View

The fallacy in a disarmament agreement without Red China was explained by the late President John F. Kennedy at a news conference Feb. 14, 1962:

"There is no use having an inspection system agreed upon between . . . the United States and the Soviet Union and some other countries and then have another country, large, carrying on intensive armaments preparations. Quite obviously that would not protect our security.

"So this problem of bringing that in is a problem that must be considered before we would be able to have confidence in any disarmament agreement."

Red China is not even a member of the United Nations. The United States has managed so far to keep it out. But the American ally, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China on Formosa, is a U.N. member.

Chiang claims to be boss of all China, although the Reds drove him off the mainland and have kept him off. So, in addition to all the problems just mentioned, there's this.

How, for the sake of universal disarmament, could the United States recognize Red China without abandoning Chiang or at least in effect agreeing that the Red Chinese and not Chiang were the boss of China?

For all these reasons the disarmament circle seems due to keep spinning quite a while.

Rescuer Treed

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Robert J. Slater's cat was up a tree in nearby Colonie.

Slater climbed a ladder to get to his pet. The ladder wobbled, and Slater was up a tree, too.

Firemen rescued him. The cat came down by herself.

Answers Your Insurance Questions

QUESTION: Suppose a driver hits his brakes so hard he wears flat spots on all his tires trying to avoid a collision. Shouldn't the insurance company pay for the tire damage? After all, the driver probably saved the company a big collision repair bill.

ANSWER: No. Tires are worn a bit every time a stop is made and if insurance companies paid for that damage there would be a million arguments as to degree of damage and whether or not it was necessary in avoiding a collision.

Support Is High For JFK Library

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans for a President John F. Kennedy Library are meeting enthusiastic public approval and support, a spokesman for the project said today.

More than $2 million of the needed $10 million has been received — including a $1-million primer from the Kennedy Fountion. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, a brother of the late president, has said the family hopes the fund-raising drive will be over in six months.

The thousands of letters from a public which mourned Kennedy's death — he was assassinated two months ago today — bear witness to the support for the library to be built near Harvard University.

Contributions have ranged from $1 to $50,000.

Many writers have expressed the hope that the library will be available to them and their families — not just to students. They are being assured that after the library is completed with public funds, it will be turned over to the federal government and will be open to the public.

In addition to the contributions sent to the president's widow and his two brothers, others nave been sent to the White House and the United Nations; the late president's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, and his brothers-in-law, Steven Smith and Sargent Shriver.
